THE REVISION THEY ADVISE.

The Citizens' League and the Proposed Charter Changes.

All the Responsibility for Appointments to Be on the Mayor.

The Work of a Committee of Representative Citizens-Superfluous Of. fices to Be Cut Off-Regommendations.

The committee of the Citizens' league has concluded its labors in preparing a draft for a new city charter, and for its efforts certainly deserve great credit. The members, who are G. J. Griffith, T. D. Stimson, J. S. Slauson, F. W. Wood, T. W. Brotherton, Abbott Kinney, Kaspare Cohn, Otto Brodtbeck, have prepared a report to the council committee on charter revision, which in substance is as follows:

We believe that several of the officers of our present city government are superfluous because the duties attached to them are purely administrative, requiring no exercise of special skill or judgment, and could be performed by a deputy at a moderate calary as well as by a department head at a large stipend. Particularly is this true with regard to the offices of street superintendent and water overseer. In the former we have an official with a large salary who simply executes the will of the people as expressed in ordinances of the council and the state laws, whose work properly be-longs in the office of the city engineer. He can do little without the advice and consent of the engineer; the latter pre-cedes him in all work save in the small matter of street cleaning. The engineer is the originating officer in all things, and should be the executive officer also The same conditions apply equally to the office of water officer, and in addi-tion thereto there is the fact that the work of this office is light. We there-fore propose that the offices of street superintendent and water overseer be consolidated with that of city engineer, and that the duties heretofore per-formed by such officials be hereafter performed by the city engineer through the medium of deputies.

The offices of city assessor and city tax and license collecthr are also unneces-sary. In the case of the city assessor we have an official drawing a good salary, employing several deputies whose combined pay aggregates a very large sum. The entire work of this office consists of assessing city property, which could readily be performed by adopting the assessment of the county assessor and his depities. The latter make a thorough course of the city property and ough canvass of the city property and make a comprehensive record of it, and then the city assessor goes over the same ground, making another assessment. We believe that this double work is unnecessary, and have therefore proposed to abolish the office of city assessor.

As regards the city tax and license collector, the work which he does can as well be done by the county tax collector well be done by the county tax collector at the same time that state and county taxes are collected. This will add no burden to the duties of his office, and will possess the great advantage of making all taxes payable at one time and place, besides saving the expense of the city tax and license collector's office.

The proposed amendments make it obligators on the care the same distributions of the city tax and license collector's office.

obligatory on the council to limit the number of deputies and employees to this will effect a great saving without hampering the administration of affairs.

ter of salaries we have proceeded on the theory that the city's business needs and deserves the services of the most competent and upright men that can be procured, and following this idea we believe that offices in which a high degree of technical ability is required of the head should be paid a salary which will command the ability necessary to administer its affairs properly. Those offices whose functions are of a purely administrative nature and can be conducted by almost any intelligent man, are entitled to receive only such salaries as are paid in the business world to ordinary clerkship.

We believe that the dignity and importance attached to the office of mayor, and the responsibility placed thereon by the proposed amendments, make it necessary that a generous salary should be paid to that official in order that men truly representative, and of high character, may accept the office without too great a sacrifice of their private interests, and that the incumbent may be enabled to uphold the dignity and prestige of the city before the world.

The offices of city auditor, city engineer and city attorney require the services of successful professional men who can command large compensation in the outside world, and we therefore believe that good salaries should be paid to the incumbents of these offices, and have proposed such.
We submit that the present form of our municipal government is radically wrong in respect to location of responsi-bility. Extravagance and waste is frequent, laws and ordinances are neg-lected and become dead letters, and inlected and become dead letters, and incompetent men fill offices because the responsibility for wrong acts, negligence and incompetence is shifted from one place to another, and is never settled; therefore, we believe that the mayor should be the executive head of the city government, in fact as well as in name, that he should be charged with the full responsibility of the proper administraresponsibility of the proper administration of munic pul affairs, and that he should be invested with powers sufficient to enable him to conduct those affairs satisfactorily. We have, therefore, proposed to place in his hands the appointment of as many of the city officials as possible with the idea that if he appoints a poor official, he may at once remove him and appoint a better. once remove him and appoint a better.

Under this system, if an office be improperly or incompetently conducted, the people have one many the people have one man to go to for redress, and he cannot avoid the issue nor shift the responsibility.

Concerning the administration of the different offices, we have proposed several changes which we believe will eral changes which we believe will greatly benefit the public service, among them being amendments to the duties of the auditor, and also concerning the receipt of city money. We believe that no officer should receive money but the oity treasurer. We believe that all fees, assessments and payments of any nature whatsoever should go directly to the treasurer, instead of being paid to different other officials and held by them until they have large sums on hand, sometimes exceeding the amount of bonds of the officials holding the same.

