The Populist.

The Populists have early begun preparations for the campaign of the coming year, and today an important meeting was held of leading Populists of McCracken, Ballard, Carlisle and Marshall counties at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Those in attendance were very averse to disclosing much about the meeting, and all day they were in consultation.

Editor L. K. Taylor was chairman, and Hon. Ben C. Keys, of Calloway, was in attendance.

Mr. Taylor was seen by a SUN reporter and stated that as the next year was a campaign year, the Populists had decided to begin early, and this was one of the objects of today's meeting.

A judicial committee, composed of the following, was appointed: Capt. Finley, W. T. Pepper and E. T. Ogilvie, of McCracken county; Henry Ham, J. J. Dupriest and W. P. Hamilton, of Marshall. While at present there is no intention among the Populists to put out candidates for county judge and commonwealth's attorney, the desire, according to Editor Taylor, to cast their votes for the best man.

A senatorial committee for McCracken, Ballard, Carlisle and Marshall counties was appointed as follows: two for each county: McCracken, Tom Reed and Crit Jones; Ballard, E. J. Doshia and W. E. Sallee; Marshall, N. G. Nelson and J. W. Graham; Carlisle, S. K. Hincin and Sam Summers.

There were also several vacancies in county committees to fill, but no action will be taken until a full meeting can be secured.

Another meeting will be called sometime in the future in regard to some action in the congressional committee. A meeting will be held for this sometime in January.

There was other business before the meeting, it is likely, but the nature was not divulged.

PERSONALS.

Mr. Luther Graham has returned from St. Louis.

Mrs. F. Woodhull left for Chicago this afternoon.

THE COURT HOUSE.

Notes of Interest Picked Up There Today.

Tom Staggs' Case Takes Considerable Time.—Teachers All Paid.

The case against Tom Staggs, charged with breaking into Sport Epstein's store, has been on trial in the circuit court ever since yesterday.

It will be remembered that Staggs was found with an umbrella and a pair of shoes stolen from the store. He claimed that he bought them from Mr. Nelson, the clerk, and that the box was purchased with them.

The box the stolen shoes came in, however, was found in the store. Staggs also claimed that he was in bed at 10 o'clock that night, but officers swore that they saw him after that time near Epstein's store.

The greater part of today was consumed in hearing evidence relative to the defendant's character, and arguments were heard this afternoon. This is all that has been done in court today.

The last will and testament of the late B. H. Wisdom was finally probated today.

O. D. Alcock, of Graves county, aged 26, and Miss Nellie Cunningham, of this county, aged 22, were licensed to marry today and the wedding will occur on the 15th inst.

Chas. Bennett today deeded to Wm. Herron, for $500, some land in the county near Maxon's Mill.

W. H. Sanders and wife deeded to W. D. Sanders for valuable consideration, some property in this county.

Today the county teachers received full pay for four months, which is up to the present date. The county schools are in a flourishing condition and all the teachers are ready for Christmas. Supt. Rouse is just in from a tour of them all.

There is nothing so good for the coughs and colds of the children and babies as Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey. It cures croup, whooping cough, cold in the head and gives sweet, refreshing sleep. It is pleasantly sweet to the taste. Any child will take it and ask for more. Good druggists sell it. For sale by Ochsenschlaeger & Walker.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

Items of Interest Relative to the Railroads and Railroad People.

N. C. AND ST. L. MILEAGE.
Mrs. Nola Foster, of the city, returned this morning from Benton.

Special Agent Linn and wife were in on 104 last evening from Murray.

Dr. J. P. Jewett returned to the city from a call to Murray yesterday.

Hon. B. C. Keys and Mr. J. H. Keys, of Almo, were in on the morning train.

Conductor Fulton had a nice train load of people in this morning on his turn around.

Master Mechanic Potter is out again this morning, after several days' painful illness.

Foreman Saunt Bryant with two car repairers went to Whiteville last night to get a capsized car on the track.

Among others arriving from Benton today were Judge Dupriest, Mr. R. G. Trease, Julius H. ris, Judge Bill Reek and son Roscoe.

Engine 4 was sent out with a long string of cars of gravel to be distributed between the city and Elva this a. m. in charge of R. L. Beck.

Fireman Phil Smith came in on last night's train. He has been enjoying himself for a week or so in Memphis, his old home, on furlough.

John Johnson, an employe of the O. V. road, has been visiting a number of the boys and stopping at the Nichols House for two weeks, departed for Princeton today.

Walter Sanders, the electric key manipulator who was lately transferred from Lexington to Somerville as the lunar gazzer, expresses himself as delighted with the change.

The Southern Express messengers, on the accommodation trains, who have heretofore laid over at Lexington, will in future run through to Memphis, instead of turning back from Lexington.

Pete Goodfellow has discarded his crutches altogether now and left for Lexington this morning and left for Lexington this morning to spend a few days recuperating. Pete will be at work again soon.

Last evening the postmaster at Elva hung his mail sack on the crane some little time before train 104 was due, ready for the mail clerk to grab as the car passed. Train 57, the local freight, came along ahead of the mail train and a standard in a flat car of lumber caught the sack as nately as the mail clerk could have done, and brought it into the city. It was delivered to the clerk as soon as he arrived.

Many funny incidents take place on board the railroad trains. During the war the writer was running a train down South and a most laughable one happened one morning on his run, which created unbounded mirth among the passengers. There were in the hospital at all times numbers of soldiers who were afflicted with chronic complaints, who should they convalesce at all and be sent back to their commands would soon be returned to the hospitals worse off than ever. Many of them spent so much of their time in them that the soldiers dubbed them "regular rats."

On the trip in question one of this class was seated in the car with a furlough and transportation home. At one of the stations a young soldier was awaiting the train dressed in a bran new home made gray jeans uniform, his linen clean and white as snow surrounded by quite a number of relatives and neighbors to bid him goodbye.

He was fat and snappy, the picture of robust health and his appearance indicated the good time he had spent during his leave of absence. After the last farewell had been spoken and a fond old mother's kiss had been given as she pressed him long and lovingly to her bosom, he entered the car and away we sped. The car was crowded, two on every seat except the one occupied by old "Regular." The young soldier asked permission and sat down beside the old chronic. No sooner seated than he, of the Cadaverous visage, recognized him and said, "Well, if you ain't Bill W., of the Fifteenth Mississippi. I never was more mistook in my life." The young fellow turned and remarked, "Yes this is me, and is that you Sam? I did not recognize you. I thought you was back with the regiment."

Sam seemed much delighted to see his old companion, and asked a thousand questions about the regiment, the fights they had engaged in and all about home matters. Then at last he inquired, "Bill you say you have been well all the time, ain't been in a hospital and always fed good?"

"Yes," said Bill, "I enjoy good health, and never felt better in my life."

Then Sam, with a look of envy and a voice heard from one end of the car to the other, said:

"And you are regular on your bowels; what a happy man you ought to be."

And no wonder Sam thought so, as he was a victim of chronic diarrheas.
