The Steamship Warrimoo Has Been Altered Since Her Last Visit-A Second Cabin Now Instead of a Steerage-The Arawa to Replace the Monowai.

The C. A. S. S. Warrimoo, Captain Bird, arrived last evening about 7 o'clock, from Sydney, via Suva. She left Sydney on November 20th, two days late, on account of repairs to the vessel. Purser Munro reports a rough trip, caused by strong trade winds and heavy head seas. She brought fortyfive tons of freight and four passengers for this port. She resumed her voyage about midnight.

Since the vessel was last here she has received a complete overhauling. It took several hundred men working night and day for four weeks to make year was up yesterday. Mrs. Featherstone called at the Oahu prison yesterday for her ex hus-band's effects, consisting of a ring, clothes, and a pocketbook. There was no money in the latter; all it contained was a list of questions that the convict had written out for use on his trial. One was, "Now, when I abused you or struck you, didn't I always come to you later and say I was sorry?" His wife was to answer this. Mrs. Featherstone told Jailer Low that she had heard from the escape; he wrote that he was in British Columbia in a poor state of health. She said that she would soon leave for the North, whether to join her ex-spouse or not she did not state. In the letter Featherstone admits that his break for liberty was not premeditated and that no one assisted him. He says that when he left the shore the current was strong, and sooner than return and take chances in the breakers he pulled out to sea.

A Jap named Sasaki, one of the eight arrested yesterday afternoon for gambling, will be brought before the Court this morning to answer to a charge of attempted bribery as well as gambling. Sasaki, when arrested, passed to Officer Holi $14.50 and asked the officer to see that he got free without fine. Later, a friend of the Japs came to the Station and balled them out. Sasaki seriously objected to his portion of the ball being paid. He said he had already put out $14.50 toward his freedom and wanted this amount deducted. The confession of the attempt to bribe made him subject to a second and more serious charge. He was immediately put back into the "cooler" and his ball placed at $250.
