

FAIR BARBECUE IS VOTED A SUCCESS

Realtors Determined to Push Sale of Lots Near Exposition

More than $40,000 was derived from the sale of lots Saturday afternoon in Jagon park. Summit Heights, but the barbecue staged by the Tulsa Exposition officials to celebrate the conclusion of the sale turned out to be a premature celebration, since there are about 100 lots left, it is announced.

Members of the Tulsa Real Estate Exchange, however, are not discouraged, according to C. H. Terwilliger, in fact, efforts to sell the remaining lots will be redoubled this week, says M. J. Glass, president of the exchange.

Realtors plan a canvass of all office buildings and business institutions this week.

To Go Through With Plans.
"We started this thing for the benefit of the exposition and were going through with it," says J. C. Hedden, another member.

Two complete blocks were sold Saturday and quite a number of lots in other blocks. Hedden, who is president of the Tulsa Real Estate Exchange, said that he obtained upon payment of the initial $50, although he had previously bought 10.

The barbecue was voted a big success by the 600 who attended. The quality was exceeded only by the quantity and what was left was taken to the Tulsa Boys' home by Mr. Shaw.

Hart Praises Exposition.
That the stock of the Tulsa Live-stock and Industrial exposition is worth three or four for one right now, is the opinion of Harry Hart, Okmulgee president of the Oklahoma Hereford Breeders' association, who attended the sale, accompanied by J. C. McClure, secretary of the association, and other Okmulgeans. Mr. Hart is a stockholder in the enterprise.

"Though I did not purchase stock as a monetary investment, I wouldn't sell it today for three or four times what I paid for it," said Mr. Hart. "The plan of financing the building of the grounds and buildings largely through the sale of lots and the fact that work on the tract is now under way add greatly to the stability of the stock issue."

Visitors to the site were intensely interested in the work being done on the race track by the ex-service men and expressed admiration for the super-mechanical labor performed by the caterpillar tractors.

Run Gauntlet HUNDRED TIMES
Russian Refugees Punish Theft Their Own Way

TERIOKI, Finland, May 7.—The 4,000 refugees from the recent Kronstadt revolution in Russia, who are quartered in Finnish concentration camps here and at Ivalo have just given a striking example of bolshevik discipline.

The refugees are being fed by American Red Cross officers. The other day one of them was caught by his fellow in the act of stealing a larger share of food than was due to him.

The others formed a committee, tried the man, found him guilty of stealing food, and then appeared before a Red Cross officer.

"Please give us enough guns to form a firing squad," they demanded. "We have found the man stealing food and will execute him immediately."

Insist on Punishment.
"But he must be punished," they insisted.

"All right," said the officer, "but no shooting goes here."

The committee then made the thief strip, although the weather was bitterly cold, forced a long line in the woods, including about 350 men, and made the guilty man walk two times from one end of the line to the other, shouting "I'm a thief!"

Discipline in these refugee camps has been excellent, maintained through the orders of Stephen Petrichenko, the 29-year-old sailor who was president of Kronstadt and the leader of the revolt. Yet Finnish authorities are much worried over their presence in Finland. The Kronstadt men, while opposed to the communists, are a bit too radical in their views to suit the Finnish authorities, who have had a "red" problem at home for a long time.

Presence Embarrasses.
This, and the fear that the American Red Cross cannot continue to feed them indefinitely, has caused Finland to consider various means of getting rid of them. Some 8,000 and 25,000 other Russian refugees who are in the country. The government would like to have the league of nations take them off its hands.

When the Kronstadt garrison arrived at Terioki the men were half starved. Ten days of good American food changed their appearance wonderfully, and some of them, unused to white bread and a diet containing a large proportion of fats, found it so rich that they were ill and their diet had to be reduced.

ECLESIASTICS IN PEACE MOVE

English of Catholic Religion Attempting to End Irish Wars

By WILLIAM L. MALLABAR, N. B. Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, May 7.—English ecclesiastical circles are taking an important part in the new Irish peace movement. A meeting of prelates was held here this morning when it was proposed to send a delegation to Cardinal Bourne, suggesting that the cardinal formulate an invitation to Eamon DeValera, president of the Irish republic, to come to London to canvass the whole peace issue. It had been reported that DeValera was on his way to London and would arrive today, but British officials professed ignorance of the proposed visit.

"We will never cease to maintain that there is a community of interest between our countrymen in the northeastern corner of Ireland (Ulster province) and the people of Southern Ireland," said DeValera in a conciliatory article which he wrote for the Irish Independent.

This article was regarded in some circles as a peace feeler to the unionists of Ulster, an opinion that was borne out by the conference between DeValera and Sir James Craig, leader of the unionists of Ulster at Dublin.

