A COAL OF FIRE. "He's a muff all round, outside school work, I'm sure. Can't play cricket a little bit anyway," said Douglas Metcalfe. 'Rummy clothes he wears, eh? Hat looks as if it had come out of an old clothes shop," said Frank Newlyn. "He's a sullen sort of beggar too. I fellows are like that, you know,' George Marchant remarked. All the three speakers were in the sixth form at Denmark House, and the boy they referred to was Herbert Grierthe beginning of this term. It was Saturday afternoon of a warm day in early summer, and the three mark House and Douglas' father, was boys were strolling down toward the not a little alarmed at what had hapbay, on the heights overlooking which the Denmark House stood. When they reached the beach, they found some half dozen other boys undressing preparaother boys were now in it; among the rest Herbert Grierson. 'We'll swim out to those fellows and have a dive from the boat," Douglass Metcalfe said. In two minutes the two were swimming toward the boat, Grierson," he said. "You saved my followed closely by Tippoo, Douglas' terrier. They scrambled into the boat. The others were now in the water, with the exception of Grierson, who stood at the bow ready to dive. His clothes lay beside him, with his hat on the top. A | I'll never forget yours." sudden spirit of mischief seized Doug-

"Let's see if he is as good at swimming as he is at Virgil," he whispered to his companions.

'Own up now, Douglas. You're a chap," Newlyn said.
"Oh, as to that, I don't care much one way or the other," replied Metcalfe, with a show of carelessness. "But I fancy I'm his match at swimming anyhow. But we'll see in a minute or

As he spoke Douglas pretended to recovering himself struck the hat with his hand, and sent it spinning into the

"Hullo, that was jolly clumsy of me!" he exclaimed.

In a moment Grierson was in the water after his hat, which the breeze had caught and carried to a consider able distance out in the bay. Tippeo was before him, however, and swimming toward the hat.

'Now then. He's got a pretty good We'll see who reaches the hat first. But I must send that little rascal Tippoo back," said Metcalfe, who was one of the best swimmers in the school. He leaped into the water and struck out with all his strength in the wake of Grierson.

All were now watching the chase of the hat with interest and laughter and cries of "Go it, Douglas," "Strike out, Grierson," "The hat's going to win."

It was quite clear that Herbert Grierson was a strong and expert swimmer. For a little Douglas Metcalfe did not gain a yard upon him, but presently the onlookers could see that the space between the two boys had narrowed. Metcalfe was, in fact, doing his very best, and it was with keen sensation of satisfaction and triumph that he at last overtook and passed his rival.

The hat was now floating a few yards in front of Metcalfe. The chase of it had proved a harder one than had been expected. Metcalfe and Grierson were now far out in the bay, and of course much beyond their depth. At this point a strong current swept past the bay. The River Gleam emptied itself into the sea at the north horn of the bay, and this caused a current which set in a transverse direction across the bay, oceanward. Both boys were by this time in the center of this sea stream. Metcalfe's hand closed upon the hat. It was his intention to swim back with it toward the boat and replace it upon the little pile of clothes, and thus put a triumphant finish to his swimming feat. Metcalfe was now facing toward the hore again. Grierson had turned too. The latter was quite aware that Metcalfe had acted as he had done not to recover the lost hat and restore it to its owner, but in order to prove his so periority in swimming before the rest of the boys. The latter raised a cheer es they saw Metcalfe striking for the land again, holding the hat in his hand. Then they saw Metcalfe stop suddenly. The arm that held the hat dropped and

Grierson, now swimming a yard or two behind Metcalfe, gave a few vigor-sus strokes which brought him alongside the latter. But before he could stretch out a hand to prevent it Metcalfe's head went under. Grierson dived at almost the same moment. The boys in and around the boat held their breath.

'Something's wrong with Douglas. He's taken cramp or something," George Marchant said.

A minute went by, and they saw the heads of both boys reappear, a yard or two further out. Grierson was supporting Metcalfe with his right arm. "I've cramp in my right leg and arm," Metcalfe said in a hoarse, low voice. "I'm afraid I can't swim a stroke farther myself." "All right, try to tread water with your other leg; it will help a little. We'll be all right when we are once out of this current," Grierson replied quietly. Yet Grierson knew that his task was not going to prove an easy one. For a few minutes he made little or no head-Metcalfe hung upon his arm alway. most like a dead weight. Douglas was doing his utmost to help himself, but it availed very little, for, besides the cramp which had attacked him, he was exhausted by his efforts at first to overtake and outstrip Grierson.

