Coroner's Jury in the Abbott Case Decides

THAT IT WAS AN ACCIDENT, AND

Neither Man Nor Company is Blamed for Negligence—The Dead Man's Brothers Take Away His Mangled Body. Railroad Company Clears Its Battery Property—Another Mill Accident.

Special Correspondence Evening Journal.

NEW CASTLE, June 20.—Coroner Kirk arrived in town early yesterday and empaneled a jury of inquisition in the case of the man, George Abbott, who was killed at the Delaware Iron Works on Saturday evening. It was fully expected that the jury would charge either the company or the man with negligence, but the jurors steered conspicuously clear of any details. The inquest began in the parlors of the Gilpin House at 2 o'clock and lasted until 3:30. Nine witnesses were heard, as follows: Samuel B. Abrams, Joseph H. Snavely, Jacob Saunders, James F. Cannon, John M. Hendricks, Tilghman Taylor, John W. Harris, Theodore Hatton and William Martin. Each witness was carefully examined and the testimony brought out practically the same story as was published in the EVENING JOURNAL of yesterday, as to the details of the frightful accident. The jury, after lengthy consideration, made the following verdict:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this jury that the deceased, George Abbott, came to his death because of an accident at the Delaware Iron Works (Morris, Tasker & Co.'s Works) on Saturday, June 17, 1893, between the hours of 4 and 4:30 o'clock, p. m., by being caught on a shaft while at his regular occupation."

The members of the jury were: William W. Simpson, foreman; William J. Hunter, secretary; George W. Eckles, William Herbert, Jefferson Downham, Theodore W. Hanf, B. Frank Eckles, George T. Swan.

Abbott's three brothers, who arrived here yesterday morning, took the body

Repairs to a Light Vessel.

The Lighthouse Board gives notice that on or about July 6, light vessel No. 40, now moored about four and a half miles to the southward and eastward of Five Fathom Bank, off the southeast of New Jersey and the entrance to Delaware bay, will be removed from her station for repairs, and replaced without change in characteristic of lights, by Relief Life Vessel No. 37. This vessel has two masts and is schooner rigged, with a large black ball day mark at the main mast-head (instead of red) and a day mark at each masthead; hull yellow (instead of straw color) with the word "Relief" in large black letters on each side and "37" in large black figures on the stern.

Injured at Lea's Mills.

D. C. Heacock, the well-known miller, was painfully injured at the William Lea and Sons Company's New Castle mills yesterday. Mr. Heacock was examining some machinery when a heavy knife fell and struck him just below the knee, inflicting an ugly gash.

Incidents of the Day.

James Dougherty has had an American flag raised over his present residence 1404 South Water street—Freebury's boat house below the rolling mills. James is a pensioner of Uncle Sam's.

John T. Sloops yesterday received a large boat load of bar sand. This is the first bar sand to land direct ever in New Castle and builders will not be slow to appreciate it.

John Reynolds who has been in St. Agnes's Hospital, Philadelphia, has returned home feeling greatly improved in health.

Over fifty people on Market street yesterday witnessed a fight between two women. Fistic exchanges and hair pulling was the order of the day. Too much beer on board was the cause.

A lively tussle between two dogs took place on Delaware street last evening much to the disgust and inconvenience of passers by. How about the muzzle ordinance? It is nearly time to have it or a substitute brought into effect for 1893, for dog fights are getting to be a frequent occurrence.

To Cool Spring, Del., this morning at 8:30. The brothers were greatly affected and refused to be comforted.

At the same time that Captain Madden was informed there would be no more games of ball on the Battery Park permitted, the hobby-horse carousel was ordered to move. It went on the EXHIBITION EXERCISES AT DOVER.

Given by the Middle Class of Conference Academy—Other Exercises This Week. Special Correspondence Evening Journal.

DOVER, June 20.—The middle class exhibition of the Conference Academy was held in the Academy Hall, last evening. A great many were present. The following was the program: Piano duo, Misses May B. Hobson and E. L. Bryan; essay, "The Working Woman of the Day," Miss Annie E. Miles, Fairmount, Md.; oration, "Sunday Observance," Harry R. Baker, Seaford; essay, "Self-revelation of a Poet," Miss Cornelia Townsend, Odessa; vocal solo, "Fiddie and I," Miss Clara B. Prettyman, accompanied by a violin obligato, by Miss Spencer. Miss Prettyman is a charming singer and was heartily applauded. Oration, "James G. Blaine," George R. Ellis, Woodland; essay, "American Invention," Miss Lillie R. Lektie, Ellendale; oration, "Martin Luther," John H. Beachamp, Fairmount, Md.; violin solo, Miss Katherine R. Spencer; essay, "The Effect of Environment on Character," Miss Ollie Harper, Still Pond, Md.; oration, "Americanism," Arley B. McGee, Georgetown. The young man was well acquainted with his subject, and became very enthusiastic during his delivery and won rounds of applause. Essay, "An Embodied Spirit," Miss Katherine Rebecca Spencer, Dover. Miss Spencer is a fine violinist and delivered her essay, as the greater part of it dwelt on the violin.

The exercises of the evening closed with a duo for piano and organ, by Harry R. Baker and Miss Conkling, which was well executed.

To-morrow evening a reception will be held in the Academy Hall for the students.

On Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the class-day exercises will be held on the academy campus. This is a new feature here and a pleasant time is anticipated. In the evening, at 8 o'clock, Dr. T. B. Meely, D. D., will deliver the address before the Scott Literary Society.

CLUBBED HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Fred. Eck Thought She Was "a Burglar and Fainted When He Saw What He Had Done.

Pocomoke City, June 20.—Fred. Eck narrowly escaped killing his wife's mother, Mrs. J. W. Silverthorn, last night, thinking she was a burglar. About 3 a. m., Mr. Eck was awakened by a noise and by his wife calling to him that there was "some one in the house."

The supposed intruder seemed to be making for their room and Mr. Eck seized an Indian club and stationed himself behind the door, and as his mother-in-law, who was going to their room to see something about the baby, appeared in the doorway, dealt her a stunning blow in the forehead, knocking her senseless.

Mr. Eck fainted when he saw what he had done and his wife's screams brought several neighbors to the scene. Medical aid was summoned and Mrs. Silverthorn was at length restored to consciousness. She is in a critical condition, but will probably recover. A large piece of the scalp was cut off. Had the blow fallen on the top or side of the head she would have been instantly killed.