The Ulster unionists issued a manifesto suggesting that after the elections to the northern and southern Ireland parliaments that both legislatures be combined to form a constituent assembly to arrange a settlement for the whole country.

Sir James Craig, in a speech at Belfast Friday night, appealed for the support of the majority, "so as to be able to speak constitutionally in behalf of Ulster province."

Premier Lloyd George is understood to be opposed to a visit to England by DeValera at this time. Furthermore, the premier wants "England and English influence" kept out of the negotiations believing that they would jeopardize a settlement. It is the premier's idea, that to be lasting, an agreement should be reached exclusively between the opposing political factions in Ireland.

DUBLIN, May 7.—Official announcement was made by the Sinn Fein this afternoon that Eamon DeValera is in Ireland and that he will treat all peace overtures in Ireland instead of going to London.

STREET CAR HEARING
City Attorney Wants Both Lines to Reach Owen Park Over Single Track—Bosler Objects.

The corporation commission of Oklahoma will hold a hearing in Tulsa tomorrow to take up petition of Frank E. Duncan, city attorney, that the Tulsa Street railway abandon its Owen park line from Archer and Nogales and continue to the park on the line of the Oklahoma Union railway.

Mr. Duncan's idea is that such a plan will save the KATY from the expense of two subways, its program being to make such an improvement at Quannah avenue.

Interchangeable street car transfers are also suggested by Mr. Duncan. Representatives of the Tulsa Street railway, do not object to the plan, says Supt. B. Hillburn, Manager of the Tulsa Street railway, does not favor it.

H. Hosier of Dayton, Ohio, president of the Tulsa Street railway, is with the commission's hearing.

JENKS WILL HAVE NEW STATE BANK

New Banking Institution Will Open for Business Monday

The First State Bank of Jenks, a new banking institution with a capital stock of $125,000 will open for business tomorrow, according to word brought to Tulsa Saturday by R. E. Steigleder, vice president, who will be in active charge of the bank. The First State bank will occupy the building formerly used by the Bank of Jenks, which was closed during the past week by the state bank commissioner. The new bank starts with a clean slate having no connection with the former institution. The First State bank was organized by L. R. Steigleder, R. E. Steigleder, and W. O. King, all of Jenks. L. R. Steigleder, who will be president, is vice president of the Farmers National bank of Jenks, and will remain actively with that institution. R. E. Steigleder, who is the new vice president, also was connected with the Farmers National bank as cashier, and W. O. King, cashier, formerly was assistant cashier of the First National bank of Jenks. All are alert, progressive young men who have made a name for themselves at Jenks and its success, according to Tulsa bankers, is assured from the start. R. E. Steigleder, in addition to his country bank experience, was for some time employed by the First National bank of Tulsa, and is highly regarded by the officers of that institution.

Electric Rate Ordered Reduced.
By Associated Press Wire.
OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7.—A letter was sent today by the state corporation commission to the Oklahoma Gas & Electric company, which supplies electricity to Oklahoma City, instructing the company to reduce the domestic electric rate 15% per cent on June 1. The new rate would be 10c per kilowatt hour for the first 50 kilowatt hours and 15c per kilowatt hour for the balance of the month. The present rate is 12c. Lower price of fuel used in making electricity was given as the reason for the reduction.

There Is a-Plenty of REASON IN and REASONS FOR the 44-Hour Week!

To the Honorable Court of Public Opinion:

Two years ago there was an agreement drawn up by the Joint Conference Council a deliberative body formed equally of representatives of employers and employees in the printing industry, wherein it was specified that on and after May 1, 1921, 44 hours should constitute a week's work in all book and job printing offices within the jurisdiction of the closed shop branch of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (employers' organization). At that time proprietors of the union offices in Tulsa were constituent members of the bodies named, or at least, tentative members. Why the change of front—not only in Tulsa, but elsewhere in Oklahoma and the nation? Some printing house employers in America do not look upon this agreement as a "scrap of paper" and have kept faith with us, notably, New York city, where three-fifths of the nation's printing is done. If the printing craft unions had failed to live up to their agreement, there would have been a howl from the employers that would have cracked the heavens and rocked the earth.

About Keeping Faith

This agreement was made in order that some base might be established upon which to compute costs, etc., not only during the recession but to remedy a cost-and-price chaos that has been prevalent in the printing industry for decades. Since these employers have backed out, where are we "at"? The estimate that printing costs will increase 7 per cent is rather extravagant, according to the Joint Conference Council, and the cost of the printing of the "tickets" are filed of each job and referred to from time to time. What is known of the 44-hour working week until it shall have been tried—and after a sufficient period of trial all classes of work? The local employers who are selling the loudest have not employed union printers since last February. What, we rise to inquire, are THEY hollering about?

