DIPHTHERIA NOT PREVALENT.

Professor Search Discusses the Subject.

There is No Immediate Danger of the Disease Spreading.

The Anti-Toxine Treatment Said to Be Still an Experiment—The New York Plan of Diagnosis.

The Chestnut street school still remains closed, and the residents of East Los Angeles are greatly excited over the presence of diphtheria in their midst.

Prof. P. W. Search, superintendent of the city schools, in talking over the matter with a HERALD reporter yesterday, said that there is no special cause for alarm.

"In the first place," said he, "we are daily notified by Dr. Powers, the city health officer, of all contagious cases coming within his notice; and he is an authority upon such matters.

Under the law, all physicians are compelled to inform the health officer, in writing, of all cases of diphtheria and other contagious diseases which they are attending.

The health officer at once quarantines and fumigates the premises and does all within his power to prevent the spreading of the disease.

"In the Chestnut street school district six cases were reported by the health officer to this office, and I at once started out on a tour of investigation.

I found that some scholars had attended the school, and by coming in contact with him the other pupils had contracted the disease.

I decided that there was but one thing to do and that was to close the school for fear that more of the scholars might become ill.

"While I am talking upon the question," continued Professor Search, "I would like to say that the health department is one of the most important adjuncts of the city government, and it is a shame that a larger appropriation is not made to properly maintain it.

I believe that Dr. Powers is allowed but $200 monthly, which to pay his three deputies, and this amount will not recompense good and efficient men.

One knows better than I do how invaluable these health reports are, and I am sure I do not know how the city schools could be kept in a healthy condition and the spread of contagion prevented were it not for the supervision of sanitary matters by the health officer.

A FIGHT FOR COIN.

Shares of the Lake Hemet Water Company in the Courts.

The case of W. F. Whittier vs. Hancock M. Johnson, in which large interests are involved, occupied the attention of Judge Van Dyke yesterday in department four.

The action is one instituted to recover $45,976.83, alleged to be due upon 20 promissory notes, and for an order foreclosing 9678 shares of the capital stock of the Lake Hemet Water company, given as security for the payment of the said notes.

The defendant not only invokes the statute of limitations as a bar to the proceedings, but claims that each and all of said notes were executed with the distinct understanding that payment of them should not be demanded by the plaintiff or any one else, but that they should be repaid out of the profits accruing to the defendant from time to time through the operations of said corporations in the rentals and sales of water and land.

And still further, in his cross complaint, the defendant alleges that an agreement was entered into between himself and the plaintiff by the terms of which it was stipulated that he should advance all moneys necessary to meet all assessments which might be levied on defendant's stock, which amounted to one-tenth of the entire capital stock, for two years, at the expiration of which term he was to be repaid. It is intimated also that the stock in controversy had been fraudulently converted by plaintiff to his own use, and defendant seeks a payment for $150,000, the value thereof.

ON A FELONY CHARGE.

THE ARREST OF A WELL KNOWN LIQUOR DEALER.

L. T. Banks Accused of Obtaining Over $500 Worth of Whisky Under False Pretenses.

L. T. Banks was arrested last evening on a felony charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. Deputy Constable Brakehuber made the arrest.

The complaint alleges that Banks designedly and feloniously represented to B. F. Armstrong, the complainant, that he was agent of Moore, Hunt & Co. for the sale of the store and goods at 435 South Spring street and was conducting the same; that such false representations and pretenses were made to induce Armstrong to sell Banks from the house of Moore & Co. six half filled barrels of Jesse Moore whisky and two barrels full of the same brand of liquor, of the value of $57.50, with the intention to defraud Moore, Hunt & Co. of the property.

Acting on Banks' representation, Armstrong, who is the firm's general agent, sold the whisky and delivered it to Banks.

Mr. Banks was seen last night by a reporter for the HERALD regarding his arrest.

"Armstrong has been bounding me for months," he said. "I formerly owned the liquor business at 445 South Spring street, and went out under attachment. I have Armstrong's receipt in full for the liquor, and have no fears as to the outcome of the case."

Banks will appear for arraignment in the justice court today.

Anyone who has children will rejoice with L. M. Matford, of Plainfield, N. J. His little boy, five years of age, was sick with croup. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning, gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now and as soon as any of my children show any signs of croup I give it to them and that is the last of it."

A COUGH-DROP SELLER.

He Shoved His Wife from His Home and Was Convicted.

David Matthews, who sells cough-drops on the street under the name of Prof. Dumane, took the stand in the police court yesterday to defend himself against a charge of battery upon his wife. Matthews was recently sentenced to five days in jail for selling the candy cough drops at hours and places in the street prohibited by ordinance, and immediately after he was released he went home angry.

On the stand he said he thought his wife had been drinking, and he said that no one who drank could stay under his roof. He quarreled with her, and she went to a neighbor's and remained away two nights.

She testified that her husband shoved her from the door immediately upon his arrival at the house on Fourth street, and that she was only partially clothed. She admitted having taken some liquor, but said she never drank before coming to this city, seven months ago.

Matthews was found guilty of battery upon his wife, but the court reserved sentence until today.

Fine Business Opportunity.

Mr. R. H. Howell bought yesterday, through the real estate firm of Wesley Clark & E. P. Bryan, that elegant property at the corner of Sixth and Pearl streets, known as the "Bellevue Terrace," together with all the furniture therein. Mr. Howell proceeds at once to place the property in first-class condition and is ready for a good tenant.

There are 126 rooms, and with the reputation and condition of the property a first-class hotel man can make no mistake in availing himself early of this opportunity. For any particulars Mr. Howell can be found at 127 West Third street.
