

CHURCH WORK

Second Session of Diocesan Convention

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

SHOW A PROSPEROUS CONDITION OF THE WORK

Election of Standing Committees. Business for the Year Finished

The second day's session of the annual diocesan convention of the Protestant Episcopal denomination opened at 9:30 yesterday morning with a prayer service, held in St. Paul's Church, conducted by Rev. Henry J. Camp of Murietta, and Rev. Edmund Walters of Escondido. The members then adjourned to Guild hall, where the meeting was called to order by the presiding officer, Bishop Johnson.

After the reading of the minutes, Rev. W. B. Burrows, chairman of the board of missions, read a comprehensive report of the diocesan missions in last fiscal year: Baptisms, 89; marriages, 59; burials, 57; communicants, 761; receipts of missions, $900.81; aid receipts of the board, $251.73; total, $1,152.54. The expenditures of the board were $1181.91. Seventeen missionaries have held services during the year.

Dr. Easter added the report of the mission of Morena, which contains 13 communicants, and is in every way promising.

The financial committee reported through Rev. Bakewell Phillips of Pasadena, showing a satisfactory financial condition. Of last year's assessment on the parishes for missions only 242 remains to be paid. The bishop's salary has already been fixed at $3000 per year, and those of the secretary and treasurer at $100 each. The committee suggests that incidental expenses should not exceed $300, if the convention is prudent in its printing bills. The total amount to be raised for diocesan expenses and convention fund for the coming year is $3500. The treasurer of the diocese must give a bond for $2000, which, by a resolution of the convention, was made to the bishop of the diocese and the standing committee. Assessments were recommended from each parish.

In a supplementary report of the board of missions the following resolutions were offered:

"Resolved, That the bishop and convention or convention of each diocese and missionary district be requested to constitute, in such manner as they think best, an auxiliary board of general missions to act in behalf of this board, within their own limits, and whose duty it shall be in the behalf of their respective diocesan districts to notify this board before the time of its annual appropriations, what sum they expect and will endeavor to contribute for the next fiscal year."

"Resolved, That the resolution of the domestic and foreign missionary society herein contained be complied with, and that the board of missions of the diocese of Los Angeles is hereby constituted for this diocese an auxiliary board of general missions in the above mentioned resolution."

Dr. Easter reported for the committee on canons, and Dr. Browne spoke to the report recommending an amendment to the canon on Sunday schools, which was discussed at some length.

George W. Parsons, treasurer of the board of missions, reported that the sum total of the pledges for missions from the parishes of the diocese was $1437.11; offerings, $1715.35; total, $7663.49; total disbursements, $7963.49.

Dr. Dotten spoke at some length on a proposed change in the canons, concerning the election of vestrymen. As the canon now stands any man of suitable age and of good business ability, through a non-church member, may be elected to this official position. Dr. Dotten urged that the canon be changed, providing that vestrymen shall be members of the church and of avowed Christian character. Dr. Easter urged that they shall be communicants of the church, and other members spoke to the question.

Rev. Mr. Restarick reported for the special committee of the Episcopal fund, recommending special efforts be made toward increasing the fund, also that the committee be discharged and a new one appointed consisting largely of laymen. Dr. Trew addressed the convention on the Eastman fund for the education of theological students. This related to a common fund held by the diocese of California before that of Los Angeles was formed. A diversity of opinion was expressed, Col. Heath holding that the division of the fund is a matter for the courts to decide and not for a committee. A motion prevailed that the committee be continued, to report at the next annual meeting.

Rev. B. Hartley reported for the special committee on Sunday schools, giving an account of methods used to increase enthusiasm in the work and suggesting plans for the future, which was adopted. Rev. B. W. Taylor made a lengthy report as chairman of the committee on the state of the church. The substance of the report was that the various departments of church work in the diocese of Los Angeles show a most gratifying increase. "The church seems to be stretching out her hands to do that work which God has placed her in the world to accomplish. The laity are realizing the responsibilities which attach to them and are recognizing that the church needs their ministry as much as she needs her own priesthood. This is evidenced in the increase of lay readers, Sunday school workers and women's auxiliaries and guilds."