President Hicks of the Denver Typographical Union, has computed and set out concretely that the printing of the 44-hour week, nine years more in which to be useful and needful to society and no one questions the value of printing in our modern complex life. The Typographical Union, under one name or another, has been in the business backward for more than a century, therefore, records are easily available. In 1850 printers worked 15 hours each day and the average age at death was 38. At that time Horace Greeley was prominent in typographical affairs, when the working day was cut to 11 hours, and a little later the average age at death was 32. When we had reduced the working day to 10 hours, we were 38 years old, and our years to 38.75. The 8-hour day still further increased our lease of life. These figures seem prosaic, no doubt, but they are more than significant as an equation in human welfare. In all fairness, is there anything "radical" or even questionable, in this?

Live and Let Live

The International Typographical Union has been criticized from time to time about "minimizing" the number of apprentices. Here are the facts: There are no more apprentices in any office than the number which can be taught the craft. If there were more (as the employer GUESSES he would like to have), it would take still more of the journeyman printers' valuable time to instruct apprentices, thus creating loss in productive time. It is very difficult to secure apprentices for the composing rooms—it is a very "confining" place for the buoyant spirits of the average boy, and many of whom are not sufficiently educated even to start in the craft.

What commonly is called the "country printer" is the greatest source of recruits to the craft—union or non-union. So this talk about limiting of apprentices is negligible. The craft has ceased to be attractive even to many of our older, more experienced members, many of whom have left the craft in utter disgust at wages, hours, and general conditions. With all the present day "honest" business, there are none too many printers, and for this very reason. Why, then, not make it more attractive?

Concerning Apprentices

They say it's "non-hazardous." It is not hazardous necessarily from dangers lurking about machinery, but how about sanitary conditions in the average composing room? Brother Tulsa, have a look at the job offices of our city—most of them in a common store room, or else windowed above some reeking alley, with insufficient light, sanitation or ventilation. The element of fetid air in the composing rooms of the country has given rise to hundreds and hundreds of our members in a common loathsome disease, which we refer to repeatedly as our "occupational" disease. Go with us to the Union House in Colorado Springs and see the poor devils lying around out there trying to get "the bugs" out of their lungs and you'll curse all the composing rooms in Christendom. Well, it all comes from the average office maintaining that unclean and unnecessary over-crowding in the end of the business, and ill-arranged, inconvenient, unsanitary quarters for the PRODUCTIVE department. It should not be that a union has to fight for such betterment—such measures should be given us, and because they are RIGHT.

M. Houch, who entered a plea of not guilty, was given a jury trial and was given a year and a day in the reformatory at Granite; Frank Wilson, forger, two years in penitentiary.

Laura D. McQuigg died yesterday at her home near Kellyville. Death was due to blood poisoning. The deceased was 43 years old. Funeral services were held this afternoon at Kellyville.

Girl Breaks Jaw.
Miss Marie Larkin, cashier at the Harvey House, was painfully injured when she fell from an automobile in which she was riding last night. Miss Larkin and a young man were in the car. According to the report, when they returned from a ride he attempted to stop the car and she jumped before he was able to do so. She fell on her face and broke her jaw. She was taken to a physician's office and later to the Sapulpa hospital.

Equipment for the parks of the city has begun to arrive and this includes two big giant strides, one swing with six seats, four slides, saws, basketball equipment, and three tennis courts, each 42 park seats, each seven feet long. This equipment will be distributed where it will be used the most. Some of it will be placed at the Pump Station park and some at the North Heights park.

Many cities all over Oklahoma are equipping grounds to be used for tourist parks, and Sapulpa is also one of these. The piece of land northeast of town, known as the Thompson 40, which is an excellent piece of ground for such purpose, is now being converted into a real "tourist's park." There are many trees on this land and a good spring of water. A well is to be dug or the spring cleaned, so that anyone wishing to camp there will have all the water needed. A large brick oven is being built and gas is being piped to the land so that there will be facilities for cooking other than by a campfire. This park is to be made attractive in every way and is to be placed on the road map so that travelers may know that a suitable place to pitch their camp for the night awaits them at Sapulpa, according to Commissioner Joe Gambill.

Four Paintings of Prominent Cherokee Indians Brought Here to Be Given Rejuvenating Touches.

Art treasures of the old Cherokee world were found last week in a farm house eight miles from Halliburton by William Silver, who has brought them here for retouching in his studio in the Ketchum hotel. They consist of four canvases of prominent Cherokee Indians painted in 1844 by J. N. Stanley, sent into the nation by the United States government to paint natives, the paintings to be hung in the art gallery at Washington.

The owner of the portraits considers them priceless. When his house burned years ago they were about the only things he saved from the fire. He says that the artist spent three months in the nation and that these were the only portraits he left behind.

One of the portraits is a picture of the father of Mrs. S. R. Lewis when he was about eight years old.