We therefore propose that all moneys be paid direct to the treasurer. Under the present system the auditor, whose greatest duty is to keep full and accurate accounts of all business transactions of the city, is unable to do so from the fact that the accounts and records of other city officials are almost in-dependent of his office and in most cases are incomplete and unsatisfactory. We believe that perfect records of all trans-actions of each office should be kept, including the receipt and disposition of all materials and supplies as well as money. There should also be a comprehensive account of all labor performed. These records should be communicated to the auditor's office at regular periods, in order that his office may have the necessary full and correct account of all business transactions of the city. We therefore propose that the auditor arrange a system of accounts, to be approved by the council, for all other city offices, and in conjunction therewith a ystem of monthly reports which will bring their transactions into thorough touch and harmony with the auditor's office, and place municipal affairs upon the same solid basis on which all successful business enterprises are founded. These few points demonstrate the theory on which we have based our proposed amendments, and from a careful study of the entire situation and conclusions drawn from past experience, we are satisfied that the adoption of these amendments will result in a substantial retrenchment in the expense of the municipal government, and that at the same time it will materially enhance its efficiency.

A DANGEROUS PROPOSITION.

No Large Petroleum Tanks Needed in the Center of the City. There was no meeting of the board of fire commissioners yesterday, on account of the absence from the city of Mesers. Brodrick and McLain. Commissioner Kuhrts was on hand, pale from the effects of his recent illness, but there being no quorum the mayor did not attempt to to sit without one.

If such a tank is absolutely necessary, let it be erected on Grand or Bunker Hill avenue and the oil piped down to the laundry, but no such bid for a conflagration should be tolerated within the most densely populated portion of the city, until somebody discovers some way to divest petroleum of its explosive qualities. Should an explosion of such a quantity take place, it would not leave one brick upon another in the district bounded by First, Third, Broadway and Los Angeles streets; and it is quite un-necessary to say that the city does not require laundries on Main street quite so badly as to risk a calamity of that sort. It is hardly possible that the board of fire commissioners, with ordinances to that effect so plainly worded and placed before their eyes, could grant a permit of this sort.

Interesting Commencement Exercises Held There.

Features of the Addresses by the Graduates.

Many Flowers Received by the Class-A Distinguished Gathering of Edneators-The Degrees Conferred.

The commencement exercises of Occidental college, yesterday, were the most successful of any yet held in the buildng. A little after 10 o'clock the visitors began to arrive. The first thing that met their gaze was the silver cup of the Intercollegiate Athletic association, which was won on February 22ad by the college athletic team. Gradually the auditorium was filled and soon standing room was at a premium.

The hall was beautifully decorated with palms and branches of the pepper tree. The platform was adorned with white roses, easter lilies, ribbon-grass, ferns and marguerites.

Seated on the platform was the graduating class, composed of Miss Floy K. Roberts, who received the degree of bachelor of arts; Messrs. Donald K. Cameron, bachelor of letters; H. Percy Dilworth, bachelor of arts; the faculty, President J. M. McPherron, Vice President Rev. James W. Parkhill, Prof. Robert C. French, B. S., and Miss Mary Robert C. French, B. S., and Miss Mary J. Robinson; the officers of the board of directors, E. S. Field, Revs. W. J. Chichester, D. D., W. S. Young, Guy W. Wadsworth and Mr. J. C. Salisbury. Among the visiting ministers and members of the board of trustees were: Revs. Dr. Craig, Chicago; W. A. Ormninstor, D. D., J. B. Stewart, D. D., W. S. Young, W. B. Craig, Pomona; H. B. Gage, Riverside; F. D. Seward, Alexander Parker, Orange; A. A. Dinsmore, Alhambra; J. C. Fletcher, F. M. Dimmick, D. Hughes, A. M. Merwin, T. Beaizley, Anaheim; Henderson, Wallace B. Lucas, D. D., Mesers. Prof. W. C. White, J. G. Bell, Edwin Baxter, and Col. Samuel Merrill, formerly consulgeneral to Calcutta. President J. M. McPherron acted as chairman.

McPherron acted as chairman.

The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. W. S. Young. Hungarian Fantasie, by Liszt, was beautifully rendered on the piano by Miss Kate Rider, with second piano accompaniment by Miss Emma Rider. Mr. Donald K. Cameron, B. L., came forward and delivered a splendid ora-tion entitled The Coming Victories of Labor. He said that an abstract principle has always been recognized that men were born free and equal. This principle was taught by philosophy embodied in Christ. We, in the twilight of the nineteenth century, have yet to see this idea fully recognized. While men have the same natural rights their natural endowments are varied and natural endowments are varied and hence the power of acquiring and accu-mulating varies, therefore the rich and Divine providence has established the entire universe under the dominion of the law of service. There is nothing so small or unimportant but it is given some service to perform, and nothing so great as to be above it.

