

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1882.

It is scarcely six weeks since the editor of the HERALD had a conversation with Mr. H. M. Newhall. He seemed then to be in at least a fair state of health, and spoke most hopefully of the fine crop of wheat he was about to harvest on his thirty thousand acre ranch in the neighborhood of Newhall station. He took a good deal of the idea of a bad season, and had evidently little idea that the great harvest, Death, was about to gather him in. He was a man of marked individuality and great force of character, and had accumulated a fortune in the auction business, a large portion of which he invested in this country. His death will be generally regretted. Men of his hopeful, self-helping spirit and enterprise can ill be spared in a region which, like Los Angeles county, is but in the initial of its development.

LOS ANGELES county, throughout its length and breadth, has taken on vernal robes. The lush grasses, the luxuriant malva, the vigorous and healthy looking grain fields, all show that the season, though late, will be a specially abundant one. Mr. D. Freeman informs us that the lands down towards the ocean are covered with grain in splendid condition. We hear the same story from all sections. The prospects for a fair yield of grain were never better than now, and the chances point largely towards an unusual crop. There are not wanting numbers of old time residents of this county who say that the probabilities are great that the yield of the cereals will this year be of a remarkably gratifying character, both in quantity and quality. This is a most exhilarating state of things, and contrasts very pleasantly with the mood of despondency and gloom which hovered over our grangers a month ago.

We claim, at all times, the right to comment upon official proceedings. We had long been aware that there were allegations of crookedness in the office of the County Recorder; but, until the Grand Jury had put them in the shape of an official accusation, we made no allusion to the rumored charges. We decline to allow our youthful contemporary, the Times, to restrict the legitimate field of journalism. The HERALD is especially careful to exclude from its columns anything like personal malevolence. At a time when the city funds were disappearing like snow beneath the sun at its high noon intensity, we dealt very lightly, indeed, in personalities. Mr. Lamb's trial has been fixed for the 25th of March. Whatever shall be its outcome, he will receive the full benefit of it in these columns. We are inclined to think that the circumstances of his case are such that a conviction is very unlikely to follow his trial. Yet a public official should not only be pure but above suspicion, and he should never commend his official vindication, by unauthorized or equivocal acts, to the uncertain caprices of a jury. Mr. Lamb's career will always remain tainted by the formal accusation of a Grand Jury notable for the personal worth and character of its members, from its foreman down. The HERALD, as a Democratic journal, has a right to point to the fact that the Democratic officials of this county have been characterized by an exceptional integrity and efficiency. There is a wholesome stimulus to officials of all grades in the knowledge of the fact that the community keeps track of their conduct, and will reward or punish, as the facts of their official careers shall call for the one or the other. The HERALD does not wish to be understood as taking the absurd position that a given Democrat, taken at random, is better than a given Republican, selected by the same chance process. Nor do we assume that the average Democratic official throughout the State is very much better than his Republican brother. But we have the right, both as a journalist and the conductor of a party newspaper, when our own officials have been signalized by special efficiency and integrity, to appreciate that fact as broadly as we can. We are compelled, besides, to recognize the fact that the Democratic idea is apt to enforce a greater degree of responsibility to the people than Republicans ordinarily acknowledge. The leaders of that party have so long been accustomed to discharging enormous sums in a lavish manner, they have so habituated themselves to the idea that they rule by a sort of right divine, that the vicious impulse of plunder reaches all the way down from the national capital to the most remote township. Los Angeles is not happy in the possession of Democratic officials who recognize a strict accountability to their masters.

WAIVING all inquiry as to who may have originally enacted the Sunday law, we think it will be conceded that there is no organized element in the Democratic party which seeks to enforce its execution. Probably any sporting man in California would be willing to bet dollars to cents that, of those who will make themselves prominent in trying to enforce this obsolete statute, there will be fifty men who have not voted for a Democratic candidate for President, in the last twenty years, to one who has so voted. If, as our esteemed contemporary, the Commercial, suggests, this law was enacted by a Democratic Legislature of California, it must have been sprung upon that body, by some vigilant Republican teetotaler, at a time when a special range and brilliancy of festivities had, for the nonce, obscured the Democratic Legislative intellect. It probably passed by default, and the fact that no serious attempt to make it operative has been made until the sumptuary law element had become strong in California shows that the Democrats repudiated the measure. As for the Supreme Court, which happens to be partially Democratic, a judge can be excused for allowing his individual conscience to be his monitor, just as the voters can be excused for only electing those judges whose habits and known opinions give conclusive evidence that they will lean to the letter and spirit of the present constitution in adjudicating on this question. It is too late for our contemporary, after quoting Petroleum V. Nasby, year in and year out, to attempt to array the Democratic party against free whisky and free lager. The HERALD, in saying that the Democratic party has always been against sumptuary laws, speaks perfectly by the card. No universal allegation of our contemporary that the Sunday law was enacted into life by a Democratic Legislature can be allowed to counteract the whole history of the party, from its origin to the present day. We doubt very much the truth of this assertion that Democrats enacted this law. Should it prove to be the fact, however, we wish to be understood, in sympathy with Democracy throughout the whole United States, as repudiating that Legislature. We hope that, under no circumstances, will a single one of the offenders be elected to the Legislature this year. Nay, more, we are willing to have the test made broadly and explicitly, that no Democrat ought to be elected this year who will not pledge himself against sumptuary legislation of any kind, and who will not agree to vote for the repeal of this particular sumptuary law. Now let our opponents toe the mark.

LAST NIGHT'S NEWS.

Crops Assured.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Further reports about the rainfall have been the heaviest of the season over the whole State, except the Upper San Joaquin valley. Crops are now assured in San Joaquin county and probably in Stanislaus, and the prospect is much better in Merced, but south of there the rain has been light.

