

EVANS' REPLY TO SICKLES

The Commissioner Defends His Pension Office Policy.

Says He Knows of No Agreement With the National Committee to Out-Him-Quits General's Letters Endorsing His Official Conduct.

"Corporal" Turner, ex-commissioner of Pensions, made the statement after visiting the White House Saturday that Gen. Daniel E. Sickles has in his possession the written pledge of the Republican National Committee that H. Clay Evans, commissioner of Pensions, General Sickles has since been quoted first as denying and afterward admitting the truth of Turner's statement. Last night Commissioner Evans gave out a statement which in part is as follows:

"I know nothing of Maj. Gen. Daniel E. Sickles' alleged contract with the National Committee. I never heard of it until he denied it Sunday, reconsidered Monday, and admitted it Tuesday.

"I know nothing of General Sickles' object in attacking me or the administration of the Pension Bureau at the present time. I am occupying a position of trust and I have constantly refrained from replying to any such attacks, but it seems, in justice to those associated with me in the discharge of the burdens and responsibilities incident to the administration of this great trust, that I should not remain silent, whatever may be his personal aims and ambitions. I had served in my present position over two years when General Sickles wrote me this very nice letter, voluntarily, unsolicited, opening up the correspondence himself, viz:

"New York, June 25, 1901.
"My Dear Governor Evans: I am surprised and gratified to see the attitude toward you taken by some of the Grand Army organizations. Your administration of the Pension Bureau is the work of the highest commendation, and above all, from the veteran soldiers. If you think the matter is of importance to the President would be useful to you, I will cheerfully communicate with him. Sincerely yours, "D. E. SICKLES.
"Hon. Henry Clay Evans, Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C."

"On May 23 I wrote the General thanking him for his kindly expressions, and in return he wrote me the following enclosure, viz:

"25 Fifth Avenue, New York City, June 19, 1901.
"My Dear Governor Evans: I have carefully read the enclosure in your letter of the 23rd inst. and am surprised to find it so simple, clear, and convincing. I have no objection to its publication, and I will be glad to see it in the hands of the public. I have expressed the warmest confidence in you, and of the same measure of contempt for your critics. Sincerely yours, "D. E. SICKLES.
"Hon. Henry Clay Evans, Commissioner of Pensions, Washington, D. C."

"I have other letters from the general equally as strong in commendation of my administration of the bureau.

"The committee of the National G. A. R. on pensions later visited Washington in their official capacity. The Commissioner-in-Chief accompanied the committee. They were invited to investigate the workings of the bureau. They were not limited or restricted in any direction. The most cordial feeling existed between the committee and the Commissioner, together with other officials of the bureau. The report of their investigation, as submitted to the national encampment, was all that the Commissioner could ask for.

"The same Commissioner, the same deputies, the same officials, the same 1,700 employees (with few exceptions), and the same practice prevails in the bureau now that was in force when General Sickles extended his expressions of such generous approval of my administration. His approval was so strong that I placed his letters among those of many other distinguished gentlemen who had seen fit to express their approval.

"Surely there is no lack of generosity on the part of the Administration when it distributes $140,000,000 per annum. Every patriotic American, every good citizen, ought to want an honest administration of the Pension Bureau, as well as all other branches of the Government.

"General Sickles was here in the interest of further pension legislation. I pointed out to him abuses, among which he gave me his enthusiastic approval, expressed in most forcible terms. He says I talked to him of a hundred cases. I could as well have used thousands as illustrations. The general in his recently published interview referred to me as an individual case. I did. I have criticized the system and the practices, and I have used object lessons to show to those who created the law and the system, that it was not with him, but with the system which has been built up from time to time.

"General Sickles' statement that the Commissioner has a brigade of inspectors who travel all over the country with the main object of investigating pension applications for one technical or other excuse, is so lacking in truth that it is hardly worth replying to. Just the reverse of this is the case. The corps of special examiners engaged in this work are authorized by law (and they are gentlemen). Many of them are ex-Union soldiers. They work under a printed book of instructions and in every case sent to them they are expected to get the facts, whether such facts allow or disallow the claim. About 25,000 claims have been adjudicated in the past twelve months. Not to exceed 25,000 of these have passed through the hands of the special examiners referred to.

"The principal object in having this corps of special examiners in field operations is to procure facts upon which to base settlements of claims, and the work instead of retarding the adjudication of claims hastens their settlement.

