THE PIPE OF PEACE.
The Country Editor sat in his chair smoking a pipe of clay; Thinking of troubles, mostly small, That had bothered him that day. Unpaid bills, a subscriber's kick, A balky press and a broken stick, Lay heavy on his soul.

A city daily's page outspread, Captured his careless eye. Its startling headlines seemed to breathe The city's daily cry: Murder and suicide, death and divorce, Failure, dishonor, right conquered by force.

These were the stories told, And the editor filled up his pipe again. While his thoughts breathed deep content.

"What matter the worries of a day In a life clean and well spent? Learning a little, helping some, My living earned—my work well done.

I am rich indeed," he mused.—Ex.

Delicious refreshments of cream and cake were served by the two daughters of the hostess—Misses Bonnie and Kete Madden.

At the Summer Theater.
The attraction at the Ardmore this week is a good one, the leading lady, Miss Dorothy Reeves being a very pretty and a very talented actress. Her support is good and the play last night a society drama of four acts was a very interesting one.

The specialty act by the Vondergould, the man of mystery, was a very clever one.

He has a mania for handcuffs and "leg" chains, which he breaks with no difficulty at all.

Last night the empty box act, in which in three minutes time he exchanges places with a man who had been previously tied in a bag and put in a box, excited much interest and applause. Tonight he will make his escape from a milk can filled with water, the top of which has been securely fastened. The bill for this evening is "Southern Folk."

Here and There.

The Denver and Colorado Springs papers contain numerous tributes to the memory of Mrs. J. Addison Hayes, whose death occurred last week. Mrs. Hayes had many friends all over the United States who regret her demise, particularly the friends in the south, on account of their devotion to her father, the late Jefferson Davis. The J. Addison Hayes home, at the corner of North Cascade avenue and Cache La Poudre street, is one of the handsomest in Colorado Springs and has been the scene of many delightful entertainments in honor of the southern and particularly the Texas visitors to Colorado Springs, with Mr. and Mrs. Hayes and their attractive young sons and daughters as hosts.

Mrs. Hamilton Bee, formerly of San Antonio, but now of Guthrie, Okla., is with Colonel and Mrs. Stillwell H. Russell at 223 East Bijou.—Colorado News in Houston Post.

Miss Mary Roper, who has been the guest of several friends in this city for the past two weeks, will leave Monday for her home in Ardmore. She will be accompanied by Miss Cordelia Moore, who will visit Miss Mabel Roper for a couple of weeks.—Muskegon Phoenix.

Miss Lucy Anthony, niece of Susan B. Anthony, says that a petition will be presented to congress this winter which will be signed by one million women asking that equal suffrage be granted, and that the petition will simply be used as a curtain raiser to the big show which will consist of a demonstration such as the members of congress never before witnessed. Are we to have a sample of the militant suffrage movement as it has been exemplified in England?

In honor of Miss Ruth Phillips, the charming guest of Miss Elizabeth Simpson, Mrs. Charley Anderson will entertain with a lawn party tomorrow evening at her home on C street, S. W.

AN ELECTRIC WAR TERROR.

Airships Are to Be Paralyzed By An Invisible Power—U. S. Secret.

London, Aug. 2.—Under special license secured at Canterbury, H. C. Pierce of St. Louis was quietly married today at St. George's church, Hanover Square, to Virginia Pickett Burrows, of Edwardsville, Ill., whose former husband died four years ago. They will take their honeymoon trip in an automobile. The bride entertained the king and queen during the London season.

The invention, he says, is to be exclusively the property of the United States government, and up to the present the essential details are carefully guarded. The machine is said to project through the air a column of electric energy of almost any desired strength at any given object for a distance of many hundred yards. The informant, who himself is an expert in war, said:

"Such an electric column would queer every mechanism on a warship, stop the engines, anoint the dynamo, kill the signaling apparatus, make the guns unworkable, shatter hundreds of men by shock alone and might even explode the magazines. Its possibilities for offensive warfare are almost unlimited. Of course I don't say its absolute efficiency yet is assured, but from certain knowledge I can say in entire confidence that the experiments made point convincingly in this direction."