The speaker discussed at length the proposed establishment of a diocesan paper, and summing up the opinion of the committee, said unless some person financially responsible could be found to stand back of the enterprise to protect the diocese from a deficit, the experiment would better not be made. The committee called attention to a thinly veiled attempt of the bishop of Rome to throw discredit upon the Protestant Episcopal church by the promulgation of a bull on the subject of Anglican orders, which has been met by strong and unanswerable encyclicals from the two bishops of England.

Afternoon Session

The first business of the afternoon was the election of a standing committee, which resulted as follows: Clergy, Dr. Trew, Rev. Mr. Restarick, Rev. John Grey, and Rev. B. W. Taylor; laymen, J. F. Gruell, Daniel Cleveland of San Diego, J. A. Anderson and Judge T. L. Winder.

While the vote was being counted Rev. B. W. Taylor reported for the deaf mute mission, which is in a prosperous condition.

A discussion was held at some length concerning the support of the Pacific Churchman, which was represented by Mrs. Oliver, widow of the late editor. The election of members of the board of missions, the next business in order, resulted in the choice of Rev. M. Wren, Dr. Easter, W. B. Burrows, Dr. J. E. Cowles, J. B. Phillips, C. T. Hinde and G. W. Parsons.

George W. Parsons introduced the following resolution: "Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Francis Lefroy the church at large has sustained a heavy loss by the removal of one who has always been an earnest advocate of all that was for her best and purest interests, and who, by his efficiency and zeal, contributed largely to the general welfare of this diocese."

Dr. Trew spoke of the late editor, Mr. Lefroy, and said it was a privilege to have been his rector. The resolution was adopted by a standing vote and ordered spread upon the minutes.

Bishop Johnson paid a high tribute to the efficiency of the chancellor appointed by the board of missions, and said if he had helped others it was due to the help he had received from the chancellor. Thereupon Mr. Lee was reappointed to the office, of which he is incumbent.

G. W. Parsons was nominated for secretary of the board of missions, and on motion the secretary was instructed to cast the ballot.

Bishop Johnson, Mr. Taylor and others testified to Mr. Parsons' efficiency in the office in the past year.

Bishop Johnson spoke of the proposed diocesan paper, recommended in his address of Wednesday, saying it had always been his desire to increase the support of the Pacific Churchman, hoping it would be the organ of the church on this coast, holding the relation that the larger papers of the east do to the church on the Atlantic coast. He feared, however, that they would fall between two stools, and while not establishing a diocesan paper, fail to make the Churchman the desired medium through which to reach the parishes. On further discussion, the matter was left to the committee to act in conjunction with the bishop.

After some further discussion of finances, the convention adjourned to meet at Guild hall of St. John's church next year, in compliance with a cordial invitation tendered by the rector, Rev. B. W. R. Taylor.

In the evening a mass meeting was held at St. Paul's church, corner of Pico and Flower streets, to discuss in general the work for missions in the diocese of Los Angeles.

The following speakers addressed the meeting: Rev. Dr. Easter of Redlands, Dr. Trew of Los Angeles, H. B. Restarick of San Diego, Rev. William Hart of Lompoc.

RAILROAD RATES

Christian Endeavor Stopovers—S. P. Boring for Oil

The railroad rate to the Christian Endeavor convention to be held in San Francisco from July 7th to 12th have at last been definitely fixed, and yesterday Assistant General Passenger Agent Shepard of the Southern Pacific received his official instructions. Tickets will be on sale at eastern points on June 29th and 30th, July 1st, 2nd and 3rd. These tickets will be limited to arrive at San Francisco not later than July 9th. Stopovers will be permitted in California, therefore those coming via the southern route can have several days' stop at Los Angeles if desired. The tickets will be sold from Missouri river points at $22.50, and from Mississippi river points, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans, $23, and Chicago $25.

Return tickets will be on sale at San Francisco July 12th to 17th inclusive; July 19th, 22nd, 26th and 29th; August 2nd, 5th and 9th; limited to reach eastern terminal not later than August 15th. Such tickets will also permit stopovers within the time limited at various California points.

This means that visitors to the coast on the trip going or coming, can stop in Los Angeles within the limit of their tickets. Thus, for instance, passengers from Chicago out will have over a week here, and the same time returning, should they desire.

