

Mrs. O. T. Wingfield Again President

CONNEYSVILLE, Ind., April 7.—Mrs. O. T. Wingfield of Indianapolis, was re-elected president of the International Order of King's Daughters, at its annual meeting here. Miss Blanche Maine and Mrs. Carl Stagg, both also of Indianapolis, were re-elected vice-president and secretary, respectively. Other officers include the following: Mrs. John Conn, Evansville, second vice president; Mrs. J. O. Wilson, Ft. Wayne third vice president; and Mrs. L. E. Mitz, Madison, treasurer.

PUSS IN BOOTS, JR.

By DAVID CORY.

"There were once two cats of Kilkenny. Each thought there was one cat too many.

So they fought and they bit. And they scratched and they bit. 'Till, excepting their tails, And the tips of their tails, Instead of two cats, there weren't any."

"You don't say so," exclaimed Puss Junior. He was seated in a comfortable inn in the town of Kilkenny.

"Well, that's the way it went," glibbed the Innkeeper, a good-natured sort of fellow. "One of the cats belonged to me, so that's the reason I happen to know so much about it."

"That's interesting," said Puss Junior. "Won't you tell me more?" So the good-natured host sat down and began:

"I raised my cat from a kitten; he was a fine one, I tell you. Marked just like a tiger, and the way he could fight—well, there wasn't anything in the cat line in this town that could touch him until, one day, a stranger arrived. Just an ordinary, every day tramp cat; scared and scratched in many a battle. Well, he made his home in the stable, and wouldn't leave."

"Every night there was a fight between him and my cat, till, finally, one morning, when I went out to the stable, I saw only the tips of their tails and a few of their nails in the yard. Ah, he was a cat!" and the Innkeeper sighed and looked at Puss Junior. "You would have liked him, my noble sir."

"I think I should have," said Puss, "for he must have been very brave. But I must be on my way."

The Innkeeper was sorry to have him go, for he was fond of cats, but that didn't make any difference to Puss. So off he went. And by and by whom should he come across, but Little Tommy Green. "Oats, cats, nothing but cats today," said Puss to himself. "Here's the boy who put the poor pussy cat in the well; she hasn't been well since, I'll wager," said then Puss laughed at the pun he had made.

"Hello, Tommy Green," he cried, "how's the poor pussy cat that never did you any harm but killed the mice in your father's barn?"

"Oh, she's all right," said Tommy Green. "She's got five little kittens. I gave one to Johnny Stout. He pulled her out, you remember."

"And have you been kind to her?" asked Puss.

"Yes, sir," said Tommy. "I've never forgotten what you said to me," which pleased Puss Junior immensely.—Copyright, 1922.

The Comprehensive Variety of the Stocks

Makes Coat and Suit Choosing

A Particularly Happy Occasion at Ayres'

And the thing that adds still further piquancy to shopping for wrap or suit here is the fact that the stocks are never the same two days in succession. New things are constantly arriving, and, of course, almost as quickly being sold. These are some of the newest things.

Coats of herringbone tweed in topcoat style, in gray and tan, and belted, $25.00.

Plaid capes, from $19.75 to $22.50.

English topcoats from Burberry of London, are comfortably mannish, $59.50.

Tweeds and novelty plaids in tan, green and brown, range from $29.50 to $45.00.

Velours check swagger coats with raglan shoulders and Jenny sleeves are just $39.50.

And capes are just as numerous and just as irresistible. But they deserve attention in an advertisement to themselves. That for another day.
