Uncle Sam Sells Gold Bricks by Tons.

Beneath stout bars guarding a wide, arched window in the United States assay office in Wall street thousands of dollars' worth of little gold bricks, the honest and true kind, pass every day from Uncle Sam's coffers to the hands of jewelers and bankers. And all that Uncle Sam charges for the exchange is 4 cents on $100 for the large bars and 5 cents on $100 for the small ones.

For the week ending July 28 the gold bars (they did not call them bricks in the assay office) exchanged for gold coin amounted to $190,780 17. This is a small figure compared with what the office has done on a busy day. Once, six or seven years ago, when a large quantity of gold was to be shipped to Europe, the assay office exchanged $8,000,000 into bars.

The bars Uncle Sam dispenses are of two general sizes, the $500 size for bankers and the $150 size for jewelers, the small size being about an inch and a quarter long, three quarters wide and perhaps half an inch or less in thickness. Very often they run up to $200 or even more in value. Their size adapts them to the size of the jewelers' crucible. As for the banker, he does not melt his gold; he contents himself with shipping it back and forth across the ocean.

A remarkable feature of this exchange of legal tender for gold bars is that one cannot always get just the amount he wishes. If a jeweler or a banker wishes $10,000 in gold bullions, Uncle Sam gives him as near that amount as he possibly can. It may be $9970 50 or $10,050 30, because the bars vary in size and weight, and practically all of them have odd cents in their value. Two bars the cashier handed out one day this week were stamped $531 70 and $123 10.

In buying gold bars the purchaser first tells the cashier at the assay office how much he wishes; the cashier comes as near this amount as he can with the bars on hand, and then the purchaser goes next door, to the Sub-Treasury, where he deposits his legal tender, gold certificates, greenbacks or gold coin, for the amount designated by the assay office cashier as the nearest to the desired amount, receiving therefor a certificate which, upon presentation at the assay office, insures the delivery of the bars. But before they may be taken away the recipient must sign for them in the register which lies open beneath the bars of the wide arched window. —New York Post.

The First Local Mint.

One of the institutions here which has the special attention of tourists as well as the local people is the Mint, which is established on Nuuanu street, opposite Queen Emma Hall. It is interesting to enter the large main working room where general manager McDonough and his corps of assistants are at work. The cool and large lanai is a proper resting place and the vaults, where the "bars" to be minted and beer are kept present a very tasty spectacle. The Mint is open from 5:30 a. m. to 11:30 p. m. and during those hours the work never ceases. Visitors after looking over the place will find first class refreshments and the purest of liquors.

THE INDEPENDENT 50 cents per month.

Is Accidentally Shot.

LONDON, Oct 26—Almeric Hugh Paget, who married Miss Pauline Whitney of New York, was accidentally shot by a friend while shooting in the country. After the accident Paget was sent to London, where it was found necessary to take out one of his eyes. It is believed that the sight of the other eye will not be affected.