Following the example of the Santa Fe, the Southern Pacific is now boring for oil, the drilling being done upon the company's yard property in the northwestern part of the city. The operating department of the road is certain that oil in good quantities will be struck, and should the flow be sufficient in quantity to justify the company in changing from coal to oil as fuel, the price of oil will go down still farther.

The Santa Fe, by going into the oil business on its own account, has succeeded in reducing the price from $1.60 to $1.20 a barrel. Manager Nevin said yesterday that he saw no reason, if the Santa Fe wells pan out at Fullerton as is expected, why his people should not soon be selling oil on their own account. The company consumes only about 300 barrels a day, and that amount is now being pumped from the one well in operation.

Fred Henderson, formerly private secretary to the late General Manager Wade, of the Santa Fe, and who has acted in that capacity for Mr. Nevin, has been promoted to the chief clerkship of the department, and J. Hotchkiss, formerly stenographer to A. G. Wells, has succeeded him. Mr. Wells is general superintendent of the Atlantic and Pacific, with headquarters at Albuquerque. Mr. Hotchkiss assumed his new duties yesterday.

When the case of Garner, accused of counterfeiting, was called in the United States district court yesterday morning, it was found that Miss Nora Winslow, a witness, was not present. Miss Winslow lives in Bakersfield, and a report from that place intimates that she has been whisked away. When last seen she was in the company of two strange women. The officials about the court house do not believe, however, that there has been any foul play, as witnesses from a distance frequently fail to appear. The case was continued until this morning, and an attachment for her placed in the hands of the marshal.

H. S. Allen, general manager of Allen's

Press Clipping Bureau, is in the city.

VON ARNOLD

The Record of the "Baron Von Turkheim"

HIS CAREER IN ST. PAUL

WHERE HE RAN A PRIVATE DETECTIVE AGENCY

The Unsavory Deals He Was Mixed Up In—An All Around Swindler and Scoundrel

Among the visiting railway conductors now in the city in attendance upon the convention is William R. Cummins, better known as "Billy" Cummins, a conductor on the Great Northern railroad, running out of St. Paul. In the course of conversation yesterday the name of Von Arnold, the pseudo baron, whose escapade with Jeanine Young, or, as she claims herself, Mrs. Delmas, was mentioned, and his exploits in Los Angeles and San Francisco recalled.

Mr. Cummins at once became interested, having known Von Arnold in Minnesota, and related in detail his knowledge of the man, his mode of life, and the position he had earned for himself wherever he has appeared. Said Mr. Cummins:

"I got on the train of Von Arnold 'de dedekid' as we called him in St. Paul, in San Francisco. I knew him very well. He never remains unknown very long at a place he visits. He was a time a 'spotter' on the Great Northern. I heard while in Sacramento how the Bee had employed him to play the role of a wealthy Chicagoan, with a more wealthy 'brudder,' and lay a trap for the Sunday Sun editor and some of the other prominent men of the city. Then he was as 'Baron Von Turkheim' he had Attorney Delmas, in San Francisco, of the affectionate attentions of Jeanine Young, married her and took her to London, England, where he deserted her in the Hotel Cecil. He is more varied and fertile than any heavy villain ever depicted on the stage."

"He came to St. Paul from Chicago in 1890 as a detective. He was then plain Karl Von Arnold. After looking the ground over he made the acquaintance of a German farmer in Dakota county, just south of West St. Paul, named Fessler, who had a son who was a detective, with which he had paid $250 to a Cincinnati 'detective agency.' The old man could not make the son work on the farm, and as he was the only child he had he soon fell a victim to Von Arnold's gorgeous verbal pictures of the sure success of the detective work. Von Arnold, with his son as assistant chief, Fessler raised $4000 by mortgage on his farm and placed it in the bank. As a wise precaution all checks were to be signed by his son, who was treasurer of a corporation, for which a certificate was duly issued by the secretary, a state agent, and the money was sent to St. Paul. Men were employed as block watchmen. Advertisements appeared in the papers for men, wages $60 a month. A deposit of $30 was exacted, and candidates were required to work two weeks on probation. When the final collapse came, I don't know how many were racing around, vainly trying to get their deposits back. Expensive uniforms were ordered, and the Turkish sultan never was more resplendent than 'Chief Dedekid' Von Arnold and young Fessler in their glittering clothes."

