TO ATTEND SCHOOL.

Three of Paducah's well known young men, Messrs. Adrian Hoyer, James Sleeth, and Robert Rivers, left yesterday morning for Louisville to enter the Kentucky Medical University.

NOT SERVED.

City Attorney R. T. Lightfoot had a document written out this morning to the tax collector, that he could not legally collect the penalty of five percent for the whole of a person's taxes. The paper was submitted to the mayor, who expressed himself as being of the opinion that the attorney was wrong. They bet a thousand dollars on their respective opinions and got the law. It showed the mayor was right, and the paper was never served on Tax Collector Lyon.

COURT HOUSE.

A List of the Indictments Returned by the Grand Jury.

Three Suits Filed Today—Articles of Incorporation Filed

The last batch of indictments returned by the grand jury, before adjournment Saturday, was as follows: Thomas Deacon, maliciously shooting Mrs. Lee Stanley; Andy Mangi and Jeff Wilkins, horse stealing; Nick Bryant, selling liquor on Sunday; James Kirksey, breach of the peace and disturbing a public assembly; Bert Thompson, shooting on the public highway; Marshall Kelly and John Johnson, grand larceny; Fowler Loftin, malicious assault; J. Martin and Sarah Ann Burns, alias Martin, bawdy house; John Street, alias Travis, and Mandy Ponday, immorality; Wm. Harris, detaining a woman; several young men were indicted for gaming.

W. P. Hopkins this afternoon filed suit in the circuit court against the Adam Roth Grocery Co. and E. Farley for $700 damages.

The plaintiff alleges that in 1922, when he was an infant at law, the defendants filed suit against him in court here and had an attachment issued against his stock of groceries for an alleged indebtedness of $351.50. Defendants executed bond for $700 and Mr. Farley became security. Theo had the grocery closed and when the suit came to trial lost it. Mr. Hopkins now sues for $700 damages.

Mrs. Minnie Peiper today filed suit in the circuit court against Adolph Peiper and others for a settlement of the estate of the late J. Henry Peiper estate. Attorney J. G. Miller was appointed guardian ad litem for the infants.

The First National bank today filed suit in the circuit court against J. M. Fisher for $75 on a note.

Articles of incorporation were today filed in the county court for the Hayes, Foster and Ward Dry Goods company, with capital stock of $12,000. The stockholders are Messrs. R. C. Hayes, A. W. Foster and W. J. Ward.

YOM KIPPUR.

This is the Day of Atonement in the Jewish Church.

This is the day of atonement for the Jews of the world. The occasion is the most solemn and impressive in the Jewish church and is generally observed by all Hebrews. The day is spent in prayer and fasting.

The celebration of Yom Yippur, as the day is known in Hebrew began Saturday night with appropriate services in all Jewish churches. All the stores were closed today.

HOT WEATHER AGAIN.

The Thermometer Soars Again Towards the Top.

Unfortunately the indications are not for cooler weather. Saturday the highest point reached by the thermometer was 94 degrees, while yesterday it went to 88. Today it was thought at the special observer's office that it would go up to 96 or higher.

GREAT BARLOW MINSTRELS.

It has been many years since the great Barlow minstrels were here, but on this their twentieth annual tour they will appear at the opera house next Wednesday evening. These minstrel kings are too well known to the public to need any introduction. All that is necessary to say is that their show this year is bigger and better than ever before. Harry Ward leads the company, which is composed of the best comedians and vocalists obtainable. The street parade takes place at noon Wednesday.

Plantation Chill Cure is made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., hence is reliable.

SHE IS CRAZY.

But the Mayor Said He Was No Asylum.

A colored man named Grant last night repudiated the mayor that his sister, Minnie Grant, had gone crazy and wanted something done with her. The mayor told him he was no asylum and he would have to go to the county authorities. He left and it is likely a writ will be taken out today, and the woman shortly tried before Judge Husbands.

THE HUMMING BIRD.

Some Are Expert Architects—Different Styles of Nests.

Their nests are usually compactly felted structures of various forms, although those cup-shaped and turban-shaped prevail. The materials of which they are composed consist chiefly of plant-down, interwoven and bound together with spider webs, and decorated with an external mosaic of lichens and mosses. Usually the nest is saddled on a horizontal or slanting branch or twig; but others—those of the hermit hummers—are deftly fastened to the sides of long, pointed leaves, where they are safe from monkeys and other predaceous animals.

