WORSER THAN SLAVES.

More Stories of Inhuman Treatment on the Navassa Phosphate Island.

PURTH AMBOY, N. J., Nov. 3.—About 60 excited men collected on Tenth street here and uttered threats against the Navassa Phosphate company. The company a year ago put up a notice at their New York office, 10 Battery place, calling for 100 men to go to the island of Navassa, in the West Indies. They offered to pay boatmen $13 a month and phosphate diggers $10 a week. The men were once boarded and lodged at the company's expense.

Sixty-five men shipped on the bark Albermarle, commanded by William Forbes. The bark is now lying in the Kill von Kull. It brought back 63 of the men. Two died of aneurism at Navassa. The survivors tell a pitiful story.

They say that when the vessel reached Navassa in December, 1892, they were searched and everything taken from them. Edward Reilly, one of the men, says he was imprisoned for 30 days because he complained of diseased meat given to him to eat. After digging the phosphate it was put into boxes, each holding two tons. A rope was put around a man's neck, and assisted by three of his fellow laborers he had to drag the phosphate over a tramway for a distance of two miles to the shore. When the men could not perform all of the heavy task set them, they were decked a half day's pay or put in prison. Frequently prisoners were strapped face downward to a heavy log.

The men suffered from thirst. The water they were given to drink was rainwater. Often it was two months old. They had to pay for bedding, clothing and tobacco at excessive rates at the company's store. The company's officers went about heavily armed to intimidate the workmen.

The men say they wrote letters of complaint to President Cleveland, but never received an answer.

The men at Perth Amboy allege that in 1891 workmen shipped to Navassa from Baltimore were so ill that a riot broke out. The United States warship Kearsarge was sent to Navassa to suppress it, and some of the men are in great distress and have been cared for by charitable people here. They say the Albermarle is nothing less than a slave ship, and they have consulted a local lawyer about placing an embargo upon it.

President Crawford of the Third National bank in Baltimore is said to be a director of the Phosphate company. The Albermarle's officers deny that any of the men were ill treated.

Some Little Fires.
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—The North Braddock public building, a large brick structure in Braddock, Pa., was entirely destroyed by fire.

BAR TO ADJOURNMENT.

Some Successful Filibustering Done in the House.

THE SESSION MAY BE PROLONGED.

The Coming Tariff Fight in the House is Foreshadowed by a Scene in That Body. The Sergeant-at-Arms Sent Out to Drum Up a Quorum.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The first skirmish over the tariff in the fifty-third congress occurred in the house, and after a deadlock lasting until 8:50 in the evening it resulted in a draw. The senate amendment to the urgency deficiency bill providing pay for senate employees during the recess and the fifty-first congress is now the only bar to final adjournment today. The senators on the conference committee declare they will never recede, and the house seems equally determined not to accept the amendment.

A resolution to adjourn Friday was reported by Mr. Catcheside of Mississippi from the committee on rules, and the previous question was joyfully and vociferously ordered. A lively debate followed, in which Representatives Terry of Arkansas and Clark of Missouri opposed any prolonged recess or adjournment.

Resolved to Adjourn.

The yeas and nays on the adjournment resolution were called for and resulted in its passage by an affirmative vote of 134 to 83 in the negative.

The time which followed was occasioned by the fact that the house passed the adjournment resolution before Mr. Wilson put in his resolution to authorize his committee to sit during the approaching recess, and it was upon that resolution that was raised the point of no quorum.

The adjournment resolution in the senate was referred to the committee on appropriations, so that there is good prospect of delaying adjournment.

A resolution was adopted revoking leaves of absence and instructing the sergeant-at-arms to arrest absentees.

For three hours the members of the house waited patiently for the appearance of the absentees. Meantime the deputies of the sergeant-at-arms were scouring the city with subpoenas for absent members.

At 7:40 Mr. Wilson moved to dispense with further proceedings under the call. This was for the purpose of developing whether or not the Democrats had a quorum of their own present.

The Democrats themselves voted against the motion. The vote resulted 9 to 150. Upon the announcement Mr. Reed arose and offered to compromise.

It being apparent, he said, that no quorum was present on the Democratic side, and if one were to be obtained the siege would be much prolonged, he proposed that the size of the transaction did not warrant a protracted fight, a counter proposition to amend the resolution giving the yeas and means committee permission to sit during the recess so as to permit the chairman to file the tariff bill, with the understanding that the reports thereon shall be filed not less than 10 days later.