"I have no apology to make for my administration of this great bureau. I have made mistakes, no doubt; but I have endeavored to be honest with my Government, respecting my oath of office, administering the law as laid down in the practice with equal justice to all. In this I have had the cordial support of the many good employees in this bureau, from the highest to the lowest.

"I beg to call attention to the fact that the disbursements through this bureau and the numerous agencies since I came here have amounted to $600,000,000 or more; there have been no deductions, no misapplication or misappropriation of public funds; there have been no bou-ty scandals or charge of squandering public funds; there has been no selling of appointments or promotions. Can more be asked? Effort has been made to do justice to all.

"I have given four years of the best efforts of my life toward having this Government get control of its pensioning system—and I am proud of the results."

RETURNING TO HONGKONG.

Agonizing Hopeful of Success for the Philippine Cause.

PARIS, June 25.—General Gassier, the European agent of the Filipino rebels, who has been recalled by the Philippine Junta, started for Hongkong today, where he says he will organize affairs for a continuation of the war.

Agonizing declares that the outlook is hopeful, notwithstanding the loss of Aguinaldo, and predicts that the Philippines will become the American Transvaal.

THE TRANSFER OF PEKIN.

Arrangements Between the British and the Chinese Police.

PEKIN, June 25.—General Gassier, British police commissioner, and three British police commissioners, definitely arranged with the Chinese yesterday for the administration of the city until the period of evacuation.

The British retain a patrol of the two busy thoroughfares and permit the Chinese police to carry revolvers. Captains Gilwyn and Crocker, an interpreter, Gilbert Reid, were appointed supervisors to arbitrate questions arising between the two forces.

The Chinese will continue to control certain sections as before, including the business district, the foreign legations, and the Chinese police. All accusations against Chinese in the British employ must be presented at the British legation before July 15. The reason for this rule is that the Chinese administration has already made accusations against several Chinese interpreters.

The city gates are to have a Chinese guard and Chinese police. Chinese parties solely are to be disposed of in the Chinese police. Regulations will be made during the week for other contingencies on the same general principle.

A LEGISLATOR EXPELLED.

Reproduction of the Attack on King Edward Arouses Melbourne.

MELBOURNE, June 25.—A local newspaper last week reproduced the attack on King Edward, printed in the Daily Mail, "Irish People" some time ago. The publication created much popular indignation and excitement, and the Ministers have been in communication with Secretary Chamberlain on the subject.

Mr. Peacock, the Minister of Labor, made a statement on the matter in the Legislative Assembly. He said the communication received from Mr. Chamberlain was of a confidential nature and the Minister was not at liberty to discuss it. He said that the Minister must take his own course. Mr. Peacock then invited Mr. Findlay, a member of the Legislative Assembly, who is also the publisher of the labor paper that reproduced the attack, to explain his action.

Mr. Peacock then moved that Mr. Findlay be expelled from the House. A motion for a vote on the expulsion of Mr. Findlay was carried by a vote of 61 to 11, expelled the offending member. The occupants of the gallery, who had been allowed to return, cheered the announcement.

DENIED BY THE SALT UNION.

No Intention, It Is Stated, of Entering the Trust.

LONDON, June 25.—The managing director of the Salt Union is quoted by the morning newspapers as emphatically denying that his organization has entered into the International Salt Trust. He says that so far as the Salt Union is concerned, such action would not have been considered.

In regard to Mr. McDowell, who is reported as conducting the English side of the negotiations, the managing director of the Salt Union says he has not a director of the Salt Union. He is merely a shareholder.

PREPARING FOR THE RACE.

Motor Cars in the Paris-Berlin Contest Officially Examined.

PARIS, June 25.—The weighing and stamping of the racing motor cars which are to start on the race to Berlin on Thursday morning is completed. The object is to protect the honor, the good name, and integrity and lofty patriotism of the Union soldier, to show that the Union is not with him, but with the system which has been built up from time to time.

FRENCH TOURISTS FEET.

The Motor Car Party Royally Treated.

FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN, June 25.—The motor car tourists who left Paris last Saturday on their trip to Berlin arrived here today. They were greeted with cheers and showered with flowers. Along the route from Cologne they were escorted by the German army and the German police. The cars were decorated with the German flag, and the German army and the German police were in full uniform.

Hydraulic Works Destroyed.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., June 25.—The hydraulic works at Quinnesba Falls, near here, were destroyed by fire following an explosion. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The loss in damaged machinery will exceed $200,000.
