—The British steamship Allegheny cleared this port to-day for Cuba, loaded with a cargo of 1,236,462 gallons of oil from Marcus Hook.

SNOW HILL'S BUILDING BOOM.

New Buildings Going Up in All Parts of the Town—Ups and Downs of Packers.

SNOW HILL, Md., April 21.—The business section of Snow Hill has presented an animated scene this week. Brick masons are at work on the three stories of John J. Collins, an addition to T. H. Collins's store, a store for George S. Payne, on Pearl street, running through to Bank, one for William S. Wilson, on Washington street, and on Old Fellows' Hall. A concrete pavement has been put down in front of Johnson and George law offices, and carpenters have been building awnings in front of several stores.

It is supposed that work will soon be commenced on a drug store for Dr. Charles F. W. Hall, adjoining the Messinger Building on Pearl street, which will be put up by Rev. E. H. Nelson. Mr. Nelson will also build two other stores adjoining Dr. Hall's Richardson, Smith, Moore & Co. will build on the site of their old store, corner of Green and Pearl streets, and Levi A. Purnell a store-house on his property in the center of the town. Soon work will begin on the court house and jail, the contract for which has been awarded.

R. F. Ayers & Co., have recently disposed of the stock of peaches put up by them last season. Like many others who had held their stock over to see the prospects for a crop this year with the hope of realizing a big price, they lost faith too soon and sold out the week before the late freeze. This freeze destroyed the entire crop, and caused an advance of 20 per cent in the price of canned peaches. Preparations are being made for a much larger pack of tomatoes this year than ever.

Policy Backers Captured.

Another policy backer, in the person of Edward Green, colored, was arrested this morning, charged with policy backing. He and George Chippely, colored, were arraigned in the Municipal Court on the charge. Sergeant Massey testified that he arrested Chippely on information and found two policy books dated April 19, in his hat. Chippely was held in $1,000 bail for the upper court. Green will have a further hearing on Monday.

Dr. Grandison Recovers.

Dr. Grandison, pastor of Exton M. E. Church, this city, who, two months ago was declared insane, has recovered. He was sent to an asylum in the South and put under treatment. The doctors there said that his mind was unbalanced by hard study. He will preach at 10:30 o'clock to-morrow morning.

"Jonesey" Hunts Provisions.

Christopher Columbus Jones has left his "army" at Havre de Grace and has gone back to Philadelphia in search of provisions. He declares that he would rather go into Washington with one good "bun" than a dozen he would be ashamed of.

Committed to the Ferris School.

James Condon, a small boy, was found wandering about the streets last night, by the police. His parents have not been properly caring for him and he was committed to the Ferris Industrial School.

MURDER ON THE COAST.

MURDER ON THE COAST.

Michael Fiano Stabs a Fellow Countryman.

DEATH RESULTS INSTANTLY.

A Quarrel Over a Game of Bagatelle Results in the Death of Michael Pagliolunga—The Murderer Captured.

Another murder has occurred at Front and Market streets, the second within a year. An Italian was murdered by a fellow countryman after quarreling over a game of bagatelle.

Last night several Italians, who board at James Davis's restaurant, Rome, at No. 102 Market street, went into John M. Groppe's saloon at No. 105 Market street. Among them were Michael Pagliolunga and Michael Fiano. After the men had played several games of pool in the saloon, Pagliolunga and Fiano began arguing which of the two was the better player. Fiano contended that he was the best, and Pagliolunga claimed he was. Fiano threatened to stab Pagliolunga, but Mr. Groppe put him out of the saloon.

Pagliolunga and a number of friends remained in the saloon a few minutes, and then went across the street to the fruit and candy store of Mrs. Mary Desmond, No. 104 Market street. They sat down in the rear part of the store behind a partition. In the meantime Fiano had gone to his boarding house at Front and West streets, packed some clothing, and returned to Market street, evidently in the search of Pagliolunga. He went into the store and walked back of the partition where Pagliolunga was, and without a word drew a knife and grasped Pagliolunga by the throat. A scuffle began in which Fiano succeeded in plunging the knife into Pagliolunga's neck. Nichola Palumbo tried to grasp Fiano, but the latter turned and struck him, and he was thrown through the door. Pagliolunga died almost instantly. His body was allowed to remain where it fell until the arrival of Deputy Coroner Palmer, who removed it to the morgue.

The knife is believed to have severed the wind pipe and the aorta artery and caused death. The wound is about three-quarters of an inch long.

After Fiano escaped from Palumbo he ran out to the street, down Market and across the bridge, closely pursued by a crowd who had been attracted by the breaking of glass in the store where the murder occurred.