This proposition Mr. Wilson accepted, provided the word "tariff" before bill be changed to "revenue." The controversy being amicably settled, the house proceeded to untangle the parliamentary knot into which it had worked itself, after which Mr. Sawyer, from the committee on appropriations, presented the conference report on the urgency deficiency bill, and asked that the house insist on its disagreement to the senate amendment to pay $30,000 to senate employees for work done during the recess of the fifty-first congress. He explained that all the money should have come out of the contingent fund of the senate, and that the last congress had refused to pay it. The house, by a vote of 139 to 4, decided to not recede from its position. Then at 8:50 the house adjourned.

In the Senate.
The house joint resolution allowing the Columbian museum at Chicago to accept or purchase articles for its own exclusive use free from customs duties was passed by the senate, all other portions of the resolution being struck out. A conference has been asked on the disagreeing votes.

The senate bill to grant right of way to the Kansas, Oklahoma Central and Southwestern Railroad company through the Indian Territory and Oklahoma territory was reported from the committee on Indian affairs and passed.

The house bill providing for constructing a steam revenue cutter for service on the great lakes not to exceed $175,000 was reported and passed.

The senate discussed the cyclone relief resolution, and a strong argument was made in its favor by Mr. Call. Mr. Stewart introduced another free coinage silver bill.

Mr. Hoar made an effort to obtain action on the bill for the relief of the sufferers from the cyclone on the sea islands and along the coast of South Carolina and Georgia. The third reading of the bill was objected to by Mr. Cockrell, and the vice president ruled that under the rule it could not have its third reading just then.

Then a motion was made by Mr. Gorman to refer the bill to the committee on appropriations.

That motion was discussed until 2 o'clock, when the bill went over without action, and the Chinese bill was taken up and finished.

The Chinese bill is the house bill amended. It extends for six months the time under which Chinese can register under the Geary law and for the deportation after this time of any Chinese laborer found in the United States without certificate of registration. It provides that the word laborer shall be construed to mean skilled and unskilled laborers, while a Chinese merchant shall be a Chinaman devoted exclusively to mercantile pursuits and not engaged as a laborer at all.

It changes the provisions of the Geary law concerning witnesses in that instead of requiring a white witness it requires that the witness shall be other than a Chinaman. Pending the order of deportation the Chinaman to be deported cannot be bailed. Certificates of registration are to contain the photograph of the applicant.

CLARENCE KING INSANE.

The Eminent Geologist Confined in an Insane Asylum.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Mr. Clarence King, who was once director of the United States geological survey, and who is a member of the Metropolitan, Knickerbocker, Union League, Century and Tuxedo clubs, has been committed to an insane asylum.

Mr. King's home is in Newport, but for several weeks he has been living at the Union League club and at the home of his parents in this city. It could not be learned to which asylum he had been committed, but in all probability it is Bloomingdale.

Mr. King was born in Newport, R. I., Jan. 6, 1842, and is a descendant of Daniel King, who settled in Lynn, Mass., in 1647, and was one of the largest landholders of his day. Mr. King graduated at the Yale Sheffield Scientific school in 1863, and in the following year crossed the continent on horseback from the Missouri river to California, where he became a member of the geological survey of that state. He continued that work until 1866, making a careful study of the gold-belt of the Sierra mountains. It was through his discoveries that it was known that the gold-bearing rocks were determined.

COUNTERFEITERS IN A CAVE.

Hunters Discover the Hiding Place of a Gang of Money Coiners.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 3.—A gang of counterfeiters were surprised in the Laurel hills, about four miles from Waterford. They were discovered by two hunters, who saw three men coming out of an old cave, each carrying a satchel. The hunters called to them, but they refused to stop and ran into the mountains in the direction of New Florence. The hunters opened fire on them, which the counterfeiters returned, but none of the shots took effect.

The hunters then concluded to explore the cave and were astonished to find a full kit of counterfeiters' tools, such as molds, etc., also about 100 pounds of wool, a keg of whisky, several crocks of honey, bed-clothing, and other articles. They returned to Waterford and around the neighborhood and several of the people started in hot pursuit.

For several months past counterfeit money has been in circulation all through that section. The people are greatly excited.