Grierson *truggled on, his burden impeding every stroke he made and lessening its effect. The boy felt his own strength ebbing fast. Unless he got out of the current in a few minutes more, he feared that all would be lost. But he was making progress and could see that the distance between the boat him considerable ease and rest, and his next few strokes were freer and more vigorous. And now he felt the current decidedly lessening in force. He summoned up all his remaining energy in one last effort, and half a dozen more strokes brought him free of the current.

The two boys were in calm water, suppose he's proud of his poverty; some and now, too, they were met by George Marchant and Frank Newlyn, who relieved Grierson of his burden and took Metcalfe between them. In this order they reached the boat. There were many outstretched arms to help them son, who had just come to the school at | in, and then the boat was towed to the shore.

pened, though he did not show it. Both boys were immediately got to bed, and prompt measures taken to restore warmth and circulation to their chilled tory to bathing. A large, broad beam-ed boat lay out in the bay. One or two son and Metcalfe were back in class and playground.

The latter took an early opportunity life at the risk of your own; there's no doubt about that. And the whole thing was my fault too. I am very sorry. Will you accept my best thanks, and try to forget my part in the matter?

Her Bathing Togs.

The little boy was very much interested in a picture that his sister had bit jealous of Grierson. You're afraid ested in a picture that his sister had he's going to run you hard for dux, old had taken while at the seashore. It was a picture that had been taken "just for the fun of the thing" and not for distribution among her friends—one of those pictures that a girl keeps in her own room where none but her intimates may see it. This one showed the young lady and her "dearest friend" on the beach in bathing suits. Both of the stumble against Grierson's clothes, and girls were pretty and had good figures that the bathing suits showed to excellent advantage, but the picture seemed to be a source of endless speculation to

"Did you and Mamie wear them togs at the seashore?" he asked one day.
"Of course we did," she replied.

"Did you wear them short skirts and stockin's so's you could go in bathing?" he persisted.

'Certainly; what makes you ask such a question?"

"Oh, I dunno," he replied carelessly.
"I thought mebbe you went in bathin so's you could wear them togs."--Chicago Post.

Smokeless Powder Ruins Guns. There seem to be some very serious drawbacks in the usefulness of the smokeless powder, on which the military authorities of the world have expended so much money lately. One of the latest discovered of these is that in some way it injures the guns in which it is used. A French newspaper says that the powder has done great damage to the steel guns of the Italian army; that at least 500 pieces of artillery have been rendered practically useless by it. -New Orleans Picayune.

Undertakers Don't Believe In Spooks. An aged undertaker of this city was asked if he had ever seen any spooks. He laughed derisively and said: "No, and I doubt if you will find any one in my line of business who believes in the existence of such things. We find there is nothing more harmless and pitiful than dead people."—Philadelphia Rec-

A Tudor Gallant, A gallant's toilet was no easy business, and a slow or clumsy servant, no doubt, got many an oath and blow if he failed to tie up the points of the hose, lace the doublet or arrange the stomacher and frilled shirt to his master's satisfaction. A gentleman's dress had so many fastenings, there was so much tying and lacing of his garments totying and lacing of his garments to-gether, that it was impossible that he should ever get costumed (sic) without assistance. The long hose had to be se-curely tied by a number of latchets to the doublet; the doublet itself was laced up the front, and the sleeves, being slashed to show the shirtsleeves, had also to be laced sometimes.—"History of English Dress," Georgiana Hill.

Disappointed Children. Hello! Hello! This is the North Pole and I am Mr. Claus-Santa Claus, you know. Have I got the United States? I have? Well, that's what I want, for I wish to tell the children all about something. What's that? I cannot hear you. Please do not yell so in the 'phone. There, that's better. What I wish to tell the children is that I am very, very sorry they did not find in their stockings all the presents they asked me for before Christmas. I remem bered every one of them and had them all down in my books. Have you got all that? All right. I made the most careful preparations so that not a sin-

A Simple Trick.

Cut out a narrow strip of pasteboard and join the ends together to form a hoop. On the inner side of the hoop fasten a small weight, such as a metal button or a bit of sealing wax. Construct an inclined plane by placing a flat ruler on a table, with one end resting on a slight elevation, such as a pile of books. Place the hoop on the incline in such a position that the weight may be slightly in front of the highest point "Why, of course," Grierson replied, and there the matter ended.—New York of the hoop, in the direction of the top of the incline.

On releasing the hoop it will be found to at once roll up the incline, in seeming defiance of the law of gravity. It will increase the mystery if instead of a hoop a round pasteboard box is used. having a similar weight on the inside. -Once a Week.