Officer Davidson, who was off duty, was in the shoe store of William Condon, No. 129 Market street, was attracted by the crowd and started in pursuit of Fiano in company with Palumbo. They met a colored man beyond the bridge who said he saw a man run toward South Wilmington. The officer and Italian left and went to the W. & N. railroad track in the direction of South Wilmington. They found that Fiano did not take this course, but went down Guthrie's lane. Finding that the bridge was turned up they took to a railroad siding and then went along it until they came to where E. O. and W. & N. tracks cross. Davidson and Fiano reached the crossing and then began a race along the B & O railroad branch. Fiano had several squares start, but the patrolman overhauled him within two squares of Head street, South Wilmington.

Palumbo was in the lead and Fiano, recognizing him, ordered him to stand back. Seeing that his man was going to fight, Officer Davidson drew his revolver and ordered Fiano to surrender. The prisoner was taken to a patrol box in South Wilmington and was sent to the City Hall.

The Slayer Held Without Bail.

Fiano was arraigned in the Municipal Court this morning and held without bail to await the action of the coroner's jury. When shown the knife with which it is claimed he stabbed Pagliolunga, he denied having had it in his possession. A coat splattered with blood was thrown over the prisoner's shoulders. A bandage was about his right wrist. Raffaele Spinto, Giovanni Progestino and Nicola Palumbo were each held in $1,000 bail as witnesses.

Deputy Coroner Palmer is arranging this afternoon to hold an inquest. He has empaneled a jury.

Fiano is about 45 years old. He is confined in the upper corridor of the City Hall. He was visited this morning by his wife and child and a number of fellow countrymen. The prisoner is cognizant of the result of his deed and lives in his cell in an apparently unconscious state. He feels his position keenly and appeared nervous the most of the time.

"STANDARD OF CHARACTER."

Riverview Grounds Being Put in Order for the Approaching Outdoor Sports.

Rev. L. W. Layfield, the new pastor of Epworth M. E. Church, will address the young men in Association Hall on Sunday afternoon. His subject will be "The Standard of Character."

The Riverview grounds are being put in order for the outdoor sports of the approaching summer. The fence has been repaired, and strengthened by setting the posts deeper into the ground and bracing them. The baseball diamond has been scraped, and the tennis courts laid out. The interest manifested by the young men and women augurs an active season for outdoor sports.

Given Away Free.

For one week only we will give away free, a copy of Portfolio No. 1, of the Famous Paintings of the World, to all who subscribe for the work. There will be twenty parts, each not less than six beautiful pictures to each part. For merit, paper, press work and beauty, this work is not equalled by any coupon work of its kind. It is from the famous press of J. J. Little & Co., of New York, which is a guarantee of its quality. Bring twenty cents and one coupon to the EVENING JOURNAL office, and get the first three parts.

The Awards Rejected.

The Street and Sewer Commissioners have rejected the turnpike condemnation awards and will ask Judge Grubb to appoint a new commission. They consider the awards too high. Should the next commission reduce the figures the turnpike companies will have an opportunity to ask for a review, but there is no appeal from the decision of the third commission.

Local Talent Next Saturday.

At the People's Theatre next Saturday the attraction will be the Mack and Woolery athletic and variety combination, which is composed entirely of home talent. There will be singing, boxing, wrestling, club swinging and specialty business.

Grand Opera House.

The A. M. Palmer Home Company will appear at the Grand Opera House on April 25 in "Saints and Sinners." There has been no more sterling attraction presented this winter to the patrons of Wilmington.

Building Permits Issued.

Building Inspector Dohi issued permits this morning: To E. J. & J. E. Corren, repairs to foundry, Nos. 301-325 Church street; Blackwell & Casady, back building, No. 200 West Eighteenth street.

To Repair the Canoe.

On Monday morning work will begin on the steamship Canoe at the yard of the Harlan and Hollingsworth Company. The vessel was put in the dock the early part of this week. She will be generally overhauled and the damage caused by her running ashore and collision repaired.

Four Generations Present.

Bright and Chippely at 105 Mrs. Hannah Chard Celebrates Her Birthday at Ferris, N. J.—Reminiscences of the Past.

The 105th birthday of Mrs. Hannah Chard was celebrated yesterday at Ferris, Gloucester county, "Aunt Hannah," seated in her old rocker, which is nearly as old as herself, and surrounded by relatives and friends from the surrounding counties, recounted reminiscences of her early life.

Mrs. Chard was born in New York state, but soon afterwards her parents moved to this city.

The farm of Joel Chard is located in one of the pleasant spots in Gloucester county, and for miles around the people know of yesterday's celebration, and dropped in to congratulate the more than centenarian.