Man alone, though the highest creation, fails to render unto God his just due; not, however, because God has not given him sufficient light to guide his steps, for he has the united voice of revelation and experience to guide his choice, and God speaking to him from within in the gentle whispers of conscience.

Whether he shall be guided by divine whether he shall be guided by divine necessity or by natural inclination is left for him to choose. This power of choice places upon man the responsibility of his own eternal destiny and makes him accountable for his fellow men. The possibility of choice necessitates the existence of some metive force, which we find in love. Two kinds of love are possible, love for self and love for Ged. If we are prompted by love of self our battles must be fought alone; but if by the love for God, we have divine assistance which knows no opposition.

Our own experience has taught us the folly of relying in our own strength. The trials and temptations of this life have proven our weakness, but they are given to us for the divine purpose of strengthening our characters and fashioning them in the similitude of Christ. Met and conquered, they result in a

JACK THE BURGLAR ONCE MORE

The Mysterious Thief Makes a $600 Haul.

He Eludes Capture and Mystiffes the Officers Hunting.

He Pursues His Usual Tactics and Enters a House by Means of a Ladder-No Clues Left Behind.

The most successful burglary ever committed by the "porch-climber," otherwise known as Jack the Burglar, was perpetrated about 8 o'clock Tuesday night, when the residence of S. H. B. Van der Voort, 418 West Thirty-third street was entered and $600 worth of jewelry stolen.

The thief was most daring in his operation, and was so successful that he was not even seen by the occupants of the house. He operated in the same way in which he has entered 15 other houses in the southwest part of the city, using a ladder and gaining an entrance in the second story. The mysterious burglar secured a ladder from a house in the course of con-struction, and carried it quite a distance Van der Voort's residence. Placing it carefully at a rear window, he entered without being detected. The family was in the parlor on the ground floor, and did not go upstairs until shortly before 10 o'clock.

To their great surprise the doers to the bed chambers were found ajar, and the furnishings of the room badly disheveled. Upon looking around Mrs. Van Voort discovered that a diader mond breastpin, diamond earrings, finger rings, a gold watch and numerous other articles of jewelry were missing. At an estimate the stolen articles will reach $600. All of them were costly, the breastpin particularly so on account of it being set with seven fine stones.

The ladder at the window was found, and the mystery was solved. The news of the their was telephoned to the police station, but, as usual, the officers were silent when asked about the occurrence. Detective Auble and Sergeant Smith went to the scene, but Jack-the-Burglar had been gone two hours, and was probably cosily tucked away in his couch in one of the leading hotels, dreaming of the next big haul. It is estimated that during the last three months this maysterious thief has stolen jewelry amounting in value to $4000.

THE MIDDLE OF THE STREET.

How Superintendent Watson Puts the Public to Inconvenience. It is not likely, after the investigations made by the grand jury, the city council and nearly everybody else, into the affairs of the street superintendent's office that Mr. Watson is likely to "bob up serenely" as a candidate for reelection in November next. But in case he should, it is to be hoped he will be severely sat down upon. Some people think him peculiar, and the "borrowing" of money from employees to make good the defalcations of his cashier certainly looks that way. It recalls the story of an Irishman who was found in jail by one of his countrymen, who asked:

"Shure they can't send a man to jail

I had to knock the mon down wid a big shtick foor or foive times betoor he'd lind it to me."

But letting all that pass, Mr. Watson has shown himself singularly unfit for the place he holds. If a man doubts this let him look at the way he gives up the middle of the street to building contractors, thereby inconveniencing the tractors, thereby inconveniencing the people at large. It is quite enough to deprive the people of the use of a sidewalk, let alone fencing up any portion of the middle of the street, particularly in a city like this, which is literally gridironed with the tracks of railroads. In the matter of the Stimson and Brad-bury blocks it was not so bad, for those edifices are ornaments to the city, but in other cases he has allowed the streets to be blockaded by the worst kind of cheap ramshackles, notably the one at Fifth and Spring streets. At Third and Broadway over one-third of the street is cut off by a fence, and there it stands, all work on the proposed building being discontinued.

At Seventh and Hill streets a sewer was being laid which occupied all the middle of the street. Yet with all that necessary obstacle in sight, the street superintendent gives a permit to use all the east sidewalk on that street, as well as such portions of the middle as were menth.

Temperature—Mean or normal, 71; the warmest July was that of 1891, with the warmest July was that of 1891, with Seventh and Eighth have only been able an average of 74; the coldest July was to reach home at the risk of life and limb, especially if compelled to remain out late at night. The house-moving nuisance, blockading a public street for whole days together with some old rattle-trap building that is to be taken from Broadway to Pico Heights, is another thing that receives altogether too much favor at the hands of the present street department. There is not one house in 20 that is moved which is worth the cost of moving when it reaches its final destination. By the time it does, the repairs to plastering, etc., amount to more than the house is worth; and the owner has only an old house, after all, to show for all his