Tadpoles, Toads and Frogs. When frogs and toads are very young, they are called tadpoles. They first appear to be nothing but head and tail; then, in a few days, four legs appear, and then the tail disappears and the little creature becomes a perfect frog. In the tadpole state they live under water, but when they become frogs they can only stay under the water a short time.

DELIGHTFULLY ROMANTIC.

LOS ANGELES HERALD: TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 16, 1894.

A Stage Held Up and a Maid Carried Off by a Good Looking Bad Man.

A romantic case of kidnaping occurred the other day in the country back of Mazatlan. The stage between Rosario and Mazatlan, which left the former place, stopped at 1 a. m. the next day at Agua Caliente, where another passenger, a young and pretty girl, was taken on. She was Carlotta Newman, daughter of a poor blind woman living at Mazatlan. There were two other passengers, a man and a woman.

The stage left Agua Caliente at 2 a. m. and had gone only a couple of leagues when the driver suddenly reined up at a call from the roadside, where four men on horseback sat coolly pointing revolvers at his head. There was no demand for coin, and from the quiet manmend for coin, and from the quiet manner of the highwaymen the driver could draw no idea of the nature of their demands. While one man held a gun pointed at the driver and another attended the horses the others dismounted, stepped to the end of the coach and courteously requested the young lady to come out. The extra recognized the largest manner and the courte out of the coach and the coach courteously requested the young lady to come out. The girl recognized the larger man, a magnificent looking fellow, as Jose Valdez, her rejected lover, and divining the plot she begged the passengers to save her. Valdez warned them to do nothing, and as they had no firearms they dared not protest against the actions of the bold robbers.

After urging Miss Newman to come out without avail, Valdez and his companion laid hold of her and carried her to the horses, placing her upon one and tying her to the saddle. The girl's shrieks and tears had no effect either in hurrying the men or arousing their When they were again mounted anger. and ready to leave, Valdez turned to the driver and said calmly, "Go, friend, and excuse me for molesting you."

The driver lost no time in accepting the permission, and the agitated passengers inside did not breathe easily until they saw the party, with the girl in the center, gallop over a hill. The driver and passengers reported the matter on arriving at Mazatlan and gave the names of Librado and Bernardo Valdez and Rufino Zatarain as the accomplices of Jose Valdez, the first two being his

A THURIFER GUILD.

English Clergymen Agitated Over the Question of Inceuse Burning.

Two subjects are at present greatly exercising the minds of many clergymen of the Church of England-one is the startling falling off in their incomes owing to the long continued and increasing agricultural depression, and the other is the use of incense in churches. The latter is always a prominent topic of clerical discussion about Christmas time, but this year it seems to create more interest than usual, owing to the growing prevalence of the practice.

There are now so many servers, acolytes and other altar assistants engaged in lighting and swinging thurifers in the churches of England that they seriously propose to form themselves into a guild or society for the promotion of incense burning. The name suggested for it is the "Thurifer Guild." One of its objects will be a study of the history of the practice and the best manner of manufacturing orthodox and sweet smelling incense in an expeditious and economic manner. -London Telegraph.

The Congo Railroad.

The opening of the first section of the Congo railroad passed almost unnoticed in this country, chiefly because it is due to Belgian enterprise. But for all that, British traders already realize the vast possibilities involved and are actively preparing to obtain a share of the new trade. The road at present extends from Matadi to Kenge, and thence will be pushed as rapidly as possible to Stanley pool. The list of freight charges has been published in the chief European ports, and two British and one German steamship line have made Matadi a port of call. It is confidently predicted that a Congo boom is about to commence, and that King Leopold will soon be within measurable distance of reward for his courage and patience.-London Letter.

The Singer Family Abroad.

It is extraordinary how the Singer family has managed to mix itself up with the aristocracy of France. With nothing but a huge fortune and a large stock of eccentricity the original old Singer married no less than 10 women, covering a wide range of position and character. He numbered his descendants by the score, and these it is who have man aged to ally themselves with some of the proudest families in Europe. At the re-cent wedding of Mrs. Winnaretta Singer in Paris to Prince Melchior de Polignac there was a great gathering of the Singer clans, and they bore such names as Rochefoucauld, Decazes, Murat, Modena and Dudley.—Cholly Knickerbocker in New York Recorder.

It is positively asserted that a promi nent farmer living near Ellicott City, Md., has in his possession a goose which has attained the rather astonishing age of 36 years. The bird was purchased by its present owner in 1880, and was then 23 years old. It is as sprightly now, it is stated, as any of the flock, and there is nothing in its appearance to indicate by several old fowl fanciers here regarding the ages of different birds it was af firmed that geese often lived to such an age, and even a longer period.