"The latter got in the habit of signing checks on demand of the 'chief' to be sent to mythical correspondents in various parts of the country, who were in hot pursuit of mythical culprits, for whom rewards amounting to 'meeluns' were offered. It would take a volume to tell all the tricks resorted to by the 'chief.' Old man Fessler became dazed. He sold his farm and deposited the price in the bank, subject to the agency's draft. A suite of rooms was rented on Jackson street, and richly furnished, as the headquarters of Von Arnold drew $250 a month, and allowed his wife $150, being about seven times as much as the young fellow ever earned before, and all the expenses were eating steadily into the $12,500 realized from the sale of the farm. There was no income. When the second month's rent was due there was no money in the bank to pay it. Installments on the furniture were overdue, tailor bills came in from Minneapolis, etc. The 'dedekid' had received checks for all these and pocketed or spent the funds. He smoked the finest cigars, drank high-priced wines, and had a woman who posed as his wife who wore costly raiment. The agency finally was ejected from its quarters, and the Fesslers obtained work as day laborers."

"During the existence of the agency a tornado one Sunday afternoon created great destruction along the north suburb of St. Paul. Many wealthy people and elegant cottages along the banks of the numerous lakes in the vicinity. Several were destroyed and the inmates killed or injured. A wealthy carriage maker named Schurmeler, on Rosabel street, lost his wife and son-in-law. The wife's body was thrown into Lake Vadnais and parties were formed to grapple for it. It was not found until it came to the surface. A reward of $500 had been offered for its recovery. Von Arnold took some men out to grapple and, after the body was picked up by a fisherman, he worked on Schurmeler so as to obtain $200. After the agency collapsed he commenced suit for $500 against the distressed carriage maker for services. On the stand he swore he had never received a cent, by check or otherwise. The face of the $200 check was shown him. He was slightly confused and swore he knew nothing of it; his manager must have received and cashed it. It was turned over and his signature in his own handwriting was shown him, and the words 'receipt in full' on the face. Judge Touhy dismissed the case, and threats of prosecution for perjury were made."

About this time a saloonkeeper named Becker, on South Robert street, died, leaving a plump widow who continued the business. She had a daughter, Ida, about 17, as corpulent as her mother. They ran a Sunday resort called Becker's grove, in South St. Paul. 'Dedekid' Von Arnold was soon manager of this business, and disappeared from general public notice for a few weeks, when one morning he stepped out of the 'bull pen' before Police Judge Corey, on the charge of criminal assault, Mrs. Becker being the complaining witness. She stated that Von Arnold had induced her daughter to elope with him to Minneapolis on promise of marriage, but had induced her to postpone the wedding, and they had been living together in rooms on the corner of Third and Wabasha streets for a week. She said the girl was under 16 and under the age of consent. On the stand he boldly told that he had been intimate with Mrs. Becker and jealousy prompted the action, as she had let him have all the money he needed.

"The proof as to the girl's age was not clear, and the charge was changed to disorderly conduct; he was given the highest sentence of the court, ninety days in the workhouse, which he served, breaking rock, besides losing his waxed Napoleon III. mustache."

"After his release by some means he obtained a position as 'spotter' on the railroad, a position for which he was really qualified. While in the workhouse Chief of Police Clark received a letter from a woman in Chicago, who said she was Von Arnold's wife and she had three children, and the family were starving. I was not surprised when I heard of him here and saw his familiar features in the papers."

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS

The Westminister to Close for Repairs Saturday Night

Saturday evening the Hotel Westminster will close its doors for the summer, and on Monday morning the work of alterations and repairs, which is expected to take about four months, will commence. About $60,000 will be spent in improvements. The front of the building is to be painted white, and the office building will be repainted. The ceiling on the first floor will be entirely torn out, and the stairway near the center of the doors is to become a thing of the past. The house will be equipped with electricity and steam heating throughout. The present banquet hall is to be demolished, and in its place will be built a dining and supper room. New office fixtures have been ordered, and a new marble stairway will grace the center of the left side of the office. Instead of the two main entrances there is to be but one, with a vestibule upon the Main street level. The plumbing alone in the new house will cost $10,000.

