

KNIGHTS COLUMBUS CONVENTION SOON

STATE CONVENTION WILL OPEN
FOR A THREE-DAY SESSION
MAY 19.

OVER 500 ARE EXPECTED

Elaborate Plans of Entertainment
Have Been Made by Members of Local Lodge.

Members of the order of Knights of Columbus to the number of at least 500 will be in Tulsa for three days next month to attend the ninth annual state convention of the organization, which was recently secured for Tulsa through the efforts of local members. The convention opens on Sunday, May 19, and will extend over a period of three days.

The convention last year was held at Seattle and at that time it was thought that the 1914 meeting would go to Chicago. However, as they failed to complete their plans, the local lodge succeeded in having the executive board name Tulsa for the meeting.

Elaborate plans are being made by the Knights of Tulsa for the entertainment of the visitors. It is freely predicted by the local committee that there will be at least 500 members of the organization in attendance, and many of their wives and children will also be present.

The convention proper opening on Sunday the majority of that day will be spent in lodge work. However, a banquet in honor of the visiting delegates will be given at 7:30 o'clock by the Tulsa Altar society.

The delegates will be given an automobile ride over the city in the afternoon of the second day, and following that will be driven to several of the oil fields.

The annual election of officers will also be held during the convention. Thomas W. White, district attorney, chairman, M. J. McNulty, trustee, T. J. Quinn, trustee, and John T. Blair, trustee, are members of the committee in active charge of preparing for the entertainment of the half thousand Knights of Columbus who will come from all the principal cities of the state.

Following is the program which will be carried out:

HOME TALENT PLAY

FOR SICK BABIES

PROCEEDS WILL BE USED FOR

WORK AMONG THE POOR

IN TULSA.

Some of the most progressive ladies of Tulsa have formed a Community Nurse association. The ladies composing the board are Mrs. A. J. Hall, Mrs. James M. Gillette, Mrs. S. E. Dunn, Mrs. J. M. Ward, Mrs. Frank Sowers, Mrs. Ed Perry, Mrs. Oscar Howard, Mrs. Ora Frost, Mrs. F. E. Shallenberger, Mrs. Sing Parrish, Mrs. J. E. Croble, Mrs. P. H. Greer.

A special committee, consisting of Mrs. A. L. Cook, Mrs. Ed Perry and Mrs. Ora Frost as chairman, were appointed to make special arrangements and report to the board.

The ladies are deeply interested to raise money to carry on the work. They have also decided to provide a detention camp in one of the parks, where sick babies will have expert attention, and will also be supplied with pure and wholesome food. Quite a number of donations have come in. Mr. Paul Galloway will furnish the camp with ice for the summer. The community nurse, Miss Virginia Swift, has certainly been a busy person for the past two months, having made 186 visits to the sick, has made 80 calls and has taken care of 16 patients at the court house. This line of work is supplying a long-felt need. It is carried on in a large way in many of the large cities. Just now we have visiting with us a Mrs. Key from Scotland. This lady has spent her life in charitable work and founded many homes for the poor in London under Queen Victoria and in Holland under Queen Wilhelmina.

Mrs. Key will give a lecture on the great importance of this work at the home of Mrs. F. H. Greer. The ladies have decided to give a home talent play as one way to raise money for their work. They have selected the Katzenjammer Pienie, a musical comedy. It is a musical comedy and is bright and sparkling. A good many of the funny people of the comic section of the papers will be represented, besides the grown-ups, a large number of children will take part and this is one of the principal reasons for selecting this play. In the work for children it was thought advisable to have the children assist. The ladies have chosen the cast which is composed of the popular young people of the town, who are taking an active interest.

Mrs. Clara Louise Payne of Los Angeles has been engaged as director and rehearsal are progressing finely. Thursday night the Elks gave the use of their dance hall for a big rehearsal. The children are being drilled during the day. The Pienie will call for a large number of people. Everything will be done to make the Katzenjammer Pienie a grand success. It will be given at the Grand Opera House Friday night, May 8, where you will not only have an evening of great fun, but you will contribute to a most worthy cause.

NEW BALL PARK TO BE READY FRIDAY

GRANDSTAND WILL BE COMPLETED IN TIME FOR THE OPENING GAME.

DECLARE HALF HOLIDAY

Plan a Big Parade to Usher in the Baseball Season in This City.

The new grandstand will be ready for the 1909 Tulsa team next Friday afternoon. This was the announcement made yesterday by officials of the Tulsa club. The grandstand is now in final condition. All will be in readiness for the opening day.

The new park, situated as it is within a few blocks of the heart of the business district, it is reasonable to expect good crowds at all the games played here this season. Of course it is necessary to have a good ball team to draw interest in the league but that has been left to Manager Howard Price who is now over afternoons working with an aggregation of 20 men who are fast and active as any players who have ever traveled in this class of organized ball.

Additional insurance is given for a record breaking crowd at Friday's game as Mayor Frank M. Woodson has declared a half holiday and already the majority of the leading merchants have agreed to close their places of business.