While Mrs. Chard has no recollections of Washington, her mind retains very clearly the incidents of her residence on the battlefield of Brandywine. She went to school in Scammonville's historic schoolhouse, where the bloodstains were still on the walls, and was familiar with all the scenes about the Birmingham Meeting House, where the heaviest fighting of the battle was done. She also remembers the bustle and excitement incident to the war of 1812, with the rattle of artillery drawn through the streets and other military scenes.

Except for a languor incident to her great age, Mrs. Chard is in excellent health, and is able to move about the house with ease. She can still sew and darn, and attend to other light duties, but she needs somebody else to thread her needle as her sight is not good enough for that. In her time she has done some wonderful work with the needle, and at the residence of her son, William, at Port Norris, is a quilt containing several thousand pieces which are sewed together to represent all kinds of flowers.

Mrs. Chard's oldest child, if living, would be 81 years old. The three living sons, Joel, William and Jackson, are respectively 68, 64 and 59 years old, while after them come thirty-two grandchildren, eighty-two great-grandchildren and eleven great-great-grandchildren. During the afternoon religious services were held.

ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

THE CASE OF JAMES J. SPEAR BEGUN AT CHESTERTOWN.

He Killed John Brophy, a Farm Hand, in a Store at Massey's on December 6, 1893—The Prisoner is Young and Well Connected and Much Interest is Manifested.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., April 21.—James J. Spear, the handsome young murderer of John Brophy, is on trial here for his life.

The killing took place at a store at Massey's, in Kent county, on December 6, 1893. Spear, who is 25 years old, and connected with some of the most prominent families in the county, had always been very popular, and the most intense interest prevails. The court room is crowded, many among the crowd being women.

ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

THE CASE OF JAMES J. SPEAR BEGUN AT CHESTERTOWN.

He Killed John Brophy, a Farm Hand, in a Store at Massey's on December 6, 1893—The Prisoner is Young and Well Connected and Much Interest is Manifested.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., April 21.—James J. Spear, the handsome young murderer of John Brophy, is on trial here for his life.

The killing took place at a store at Massey's, in Kent county, on December 6, 1893. Spear, who is 25 years old, and connected with some of the most prominent families in the county, had always been very popular, and the most intense interest prevails. The court room is crowded, many among the crowd being women.

Rowan, the first witness, testified that Spear, upon being asked at the depot relative to Brophy, the man who was killed, having sworn out a writ for Watson Spear for having drawn a pistol on him, said he would go and lick Brophy, but saw no pistol.

Carroll Clark, clerk in Malsberger's store, where the shooting occurred, testified that he told Spear at the depot that Brophy was in the store, in response to a question as to whether or not he was there. Spear then had a pistol in his hand.

Malsberger, in whose store the shooting occurred, testified that Spear, after asking Brophy relative to the trouble with his brother, struck him. Brophy staggered back and picked up a weight and partially raised it, and by that time Spear had raised his pistol and was about to fire. He saw the pistol and shot. He repeated the warning several times.

Spear was put upon the stand by the defense, and testified that he had no pistol in his hand, as testified to by Clark and Numbers, but did change his pistol from his overcoat to his hip pocket. He said it was his habit to carry a pistol, and he was taking it to Malsberger's store to fulfill an engagement without knowing that Brophy was there.

He asked Brophy relative to having sworn out a writ for the arrest of his brother. Brophy said that he had had the writ issued. Spear then upbraided him for ingratitude, and cursed him and wielded a stick with which he had struck him, and testified that the man, after having been a number of times warned to drop the weight, drew back to throw it at him, and to save his life he fired and Brophy fell.

James E. Spear testified that Spear was talking to him at the car window. But had no pistol in his hand, and testified to by another witness. The defense made a vigorous effort to weaken the testimony of the witnesses of the state. H. W. Vickers and R. D. Hynson represent the defense and State's Attorney William M. Slay the prosecution. Judges Wickes and Stump are on the bench. The case is being tried before a jury and argument will begin to-morrow.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Joshua Simpkins" in Town.

"Joshua Simpkins" a rural comedy in four acts, was given at the Opera House last night. The play, as all the rouse lauders have said, is a reflection of "The Old Homestead." Arthur Sidman as "Joshua Simpkins" was very good, and Miss Eva Tanquary made a pleasing Eliza. D. E. Porter looked as funny and awkward as Samantha Twitters as a man engaged in women's dress. An excellent orchestra accompanies the troupe.

Grand Opera House.

The A. M. Palmer Home Company will appear at the Grand Opera House on April 25