RUSSIAN CZAR IN ENGLAND

SPECTACULAR AND IMPRESSIVE WAS THE RECEPTION ACCORDED BY KING EDWARD.

A GREAT NAVAL PAGEANT

One Hundred and Fifty British Warships Lined Up and Reviewed by Czar—Extra Precaution Taken to Safeguard Royal Visitor.

Cowes, Aug. 2.—The first official visit of the Russian emperor, Nicholas, to England, was one of the most spectacular and impressive events that Cowes, accustomed to naval pageantry, ever witnessed. King Edward, with most of the members of the royal family, put out this morning on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert and met the Russian imperial yacht Standart and the squadron of warships accompanying it off Spithead at noon.

Emperor Nicholas immediately went on board the British royal yacht, where he was greeted by King Edward and after the monarchs had partaken of luncheon the Russian squadron, with the Victoria and Albert leading the way, reviewed the British fleet. The British had 150 ships aligned in three files between Cowes and Spithead. There were twenty-six battleships, of which seven were Dreadnoughts, sixteen armored cruisers and eight other cruisers, forty-eight torpedo boat destroyers and shoals of submarines.

Besides the warships there were hundreds of yachts of all kinds, from the largest steamer to the small sailers at anchor. All were decorated with flags and the Russian warships fired a salute of twenty-one guns, which made a tremendous din and covered the water with a haze of blue smoke.

The Russian squadron was made up of the imperial yacht Standart and its consort, the Polar Star, and the big lead-colored cruisers Admiral Makharoff and Rurik, and two torpedo boat destroyers. The British steamers and marines manned ship as the inspector squadron passed through the lines, all the British bands played the Russian national anthem and the crews of both nationalities gave three cheers for each other.

King Edward, Emperor Nicholas and the prince of Wales and Admiral Sir John Fisher, chief naval aid to King Edward, and Reginald McKenna, first lord of the admiralty and a number of lesser officials, were on the bridge of the Standart. The salutes from the warships seemed to have had their effect on the lowering clouds for rain was falling when the royal and imperial yachts anchored off Cowes at 5 o'clock.

The scene along the shore was as interesting as that afloat. Crowds lined the waters of the sound for miles and all the houses were draped with bunting and flags. The yacht races which had been going on for some time lost their usual interest for everyone was interested in the visit of the Russian imperial family.

The measures taken to safeguard Emperor Nicholas made him seem like a prisoner of state when compared with other royal personages who have visited Cowes during regatta week.

The Standart dropped anchor between battleships of the Dreadnought type which are surrounded by other vessels, while small boats patrol about the visitors constantly. Scotland Yard has 100 detectives at Cowes and the Russian police department has an equal representation. The emperor will remain aboard ship during his visit except for a brief trip ashore to the Cowes naval school Wednesday morning.

Cowes week will be a brilliant one. Three American yachts are in the harbor, Morton F. Plant's Jolanda, Allison Armour's Otowana, with Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Mott aboard; and that of Andrew Devel, Marguerite, which Mrs. W. H. Leeds has chartered for the week. Each of the American boats is entertaining a large party. Sir Thomas Lipton's Erin and the Empress Eugenie's Thistle are conspicuous among the flotilla.

Tonight the Russian emperor and empress dined with King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the members of the British royal household on board the Victoria and Albert. Sir Edward Grey and M. Iswolsky, respectively British and Russian foreign ministers, also attended the function.

All the ships in the harbor were illuminated tonight.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.
A. S. Nashum, Halesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar, it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success. Sold by all druggists."

PECULIAR PHENOMENA.

Smoke in Mountain Leads Indians to Think Volcano is Active.

Denison, Texas, Aug. 2.—Cal. Berggett, who has spent several weeks in the mountain districts of eastern Oklahoma, reports a remarkable occurrence. In the mountain peaks, about twenty miles from the Arkansas line, a cloud of smoke is issuing from a large crevice in the rock. It is more dense in the morning and at evening it dies out and is superseded by a very strong smell of sulphur. The full-blooded Indians think that it is the forerunner of a volcano.