There are also hammock shaped nests which are ingeniously attached to the faces of rocks or cliffs by means of spider webs. Dwelling in the snowy regions of the Andes are the little gems called "hill stars," which build a structure as large as a man's head, at the top of which there is a small cup-shaped depression in which the eggs are deposited. So expert are some of these dainty little architects that they can securely fasten their nests to swaying straw ropes. Others fix them upon slanting twigs so slender that one cannot see how their balance can be preserved.

In these dainty structures the eggs are laid, lying like gems in the bottom of the cups, and here the little ones are hatched. Some of them look more like bugs than birds when they first come from the shell. The method of feeding the young is mostly by regurgitation; at least such is the habit of the ruby throat, and we have no doubt that many others of the family follow the fashions of humming bird land. The process is as follows: The parent bird thrusts her long bill far down into the throat of her bandling, and then, by a series of forward plunges that are really terrible to witness, the honey food is pumped from the old bird's craw into that of the youngster. So far as is known, the babies enjoy this vigorous exercise and suffer no serious consequences from it.—N. Y. Post.

PACKING IN THE ARMY.

The Men and Their Occupation Described—A Pack Train.

Only able-bodied, strong, muscular men are hired for pack trains. None weighing under 170 pounds is taken, and each packer must be able to lift 200 pounds to the level of his chin. No uniform is required, but all the old-time packers from the west wear a costume similar to that of the cowboy, with leather chaps, broad-brimmed hats and high-heeled boots. These are armed with cavalry carbines, revolvers and hunting knives and they have often done good fighting in the Indian campaigns of the west. A pack mule carries from 250 to 275 pounds. Each train carries ammunition and rations and camp equipment. One mule can carry 100 field rations for men. Usually one-half the train carries rations and the other half tenting, ammunition and varied supplies. But no matter what the load is composed of, the pack train sees that it is adjusted to weigh only 250 to 275 pounds. It takes an experienced packer to adjust these packs by the weight quickly. With a train of experienced mules and experienced men, the fifty pack animals can be saddled and packs adjusted and the march begun within 50 minutes. On the march the bell-horse is never ridden, but is led by one of the packers, and the mules follow the sound of the jingling bell. The bell-horse is usually hobbled, while the mules are grazing, except when an attack is expected, and the horse is held by one of the men. Bridles are unknown articles to a mule train. A "tie-up" is made by placing the bell-horse at the right of the line, and then mule No. 1 is tied to the horse's halter, and each of the other mules must become so perfectly trained that he will step into line at the place designated by his number and stand still while he is being tied to the halter of the mule to his right in the line. A train composed of expert packers and trained animals can make a "tie-up" in two minutes.—Arbel C. Cantley, in Chattanooga.

Why Teeth Decay.

The question to what extent the alkaline earth salts in drinking water affect the decay (caries) of teeth has of late been studied in several quarters. Statistics have been collected by Rose in several localities in Bavaria and by Foberg in Sweden. These have revealed the interesting fact that the extent of decaying teeth bears a definite relation to the hardness of the water; in other words, to the quantity of calcium and magnesium salts in the earth through which the water passes. The harder the water the better the teeth; the smaller the quantity of these salts, the greater the decay of the teeth.—Sued. Ap. Zeitung.

MYSTERY OF CATFISH POINT.

The Pilot Tells of the Loss of Over 100 Lives in the Mississippi.

"Then the Mississippi has its mystery, too," the pilot went on, peering into the perspective, which was slightly intercepted by a small island that was covered by a thrifty growth of young cottonwood trees, "and there isn't an inch of it that couldn't tell its story if it only had the gift of speech. Now there's the mystery of Catfish Point, for instance, there on the right. The timber has all been cleared away and a big plantation has taken its place, but the old hut and the two graves are still there. The scene is always pointed out to travelers, and I reckon I've told the story a hundred times. I wasn't on the boat myself, but came along on the Walk on the Water two days after and learned all about the disaster, and I've kept track of it ever since. It happened in the winter time, when the river was pretty high, and you can see for yourself how wide it is—three miles from bank to bank. The Swamp Angel, that was the name of the boat, was on her way south, when she took fire in the middle of the night and burned and sank. Nobody knows just where she lays, but she is buried in the sand somewhere along here. More than 100 lives were lost. One of them was the wife of the man that they called the mystery, and who lived in the hut there. Of course he is dead now, and one of those graves is his and the other his wife's. He managed to get her ashore, but she died soon after from fright and exposure, and the blow so affected his mind that he never was himself after. Some wood choppers happened along and found them under the bank the next morning. They buried her and took him to their hut, but his reason was gone, and they never learned who he was or where he was from. They fed and clothed him for 20 years, when he died, but he never spoke. He just sat all day in a cane-bottomed chair, looking at the river, like he was watching for her. The men used to say that she visited him nights, that is, her spirit did, and sat by his bed for hours while he slept. People who were looking for lost relatives used to come here and look at him, but he was never recognized. Yes, the river has its mysteries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

BREVITIES OF FUN.

