Program and Synopsis of the Popular Play, "A Noble Outcast,"
Which Will be Given at the Opera House on December 13.

CAST OF CHARACTERS.
Gerald Weston, known as Jerry the tramp, Col. Mathew Lee, a southern banker.
James Blackburn, his nephew, the villain, Jack Worthington, Blackburn's rival, Mrs. Lee, wife of the Colonel, France, a disputed possession, Sadie, faithful but free.

SYNOPSIS OF INCIDENTS.
ACT I.—A garden near Col. Lee's mansion.—Sadie flirting with Jack Worthington, who is coming up the walk.—France and Jack have a little pointed speech that ends in the "usual way."—Blackburn tries to make himself and Mrs. Lee believe that he is in love with France.—Jerry enters in a high state of feeling.—After a short conversation with Blackburn he goes to the kitchen for something to eat.—Is chased out of the kitchen by Sadie.—Blackburn tries to get Jerry to claim France as his daughter, and offers him money.—The tramp shows his true manliness by refusing to accept it.—Jerry exposed as a criminal, tries for some way of escape, but being driven to it he agrees to do the "dirty work" that Blackburn has for him.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.
ACT II.—Drawing room in Col. Lee's mansion.—France is engaged to Jack.—Jerry enters and exposes the plot planned by Blackburn, in which he claims France as his daughter. The Colonel breaks the intelligence to France that she is not his daughter, but that she was adopted by him.—"Luncheon in the parlor for Mr.
Graham."—Blackburn tries to get Jerry to commit forgery.—Jerry is compelled to leave the luxuries that he had expected to enjoy, and take France to a place selected by Blackburn but is prevented by Jack.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.
ACT III.—Jerry's hut.—France tries to get him to eat supper, but it seems impossible for him to keep away from drink. After hearing a story read by France, he leaves for the village.—During his absence Blackburn comes into the hut and tells France of her father's crime.—Jerry returns drunk, and by reading a letter left in an old bible he discovers that he is the father of France.—Blackburn returns and demands an interview with France, but is refused that privilege.—An officer arrests Jerry and he is handcuffed to go to prison for a crime that was not committed by him.—The parting.
—True manhood exemplified again by the tramp.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.
ACT IV.—Same scene as act I.—Blackburn is denied the privilege of seeing France.—It is discovered that he has swindled the Colonel's money and that the Silver Bar Mine is a fraud.—Jerry is found to be innocent and the final is a very happy ending.

Letter From Mr. J. G. Stuart.
Abuquerque, N. M.

Dear Editor and Friends:—

You will see that at last, after visiting for nearly two months, we have settled in Albuquerque.
We are seemingly at the foot of the mountains which are covered with snow, but there is no snow in the valley. We have heavy frosts at night, but enjoy beautiful sunshine through the day—thus, the climate is all one could ask for so far as what I have seen.

We have fine churches and good schools including the State University—but, to make money give me Montana. It is claimed that, for grazing purposes, it takes ten acres of land here for one in Montana. The people here are not a healthy looking people, excepting the natives, as most of them came here for their health and finding the climate agreed with them have gone into business, I have often been asked why I came here as we all are so healthy looking. We are very comfortably located, for the winter, at least.

Yours truly,
J. G. Stuart.

A. A. Vincelette, of Preston, is in town on business today.

M. J. Gupton, of Preston, was Messrs. Heaton and their wives came in from the Edge Hill ranch where they had been visiting for the past two weeks, and left for their homes in the east on Saturday evening.

J. C. Kinney took advantage of the opportunity of having the east end of his lots on Main street, adjoining Beaver creek, filled in while the Collins construction force is in town.
