Motorman Owens was adjusting his controller and preparing for the trip into town, and Pierson was at the rear of the car placing the end lights. At this moment the robber boarded the car. Owens turned, looked at him, and thinking the man simply a passenand thinking the man simply a passenger, paid no further attention to him.

Pierson Faces Revolver

Pierson in the meantime had adjusted the red lights at the rear of the car and was within several feet of the motorman when the lone highwayman, with a white handkerchief tied across the lower part of his face, shoved a revolver in the face of Pierson and commanded him to throw up his hands.
The motorman complied, and turning

When he had the two men lined up the robber, after cursing both men, turned his attention to Pierson and took $20 from his pockets. The robber then took the nickels from the changer strapped about the waist of the carman. Apparently satisfied with his work, the highwayman did not molest Owens, but commanded the latter to start the car at once and to go ahead at full speed.

Redwood Companies May Organize

Efforts are being made to organize the executive heads of the selling departments of the lumber companies engaged in handling redwood whereby the selling price may be raised from Eureka.

It is claimed that the redwood companies have been selling at a loss for three years, while the pine lumbermen have not only been making money through their organization, but have been invading the field of the redwood at full speed. at full speed.

Motorman Fires at Robber

After the car was under headway the man leaped off the steps after riding about twenty-five feet, and ran toward some bushes at the sidewalk. Owens, who was armed with a revolver, ran to the rear of the car and fired five times at the robber, who was partly visible behind the shrubbery.

The highwayman is described as being about 27 or 30 years old, 8 feet 8 inches in height, and weighing 135 to 140 pounds. He wore a brown slouch hat and a suit of dark mixed material. The matter was reported to the police a ortly after the arrival of the car at the Pacific Electric station, and detectives are working on the cars.

"And the echo responds?"

"Yes, the echo answers, 'It is, madam, it is!"—Chicago News.