Nurse—"Tommy, there's some jam on your cheek." Tommy (with interest)—"There isn't any worth eating, is there?"—Punch.

"Clara, dear, you don't seem to notice whether your hair gets gray or not." "No, dear Isabel; I know you will keep me posted."—Chicago Daily Record.

Mrs. Read—"Isn't it strange?" Mr. Read—"What, my dear?" Mrs. Read—"There never yet has been a strike in an alarm clock factory."—Jewelers' Weekly.

Uncle Silas—"Samantha we've hit it this year." Aunt Samantha—"Haw, Silas?" Uncle Silas—"This here fashion paper says swell ladies in the city will wear diamonds on all social occasions and not less than a dozen carrots to balls and the opera."—Jewelers' Weekly.

City Editor (in sanctum, addressing the water front editor)—"Joe, you ought to be pretty well up on etiquette. What do you consider the worst form?" "I don't quite remember, but I think it is either chloroform or iodoforn."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Once at an important function at Marlborough house Sir Francis Knollys came up to the prince of Wales and remarked: "Some gentleman of the press with admission, your royal highness." "Oh," said the prince, "show them in. If they don't come in at the door, they'll come in at the ventilator."

The Object Attained.—Borus—"Have you read the latest issue of my story?" Naggus—"Yes, and I can't commend it. It doesn't advance the action of the story at all, so far as I can see." Borus—"What are you talking about? The story is to fill 150 pages. That installment advances

DAINGER IN SODA.

Serious Results Sometimes Follow Its Excessive Use.

Common soda is all right in its place and indispensable in the kitchen and for cooking and washing purposes, but it was never intended for a medicine, and people who use it as such will some day regret it.

We refer to the common use of soda to relieve heartburn or sour stomach, a habit which thousands of people practice almost daily, and one which is fraught with danger; moreover, the soda only gives temporary relief and in the end the stomach trouble gets worse and worse.

The soda acts as a mechanical irritant to the walls of the stomach and bowels and cases are on record where it accumulated in the intestines, causing death by inflammation or peritonitis.

Dr. Harlandson recommends as the safest and surest cure for sour stomach (acid dyspepsia) an excellent preparation sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These tablets are large 20 grain lozenges, very pleasant to taste and contain the natural acids, peptones and digestive elements essential to good digestion, and when taken after meals they digest the food perfectly and promptly before it has time to ferment, sour and poison the blood and nervous system.

Dr. Wuerth states that he invariably uses Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach derangements and finds them a certain cure not only for sour stomach, but by promptly digesting the food they create a healthy appetite, increase flesh and strengthen the action of the heart and liver. They are not a cathartic, but intended only for stomach diseases and weakness and will be found reliable in any stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at 50c per package.

A little book describing all forms of stomach weakness and their cure mailed free by addressing the Stuart Co. of Marshall, Mich.

Every Beginner Rides That Make.

"I reckon," said Uncle Henry, after hearing his grandson read from a paper that it was the proper thing to bestow a name upon one's bicycle, "I shan't have to search for a name for that bicycle of mine." "What are you going to call it?" inquired the visitor. "Did you ever hear tell of circumstances over which you have no control?" "Yes."

"Well, that's what I'm going to call that bicycle, 'Circumstances.'"—Stray Stories.

Unique Hair Restorer.

A hairdresser says that an old silk handkerchief is much better to use in stroking the hair right and morning than a brush.

Antithetic Demonstration.

"Mrs. Jinks," said the new boarder, carefully pouring aloft his untasted mullin, "may I respectfully propound a conundrum to you?" "Certainly, Mr. Hardboy."

"Then why is this mullin unlike a very frivolous person?" "I'm sure I can't guess, Mr. Hardboy."

"Because, madam, it lacks levity—lightness, you know."

And the mullin felt with a thud that rattled the cups in their saucers.—Florida Times-Union and Citizen.
