THE RICHES OF VANDERBILT.

A Reliable Statement About the Camp.

The Various Mines and Their Output So Far.

A Locality That Promises to Become the Bonanza Mining City of the Country — Good Advice to Intending Visitors.

For the past six or eight months the attention of prospectors and moneyed mining capitalists have been directed to Vanderbilt, the new mining district in San Bernardina county, 35 miles this side of the Needles. The camp was first brought into prominence by the news of a rich strike by Mr. Taggart and others some time last year. It had been known to prospectors for years past as a rich county, but as prospecting was accompanied with great difficulties and hardships, it was not carefully gone over until the advent of Mr. Taggart.

Since then a large number of prospectors have gone into the new district and have staked out many claims. There is one very remarkable feature of Vanderbilt however. Thus far its growth has been healthy and its has advanced steadily. As yet the barely grub-staked prospector has not put in an appearance to any great extent, no mushroom excitement has been raised and all is moving forward with healthy steadiness. Extensive capital has been placed in the district and the work of developing the different claims goes along easily and surely.

There is no question but that Vanderbilt has a great future before it, as the presence of the capital of men like Mackay and Flood would naturally suggest.

About three months ago the HERALD published an extensive interview with Mr. F. O. Wilkinson, who had at that time recently returned to Los Angeles from Vanderbilt. While here he had a large number of assays made, and fine prospects were gotten from each analysis.

Mr. Wilkinson remained here for a week at that time before going out to Vanderbilt again. He returned to this city last week and was again seen by a HERALD reporter and asked something of the progress of Vanderbilt during the past three months. Mr. Wilkinson talked plainly and to the point. He does not give a very encouraging outlook, for the present at least, to any intended prospectors. Vanderbilt has, however, he says, rapidly improved since his last trip to Los Angeles.

"There is no question," said Mr. Wilkinson, "but that the Vanderbilt mining district is destined to be the foremost camp on the Pacific coast. At present, however, the various claims are being sunk with shafts in order to determine the exact extent of the ledges.

"Every one is broadening as the shafts descend, and the ore is also very rich. The prospects are most excellent.

"The principal claims are the Gold Bar, now called the St. George, owned by Lisle, Wells, Mackey and Flood, and the Gold Bronze of Taggert and others.

"On the morning of last Tuesday the shaft in the St. George was down to 265 feet. A competent prospector and mining man took several samples of the ore sent up from this depth, which, upon being assayed, ran $426 and some cents to the ton. Later in the day, at a depth of 268 feet, the ore ran $477 per ton. Three shafts are being sunk at the same time on this claim, and last week were down to 275 feet. As they descend, tunnels are run from each shaft, connecting the three. At present they have a body of ore three and a half feet wide that runs from $400 to $600 a ton.

"The Gold Bronze is now down to 90 feet with a 400-foot drift. In each end of the drift is a two-foot ledge of high-grade ore, running from $100 upwards. At present there are 800 sacks of ore outside of the shaft that will net $200 a ton.

"A continuation of the Gold Bronze is known as the Chippy. At a depth of 55 feet an eight-inch vein of $500 ore was encountered, but the ledge proper is much wider.

"There is another ledge that runs from the Gold Bar or St. George claim, called the Odd Nook, and owned by Covington Johnson. A 40-foot shaft has been sunk and 18 inches of fine ore has been struck.

"The Crystal is another claim running from the Odd Nook. It is owned by a Mr. Harper of San Francisco, who has already sunk a shaft to 150 feet and reached fine ore. He is preparing to erect a hoist to draw the ore out. Both of these claims have been bonded for a round sum.

"All of the claims I have mentioned lie on the north line of Vanderbilt, a little towards the west.

"On the south line a little towards the east is the Gold Brick No. 1. A 200-foot shaft is being sunk and another one is to be sunk on the Iron mine, owned by Mackey & Flood. By the side of the Gold Brick, Frank Almond and Dick Powers have claims that are down to 60 feet and have 3-foot veins that run $40 and upwards a ton.

"The Boomerang mine of Green Campbell of Utah now yields $40, good milling ore, from a 14-foot vein.

"West of Vanderbilt is the Star mine, which is owned by Griffith, Crow, Childs and myself. It is now at a depth of 50 feet, and a 2-inch vein of $200 to $600 per ton has been struck.

"The ledge is 4 feet wide, but it is not yet at its full paying level. About 40 feet down I encountered specimens that assayed as high as $4000 and $2200 a ton.

"In my opinion the Gold Bronze will prove to be the most valuable claim of the lot.

