THE KING OF HARNESS HORSES,

Robert J. Wears That Proud Title.

Nancy Hanks, Mascot and Flying Jib Dethroned.

Hamlin's Great Pacer Reels Off a Mile in 2:03%-Alix and Fantasy Also Go Against Time. Summaries.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 31,-Mascot, Flying Jib and Nancy Hanks have been dethroned, and Robert J. stands today the king of harness horses. The great son of Hartford, driven by Ed Geers, today made the fastest mile ever paced in harness, lowering the world's record

In addition to the three regular events, the card contained three specials. The track was in excellent condition and the weather warm, with a light breeze.

Lady Houck was the first to attempt to beat her time of 2:151/2, and she clipped off one-fourth second.

Then came Alix. The immense crowd was deeply interested when Driver McDowell nodded to Starter Walker for the word, and away went the little mare at a clipping rate, and without a skip pulled in under the wire in her record Fantasy, 2:07½, next caused enthusiasm by pulling off the half second and giving herself a new record of 2:07.

Then came the event of the day. Excitement was at fever heat when it was an expensed that Pakert I would go announced that Robert J. would go. Geers appeared confident he would equal his record, yet hardly any one expected the wonderful termination.

After about 10 minutes spent in warming him up, Geers flew down the track After about 10 minutes spent in warming him up, Geers flew down the track with a running mate hanging on his wheel. But the silent man was not fully satisfied, and the word was not given. Again Geere scored down the track, and as he neared the starter's stand Robert J. was as steady as a clock and going like the wind. Geers nodded for the word. Starter Walker gave it and Robert J. shot forward like an express train. On the first quarter he stand Robert J. was as steady as a clock and going like the wind. Geers nodded for the word. Starter Walker gave it and Robert J. shot forward like an express train. On the first quarter he sped in 30¾. Everybody watched the half, and when that was paced in 1:01½ the nerves of the 5000 people were wrought to the highest tension. Gears slowed up just a trifle, but when the three-quarters poet was passed in 1:33¾ all were certain a world's record would be broken. Gears again let the great horse out as he swung in the homestretch. Down he came like the wind and crossed the wire in 2:03¾, making the last quarter in just 30 seconds.

The crowd was almost breathless until the wire was crossed, and as the time was caught up by hundreds of watches, one mighty shout rent the air and it was a most enthusiastic demonstration that took place. Cheers were given for Geers, for Robert J., for Hamlin, his owner, and for the track wind was blowing, with slight promise of increasing in strength or furnishing material for a good day's racing. According to the British yachtsmen, this was just the kind of weather to suit the Vigilant, and they commenced predicting that she would defeat the Satanita, the latter being looked upon as slow in light airs.

Of course the regatta lost much interest from the fact that it was understood the Britannia would not be able to start on account of the drowning of Chief Officer Simonds and two companions, on on account of the drowning of Chief Officer Simonds and two companions, on Saturday last, while attempting to pull ashore from the prince of Wales' yacht at Weymouth.

The race which the Vigilant took part in today was for yachts not exceeding 40 rating, first prize $250, second prize $150. The course is from Dartmouth range to the bell buoy off the Skerries, thence to a mark boat off East Blackstone, and back to the starting line, four times around, total distance 40 miles.

Dartmouth harbor presented a beautiful spectacle. The visiting yachts of the squadron were drawn up in line like houseboats, and the water of the quaint old harbor was alive with small craft. At various spots along the harbor the hills were covered with parties of picnickers. It is probable, however, the most interested spectators of the race today were the royal naval cadets of the training ships Britannia and Hindoostan, which were given a holiday.

When the hour for starting the main event arrived, the wind had not strengthened, and aquatic critics looked upon the race as being virtually decided in favor of the Vigilant.

The following were the times of the yachts as they crossed the starting line: Dartmouth harbor presented a beauti-

The following were the times of the yachts as they crossed the starting line:
Satanita, 10:30:17; Vigilant, 10:30:49.
The former thus had 32 seconds the best of it, but the Vigilant soon began to overhaul her, and four minutes after crossing the line the American sloop passed the Satanita and set her spinnaker for a broad reach to the Skerries.
The Vigilant then began stadilly in-ker for a broad reach to the Skerries. The Vigilant then began steadily increasing her lead, and everywhere it was admitted that the Satanita had no chance of overhauling her fleet rival.

In the first round the Vigilant maintained a steady lead until the close of the round, when the Satanita did much better. But the American yacht had a winning lead at the end of the round of 15 minutes and 10 seconds. Eventually, owing to foggy weather, the race was stopped, after the yachts had been becalmed for a long time with the Vigilant in the lead. The sailing committee decided that the race was void, and condecided that the race was void, and con-sequently the Vigilant does not get the

It was thought by every one, especially as the committee allowed the 40-class match to be decided at the end of the first round, that a like course would be adopted with regard to the Vigilant and the Satanita, but the astonishing announcement was made that the match was void, owing to the fact that it had not been finished in eight hours. The time clause, the correspondent says, has become utterly obsolete in every other club, and he says that after the Vigilant had been hurried from Cowes to this point for the regatta better treatment should have been meted out to her. The Vigilant was two-thirds of a mile ahead of the Satanita when the race was declared void. OCEAN GRAYHOUNDS.