The necessary papers for extraditing Louis Montaroli, the Frenchman charged with stealing $890 from a sheep herder, and who was arrested on Wednesday at Chicago, were yesterday made out by Assistant District Attorney Holton. Under Sheriff Clement went east last night to bring the prisoner back to Los Angeles. Sheriff Burr received a telegram yesterday from General Superintendent of Police Kopley at Chicago to the effect that Montaroli had renounced the offer of voluntarily returning to this city. No chances were taken, however, and the papers were made out.

Columbia Run

The third annual Columbia club run occurs on Sunday, May 23, to Santa Monica. All Columbia riders and their friends are invited. Leave names with Stephens & Hickox and get badges.

Miss Alice Beach McComas, daughter of Judge C. C. McComas, deputy district attorney, will graduate from the music department of the University of the Pacific May 27th.

CHRISTIAN REALISM

LECTURE BY THE REV. PATRICK C. YORKE

Los Angeles Theater Crowded—Catholic Dogmas Explained—The Real and the Ideal

The Los Angeles theater was packed to the roof last night for the first of a series of three lectures given by the Rev. Patrick C. Yorke of San Francisco, under the auspices of the Catholic Truth society. The speaker, who was introduced by the Right Rev. Bishop Montgomery, first explained briefly that the aim of the Catholic Truth society was to explain the truth about Catholicism, not only to Catholics, but to Protestants. He said there were many points in which the Catholics and the Protestants agreed in theory but differed in practice; there were others in which they radically differed.

He deplored the misunderstanding and misrepresentation that existed which credited the Catholics with an exchange of money in the confessional box, as that implied a man might sin in direct ratio with the amount of money he had; and that comfortable doctrine, the doctrine of indulgences, which was wrongfully understood as meaning that a man could raise particular Cain for that particular time. Such things and others that Father Yorke instanced, he stated were all misrepresentations, and they were "growing beautifully less," as, through the work of the Catholic Truth society, the true principles and beliefs and practices of the church were explained.

"Thank God," said Father Yorke, "we have too much respect for our own opinions not to respect the honest opinions of others, and that we do not have to further our own beliefs by maligning the beliefs of others. We live in a community in which all are equal under a common law, and we must know one another. That we may not believe false concerning them we must learn to know our neighbors, then we can respect them; and we must let others know our beliefs and bring them into the inner sanctuary of our faith, so that respect may grow, one for another."

Then it was that Father Yorke really attacked his subject for the evening, "Christian Realism." He referred to the dogma, peculiar to the Catholic church, of the real presence of Jesus Christ in the sacrament of the Eucharist, and dwelt some time on the mysteries of transubstantiation. He spoke of the relation of God to man which pervades the Scriptures; of the instinct of the human heart to be close to God; of the growth of spiritual conditions from mere paganism and idolatry; of the incarnation. He touched on the Unitarian and Trinitarian beliefs, and referred to the danger of ritualism retrograding from the ideal.

In this connection the speaker illustrated his meaning by pointing out the real and the ideal in various forms of art, and said with his soul and his body a man has the ideal to look to and the real to reckon with, and it is he who strikes the golden mean, who comes the nearest to perfection.

The speaker quoted liberally from the Scriptures throughout his discourse, and read extracts from Macaulay and Jeremy Taylor in corroboration of certain points. The next lecture will be Tuesday evening, May 26th, when the subject will be "A Hard Saying."

Cattle Do Damage

A drove of cattle was driven through the city yesterday morning before daylight along Loma drive, and they ran over and damaged the lawn and shrubbery of property owners along that street very seriously.

CAPTURED AT WORK

FIVE YOUNG BURGLARS SURPRISED BY AN OFFICER

Two of the Gang Managed to Escape by Running—The Rest Are Safely Locked Up in Jail

Officer Davis and Joe Manning yesterday made a raid on a gang of five young fellows who were burglarizing an unoccupied house at 312 N. Alameda street, and had the satisfaction of bagging three members of the gang, after a lively chase. The place was formerly occupied by Cora Phillips' notorious resort, and belongs to Joe Manning. Recently the house was vacated, although the upper part of the house was left furnished, and the lower floor, or basement, has been used as a dance hall.

Yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock Officer Davis was informed that burglars were at work in the house, and in company with Mr. Manning he started for the place. When they arrived one of the gang, who had been placed on guard, gave the alarm and the whole lot rushed out at once and made a break to get away.

The officer gave chase and succeeded in overhauling three of them, who gave their names as Will Roach, Earl Young and B. Reddick. The names of the two boys who escaped could not be learned. They were all between the ages of 16 and 20.

An examination of the premises showed that they had effected an entrance through breaking the catch to one of the windows. They had evidently just begun their work, as nothing except a garden hose was missed. They had been carried out of the building and secreted under a hedge, from which it was doubtless expected to remove it when they should be sheltered by darkness.

Thought It Was Not Loaded

William Bergendorff, who lives on Griffith avenue, shot and severely wounded himself just above the knee Wednesday afternoon, while handling what he supposed was an empty revolver. Drs. Clark and Hughes were called, and extracted the bullet. Bergendorff will be kept from work some time by the wound.

RANDSBURG

ACTIVE WORK RESUMED ON THE RAND GROUP

The Late Strike at Val Verde Grows Richer as the Shaft Goes Down. Baldwin's Buy

RANDBURG, May 18.—(Regular Correspondence.) Active work was begun this week on the Rand group of mines, which have been shut down for two months, on account of litigation which has been almost continuous since the mines were opened. The parties owning three-fourths of the property have appointed Col. C. C. Lane as manager, and a force of ten men are at work on the Rand, Olympus and the Yellow Aster. Pat Reddy, who owns the other quarter interest, has posted notices that he will not be responsible for any debts incurred. The Rand mines are very rich and no money has ever been expended in production of ore, the mines paying "from the grass roots down." The ore yields by free milling process from $35 to $125 a ton. The greatest amount of work has been done on the Olympus and the Yellow Aster in the way of tunnels, shafts and inclines. The veins are from three to fourteen feet. There are numerous stringers on these properties that will mill thousands of dollars a ton.

The late strike on the Val Verde is improving in richness as depth is obtained. Three feet of the ore last taken out is running two and one-half ounces per ton. The No. 3 incline is being put in readiness for machinery.

"Lucky" Baldwin has purchased a claim adjoining and running parallel with the Val Verde, having been greatly impressed with the mines in this vicinity. The claim is near the rich strike in the Alameda.

J. D. Brown is surveying the water line from Desert Springs to the foot of the grade below Randsburg, where it is proposed to pipe water by gravity.

C. E. Cyger of Garlock has gone to South Africa to remain an indefinite period.

Mrs. G. M. Bevin was thrown from a horse and seriously injured on Friday evening. She was found unconscious in Fiddler's gulch, and it is believed that the shock will cause her to lose her reason.

Mrs. H. L. Squires, proprietor of the Johannesburg hotel, has gone to Catalina to attend the annual convention of the hotel association.

A fine shower of rain fell on Friday, accompanied by lightning and thunder. La Esperanza parlor 24, N. D. G. W., gave a very pleasant social and dance at the Native Sons' hall. The following program was rendered: Piano solo by Miss Ada Stone, recitation by Miss Josephine Williams, violin solo by Miss Beatrice Phillips, piano duet by the Misses Dohs, recitation by Miss B. Phillips. Dancing was enjoyed the remainder of the evening. Fred Dohs' orchestra furnished the music.

If You are Looking for

BARGAINS

Do Your Buying Here Today

You can do more buying with your dollar at this sale than you can in any other store in this city. The reason for it is very simple. The Temple Block Clothing House was forced to sell out by the order of the Superior Court of this County, and at the Public Auction Sale we were fortunate enough to be the buyers of their $34,000.00 stock for the paltry sum of $16,000.00. What we saved in the purchase price we can afford to share with the purchasing public, and in this way give the BIGGEST BARGAINS in the Annals of Retail Selling.

Nothing like it ever heard of

We quote no prices, as cold type could not do them justice. The prices we will actually give are guaranteed to be away lower than the lowest ever made in this city.