Arrangements are now being made by local officials for a gigantic parade to be headed by the Tulsa band and city officials. The new commissioners will have then taken office to march through the business section of the city just before the game starts. It is thought that a parade that could be at least three miles in length could easily be formed for the occasion.

FIGHT THE MOSQUITO NOW.

An Ounce of Prevention Means Added Health and Comfort.

With the coming of spring awakes the female mosquito, which has hibernated among the farmers' ices and the warm rafters in your basement or barn or in some other comfortable spot. This modest, sluggish lady insect has been without food since November, so she is weak. She is, true enough, ferociously hungry. Luckily for you and those of your flesh, her proboscis is so flabby and feeble that it will require a very hot night before she will have vigor enough to dart her fangs into your skin.

The mosquito of yesterday, of last fall, begins to move and have her feelings—the gentlemen mosquitoes are much slower to get going—in April and May, but she needs really warm weather to become really active. She may not bite you or capture your blood until late in May or June.

Once she is filled with good, red blood she is ready to lay her eggs. Once her eggs are laid the little wrigglers hatch out. Once these watery nymphs get to going it is less than a fortnight when 200 new mosquitoes are growing where one grew before. With in two or three months, usually by August or September, the demons with triple-bladed pitchforks begin their assault upon your anatomy and your parts of speech.

Meanwhile it is all your own fault. If you had guarded around in March and April and waited until that simple, solitary, lone female mosquito you would not have been exposed to danger of dengue, malaria or yellow fever in the summer and fall. Your horses would have escaped danger of sickness and so Peep's sheep would be less likely to have blue tongue.

These ailments are all transferred from person to person and from animal to animal by the bites of the Anopheles mosquito, the Culex or house mosquito and the tsetse fly, mite, etc.

Not only are these pests an annoyance from their bites and stings, but they are a menace to life, a destroyer of health and efficiency and a source of disintegration of civilization. Roman civilization might never have succumbed to the Goths and Vandals, or even to internal dissensions, had not the energies and vitality of the people been sapped and eaten up by mosquito maladies, such as malaria. The eradication of vicious mosquitoes from the Roman campaigns will mean the rehabilitation of Italian health and power.

It therefore behooves the alert housewife to take time by the forelock and kill mosquitoes early. In March, April and May the death of one mosquito may prevent the development of millions in September.

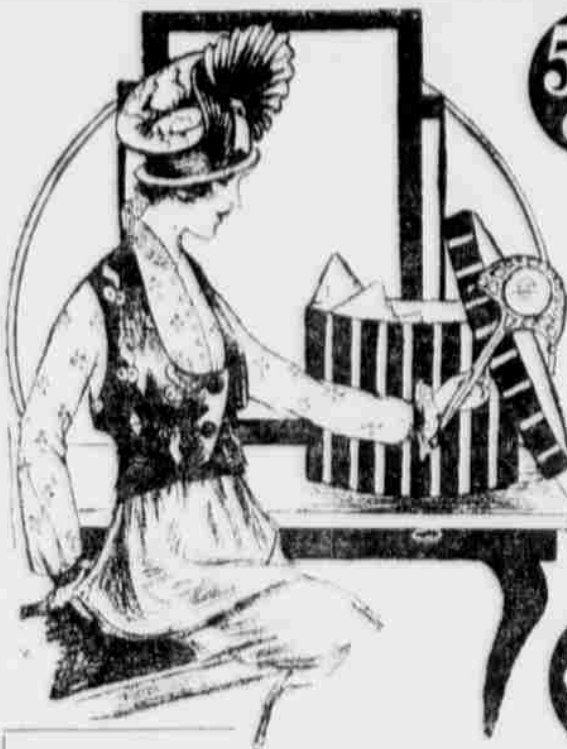

Make, therefore, no invidious distinctions, but annihilate all mosquitoes, winter, spring, summer and fall. Search among the wooden crevices of the kitchen, dig among the rafters in the cellar. Investigate the garret and the attic. Look high! Look low!

Then screen the windows and doors. Put nets above the beds. Allow no gutters, gutters, or standing water anywhere. Mosquitoes cannot breed or lay their eggs except in water or mud puddles. Their babies must swim about in order to escape their enemies and death.

Vases, tin, cups, tubs, rainpots, outhouses, buckets, rain barrels and pools all invite the long-legged mosquito left alive from mist fail to deposit her raft of eggs in their inviting water. If these are lacking, she flies away or flies to other climes for conquest.

Weeds and bushes and trees near puddles, pools, ditches and ponds should be kept clear. Paraffin crude oil or other kinds of petroleum must be used to spray the collections of water that cannot be drained away.

Finally, keep your house well aired, breezy and light in the daytime and dark at night. Mosquitoes seek darkness by day—a hand searchlight will Pyrethrum powder will kill them if burned in a room. The dried insects must then be swept out before they revive. The pain of mosquito bites is quickly alleviated by the application of an alkali soap, ammonia, bicarbonate of soda or camellia lotion.