Complaints for Cruelty.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The crew of the ship Gathers, which recently arrived at Wilmington from Antwerp, have brought complaint against Captain Sparks, Chief Mate, Walter and Second Mate Curtis, alleging a series of almost incredible atrocities perpetrated on the crew. They report that one sailor named George, who escaped abuse, jumped overboard. Third Mate Driscoll corroborates the story of the sailors. The authorities are looking for the guilty parties. Waters left the ship at Wilmington and shipped on the Imperial for Queenstown. Extra-dition will be invoked in his case. Curtis is expected every day and officers are on the watch to capture the Captain.

The Grain Exchange Organized.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Pursuant to a notice sent to members of the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board that initial steps towards the organization of the San Francisco Grain Exchange would be taken to-day, there was a numerous attendance at the executive session this morning. After the dispatch of some brief routine business the Board adjourned and Mr. J. H. Hays called the gentlemen to order and stated that the object of the meeting was to perfect the temporary organization of the San Francisco Grain Exchange. He said that the gentlemen had in view was of great public interest, as if they should succeed in establishing a market here similar to that existing in Chicago it could not fail to benefit in many ways the city and State. He hoped for the assistance of farmers and exporters in promoting the interests of the new Exchange. He then announced that the first business would be the election of a temporary Chairman. Mr. Marye was declared elected temporary Chairman. A. T. Coffin temporary Secretary. The chair then appointed the following Committee on Permanent Organization, and to receive applications for membership: Messrs. Homer S. Kling, J. M. Shohrwell, Joseph M. Mark, Noble, S. B. Wakenfield, S. D. Boswell and J. Greenbaum. Mr. Noble, from the Committee on Permanent Organization said the constitution and by-laws and rules and regulations for the transaction of business could be reported any time, as they would be substantiated by the same as those already reported by the committee of the Board, but that applications for membership were coming in so fast that it would take the committee some time to go over them and that they might have to ask for an increase in the number of charter members. The chair stated that as the success of the undertaking would depend largely upon the good will of the farmers and shippers, and that they would prepare an address immediately to farmers and producers of the State an address showing the advantage the new exchange would be to them and asking for their assistance and co-operation.

The Rain at San Bernardino.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 14.—A splendid rain commenced Sunday evening and has continued at intervals ever since. Nearly two inches have fallen. The wind is still from the south and the weather unsettled. The agricultural prospect could not be better.

Heavy Rain—The Citrus Fair.

SAN DIEGO, March 14.—There has been a heavy rain throughout the county since Sunday night. Rainfall so far this season at San Diego, 8.85 inches. The hills are everywhere green and there is a certainty of larger crops than ever before harvested in this county. A large number of visitors are in town to attend the Citrus Fair, which opens to-morrow.

The Anti-Polygamy Bill Passed.

Applications are before us for fully as much more and the distress is increasing." Will require at once 150,000 rations additional. The Secretary ordered the purchase of 100,000 rations at New Orleans to meet the demand.

To Search for the Missing Boat.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Secretary Hunt has received a cable message from James Gordon Bennett, at Paris, as follows: "I have transferred the steamer Lena to Lieutenant Harbor and notified him accordingly. She was put at my disposal by the present owner until September 1st. Some repairs will be necessary to put her in order for use. Will you telegraph Harbor giving him authority to take charge of the Lena on her arrival at Yikusk to undertake repairs, etc." The Secretary telegraphed Lieutenant Harbor directing him to take charge of the steamer and have the necessary repairs made.

Senator Hill's End Approaching.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Senator Hill remarked to a friend to-day that his life was all behind him and that he was simply waiting for the end. His life has been temporarily extended, but his friends have no hope for his permanent recovery. It transpires that Hill himself has not had much faith from the start of a permanent cure. Cancer has been a common fatal disease in his family.

The Anti-Chinese Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—At 3:35 p. m. obtained unanimous consent to dispense with the morning hour, and then asked unanimous consent that the Senate Chinese bill be taken from the Speaker's table and substituted for the House bill. Rice, of Massachusetts, objected; but, on being informed by Page that the bills were substantially similar, he withdrew his objection and the desired substitution was made. The Senate bill was then read in full.

Debating the Chinese Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Calhoun is still speaking. He has briefly but clearly presented many of the fundamental arguments against Chinese immigration and has read considerable of the testimony taken by the Congressional Commission. He closed with an eloquent appeal for the protection of white labor from the blighting effects of unrestricted Chinese immigration, and the House then (at 5 p. m.) adjourned until to-morrow.

The Anti-Polygamy Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The House, at 3 p. m., by a vote of 193 nays against 45 yeas, rejected the amendment to strike out the 8th section of the Anti-Polygamy bill. The roll was then called on the question of the final passage of the bill.

Jay Gould After the Bears.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Deliberate action has been determined upon by Jay Gould to punish those who have been circulating false stories for the purpose of defaming him and destroying his credit. The matter has been placed in the hands of David Dudley Field, who is working up the evidence against the detractors, and when sufficient proof has been obtained to convict, it being now stated that the authors of the false rumors have been traced, it has been determined by Gould to prosecute them to the extent of the law. The evidence that has been obtained by the lawyers is at present kept secret, but will be developed in due time at the Courts.

Division to the Stairway Land.

CHICAGO, March 14.—A Washington special says: There has been a division among the stairway, and henceforward the President intends to run his own machine and build up an empire of his own. Having offered the Supreme Court position to Conkling and Edmunds, the President says he has now paid his political obligations to them and will not further court them. A stalwart, an ex-Senator, says trouble is brewing and a decided split in the stalwart files is coming. Conkling pressed Clarence Seward for the place he refused and his nomination was seconded by all the New York judges except one. Judge Blatchford himself asked for Seward's appointment. This affront will probably anger Conkling.
