READ
POE'S BOOKS

Few people have not read "The Raven" and "The Bells," poems by Edgar Allen Poe, but his wonderful prose works have only recently begun to be appreciated.

Poe's marvelous imagination has originated many splendid short stories which have been the inspiration of many more recent writers.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, for instance, admits using Poe's "Dupin" as the model for his "Sherlock Holmes."

If you want to get a glimpse of Poe's great genius get a set of his books.

Set, beautifully bound, $10.

Do., more elaborate, $15.

Sold on easy payments.

GENEROUS
RESPONSESubscriptions for San Francisco From Other Islands.

The contributions to the San Francisco relief fund are now coming in from the other islands, and, as was the case among the Honolulu subscribers, there has been a ready response to the requests of the soliciting committees. Yesterday Hilo, Lahaina, Kihala and Waialua were heard from, the collectors asked to serve by the Territorial Committee at those points announcing a total of at least $1500, part of which was forwarded.

Carl S. Smith, of Hilo, writes to Secretary Wood that in the neighborhood of $1000 has been raised by him with the assistance of Judge Parsons. This sum is for the most part subscribed among the employees of the Hilo business houses, as the headquarters for these firms are principally in Honolulu, where the firm subscription has been made.

From the employees of the Pioneer Mill Co., at Lahaina, Maui, A. Halberg sent a draft for $248.50, with a letter stating that a larger amount would have been forthcoming had there been more time allowed for the canvass. He will forward any additions to the subscription list.

The subscriptions from Waialua will be sent forward on the Claudine, C. B. Weller, chairman of the Waialua committee, writing that funds were being collected at that point.

A money order for $73.50 has been received from H. L. Holstein, of Kihala, who says that there will be more to follow on the next steamer, when the list will be forwarded.

SEATTLE FIRM
AFTER BUSINESS

That the disaster in San Francisco has been taken advantage of by at least one northern firm, in order to get a trade foothold in Hawaii, is evidenced by the advertisement of the American Mercantile Company, of Tacoma, Wash., appearing in this issue. A. F. Cooke received cable instructions one day last week to insert the advertisement.

The firm in question has for some time past been doing more or less business here in coal, lime and lumber and has evidently decided to make further effort to obtain local patronage now that San Francisco's resources are temporarily crippled.

RESURGAM.

By Tom McGiffin.

We cannot place the wreath upon thy bier—
Thou art not gone, tho' Death seemed very near;
Let jealousy now weep disconsolate!
Stand fast, proud pillar of the Golden Gate!

M'KENNA STILL WORKS AT HUT

McKenna, Superintendent of the cable company at San Francisco, who rose into prominence as the man who after working for forty-eight hours with little food and no sleep, sent out news of San Francisco's plight to the world, is still at the cable hut near the Cliff House. His entire staff is with him. They are comfortably housed, having a number of rooms in the cable station. McKenna has not been back to the city since the morning of the earthquake.

NOTES.

Brainerd H. Smith has received a cable from the Hidalgo Plantation and Commercial Co., saying that their loss is slight and the records are all safe.

A cablegram received from Jared Smith yesterday stated that he will return to Honolulu on the Moana, reaching here from Vancouver May 5th. The cablegram was from Spokane, Washington. Mr. Smith had intended to come home on the Mangolia, but stopped over at Lincoln, Neb., and by that probably missed being in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake.

John Burns, ex-workingman, now cabinet minister, once contended publicly that no man's work is worth more than $2,500 a year. But John Burns has had to take a good deal of rallying, since, with his 500 pounds maximum on record, he has accepted an office which pays 2,000 pounds. In Battersea, during the recent election, he had to endure some good-humored heckling by his constituents on this subject. He answered that he was, at any rate, receiving only the prevailing rate of wages in his new trade. When one courageous woman in his audience rose to put the pointed inquiry, "But what do you do with the money, John?" his sufficient reply was, "Go ask the missus."