A VITAL DECISION.
It Will Affect Illegal Registration Cases All Over New York.

ALBANY, Nov. 3.—A remarkable decision in an illegal registration case was made by County Judge Clute here, and is likely to affect registration all over the state unless the higher courts declare it void. He decided that the prosecution would have to prove that each and every person charged with registering illegally was not a soldier, sailor, pauper or criminal.

He ruled on article 2 of the constitution, which says: "No person shall lose a residence by reason of his absence while employed in the service of the United States, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of this state or of the United States or of the high seas, nor while a member of any seminary of learning, nor while kept at any almshouse or other asylum at public expense, nor while confined in any public prison."

The judge said, "I will strike no name from the lists unless proof is full and complete that no such parties exist and that they have no right to vote."

Rebellious Princeton Students.
PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 3.—Trouble was caused among the students by the rule adopted by the faculty in regard to the Thanksgiving day holiday. It requires that all students must register in the college before midnight on Nov. 20. The idea is to prevent the collegians from misbehaving in New York city after the football game.

ABOUT THAT SEA DUEL.

The Cruiser New York Will Not Interfere With It.

OUR ATTITUDE TOWARD BRAZIL.

What They Think at Washington Concerning the Possible Naval Duel Off Sandy Hook—The Fleets of President Peixoto and the Insurgent Mello.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A new feature of the Brazilian situation arising in connection with the purchase by President Peixoto's agents of American ships for use by Brazil in her civil troubles has been brought to the attention of the state and navy departments. This has its basis in the statements that have been printed in the newspapers that for the crack cruiser New York, now lying out for sea at the New York navy yard, would act as a convoy to the American vessels purchased by Brazil as far as the three mile limit off the Brazilian shore, or to some point near Brazilian territory, where they could be turned over to the government of Brazil, the manifest purpose being to thwart any attempts that might be made by Admiral Mello, commanding the insurgent fleet, to destroy the vessels before they reach Brazilian waters.

The Cruiser Will Take No Part.
Still another aspect of the case has been suggested to the officials—viz, that the New York is to convey the Brazilian fleet while the latter displays the American flag until some point near Brazil is reached, when the vessels are to be turned over to the existing government.

A reporter interviewed a number of officials on the subject. They treat the matter very lightly and scout the probability or even the possibility of any such events taking place as those referred to. The cardinal principle, it is asserted, which this government wants to have maintained and adhered to is that of noninterference with the affairs of Brazil.

To order the cruiser to be used for either of the purposes stated would be in direct contravention to this principle, and would be an announcement to the nations of the world that this republic had espoused the cause of Brazil and was arraigned on the side of the recognized government as against the insurgent party, which it has not even recognized as belligerent. To allow the New York to convey the vessels to Brazil would be analogous, it is said, to one of the United States cruisers now in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro acting as an escort to an unnamed Brazilian government vessel which desired to pass one of the forts now in the hands of the insurgents. Supposing, however, the probabilities of such actions, the conveyed ships, it is insisted, would not be any safer when they reached Brazilian waters with the escort of the New York than when they would be subject to attack just the same as if they were on the open sea, and no good result would be obtained.

Arms May Be Sold, Though.
Naval officers say they cannot recall any instances where action and interference, as this would be, has ever been resorted to on the part of this government, and they pronounce both reports to be simply imaginative and without any foundation in fact. The government might not, they insist, interfere in the domestic affairs of Brazil or any other country further than to protect its own citizens and see that they do not suffer as a result of internal difficulties.

It must be borne in mind, however, that there is nothing to prevent the shipment of arms and ammunition to Brazilian ports or to any other country by vessels flying the American flag.

In fact, the government does not restrict but rather encourages the sale of arms and ammunition to foreign powers, not with any desire, however, to meddle with their affairs and ammunition to Brazilian ports, but merely for the purpose of building up American industries.

But the line is emphatically drawn, and the government will promptly institute inquiries should it be led to believe that any vessel or vessels are being fitted out in this country for the use of any insurgent or revolutionary party. This was forcibly demonstrated in the case of the steamer Itata, which was fitted out on the Pacific coast with arms and ammunition for the insurgent party in Chili two years ago, but which was promptly pursued and overhauled by a vessel of the United States and her cargo forfeited.