"There have not been very many people in the district offering to buy the smaller and more undeveloped claims for anything like what they are worth. They think that they can be had for little or nothing, so do not make any offers of large sums; consequently there are not many claims sold. The majority of the bids have been made upon the Gold Bronze and the St. George mines. Judging from their bids, prospective purchasers seem to regard them as the only claims of any great value about the camp. The reason for this is that the shafts are further down and a larger body of ore is in sight than in the other claims that have not gotten down so far."

"What are the prospects for more claims? Have all the good ones been taken up?"

"No; they have not. There is still a large number of claims that can be staked out. Ones that will yield just as good prospects as those in the immediate vicinity of the town of Vanderbilt. The district may be said to extend two and a half miles each way, and there are excellent opportunities in it. Towards the north of the town, a man named Tate has sunk a 75-foot shaft, and the ore is making a good showing. Pete Campbell also has another claim two miles north of the town and is getting a fine prospect.

"But let me state one thing positively now. Vanderbilt is not a grass road camp, and it is no place for a working man to go for the present at least. You have to get down to 100 feet at least before the ore is in anything like paying quantities. Of course, sometimes it may be encountered near the surface, but this is seldom the rule. Money is required to be able to work the claims in order to get any returns.

"Another point, a poor man should not go to Vanderbilt with the expectation of getting work. There is none for him now. None of the mines are shipping any ore. The main object at present seems to be to ascertain how far the ledge runs before putting in any machinery or beginning to ship the ore.

"The Mackay & Flood people let their work by contract. There were 30 men employed in their claim, while 18 men are at the Gold Bronze. The other men run shifts of from two to ten men. There are now about 600 to 700 people in and around Vanderbilt, and plenty of men to do all the work required for the present.

"A large number of good substantial lumber buildings have been erected during the past few months, for which the carpenters received $5 per day. This work, however, has now been completed so there is no more opportunity in this respect just now.

"I should advise every one to wait until about October or November when the full size of the ledge and the value the district will be known. Then they can come out. A person should not go there with less than several hundred dollars if he intends to stay for any time and prospect.

"Mr. Lisle of the St. George claim told me recently that his company intended to sink the shafts straight down to 400 feet in order to ascertain if the ledge existed in paying quantity. The minute they found that it did they would at once begin to boom the camp and to put in the proper machinery. There has as yet been no machinery put in as the men are waiting to see the full extent of the ledges.

"It is thought that enough water will be found in the mines to run the machinery. But should this prove to be a mistake, Mackey and Flood propose to pipe sufficient water to supply the vicinity, from a spring six miles east of Vanderbilt.

"They claim the spring has a flow of four inches. Water is now selling for two cents a gallon in Vanderbilt. Wood, however, is cheap, bringing $5 a cord.

"In a recent issue of the HERALD I saw where the Spiller boys and other parties claimed to have sold the Tam O'Shanter mine at Good Springs to Jonas Taylor for $30,000. This statement is untrue. I know that Taylor would not have given any such a figure for it. I myself had the option upon it for $7000. The report around Vanderbilt was that Taylor had paid $12,000 for the Tam O'Shanter. This also, I believe, is incorrect. I think that $7500 would be nearer the figure. Good Springs is 45 miles, almost due north, from Vanderbilt, and not 80 as was stated.

"The Good Springs country is a rich district, as it has enormous lead deposits, but for the present is valueless as there are no practical means for shipment. There was, however, when I left Vanderbilt some good ore being shipped through Vanderbilt from Good Springs, but not in large quantities.

"The hauling of ore from the New York silver district has been stopped for the present. Blake, who owns a majority of this district, has been investing quite extensively in the Good Springs district lately."

"Is gold the only metal in the Vanderbilt district?"

"No! But all of the figures I have given have been upon gold. Copper, some silver, galena and iron are also found, but the big paying metal is gold, which is in the greatest proportion and value."

"Copper is also found in good quantity. The most of the ore throughout the Vanderbilt district is easy to work."

A Chicken Thief at Last Brought to Book.

For some considerable time the residents in the neighborhood of Boyle avenue have been considerably annoyed by the regular depletion of their chicken houses, by some mysterious thief. Police Officer Macey was informed of their losses, and being a chicken fancier himself, proceeded to investigate. Mr. L. Workman who lives on Boyle avenue has been of the greatest sufferers, and Officer Macey set himself to watch Mr. Workman's chicken house.

About 3 o'clock in the morning the officer saw an enormous badger run into the fowl house; there was a hoarse "cluck" and another ill-fated chicken had gone to his long rest. Calling two dogs and drawing his gun Macey went after the marauder. The animal fought off the two dogs but succumbed to a couple of bullets from the officer's pistol. The animal when weighed was found to tip the scales at 41 pounds. Over $150 worth of poultry had been destroyed by the defunct animal.
