Ortally Pleased.
The business and financial interests of Ardmore are greatly pleased over the action of congress in knowing out certain provisions of the Stewart bill. It is stated that, while congress did not remove land restrictions, conditions will not be disturbed by the legislation passed. A prominent man said regarding the restriction question.

"Three-fourths of the Indians in our country are as competent to look out for themselves as the average white person. Of course, if the restrictions were removed entirely the lands that some of the Indians now own would be in the hands of white land sharks and the Indian would have nothing to show for it. But the same thing would happen to the same number of white people under like circumstances. Besides, we are not asking to have all restrictions removed.

"The law that is favored in our country allows an Indian to sell his land, with the exception of what is known as his homestead piece. We will have to have a law like that before the territory will amount to anything. The country will never be settled thickly until white people can come in and own their own land.
