pen—either the president would refuse to go further with the treaty and put it in one of the pigeon holes of the state department occupied by other treaties that have been abandoned, or he would submit the amendment to the nations associated with the United States in the war for consideration. Let us suppose, for argument, that he submitted the amendment to the other nations associated with the United States, what would they do with it? Does anyone believe that they would accept it? Does anyone be-
