The streets were lined, yesterday, with all sorts of vehicles, filled with all sorts of people, taking all sorts of advantages of the fine weather.

A lady teacher, competent also to instruct in music can secure a pleasant situation in a private family at Wells, Nevada. For particulars see advertisement under head of "Wells."

There is a place being let in a hall under the box office at the Salt Lake Theatre, the object being to have a ticket cupboard there. The agent will then be able to wait on his patrons without having to leave the office.

It is said by those who witnessed the trial of the D. & R. G. last evening, that the case was precipitated by Officer Daniels. What the matter, didn't you like to see Peter's little lecture the other day?

Three days ago D. & R. G. surveying party, after a month's supply of provisions, left the mountain.

There was a rousing meeting at the Bingham Social Hall last evening, when speeches were made by Judge Bennett, Colonel Kahn and Major Byrnes. Bennett, Bennett and Byrnes will hold a meeting at Sandy tonight.

The dwelling house, barns, stables, etc., belonging to the Frank and Andrew Hansen Company, at Fremont, on the C. P. road, were destroyed by fire on Saturday night. The loss is between twenty-five and thirty thousand dollars.

The K. of P. boys give another of their enjoyable socials on Monday evening, April 4th. This is the last of the season, and the matter is in the hands of competent committees. Invitations can be had only through members of these committees. It is an assured success.

Mr. W. N. Cook recently sold a handsome residence to an Eastern lady. The building was erected by the well-known builder Henry Nickels and is located at South Temple Street East. It is a credit to the builder and we congratulate the lady on the acquisition of so fine a property.

Joseph H. Dean, formerly clerk of the Police Court, and Andrew Hansen, were brought in from the Pen, this morning, and were taken before Judge McKay for examination as to their qualifications for taking the poor debtors' oath. Each were there but hadn't $20 to his name, and both were discharged.

Not satisfied with having all the wives in the land, it looks as though the Mormons were going to get a corner on railroad passes as well. Almost every member of the church is a "matrimonist," and to them will be granted privileges which even the Gentile persuasion can never hope to enjoy. 'Twas ever thus.

A man named Kelly, who has been endeavoring to do more than his share of whiskey drinking of late, fell in a fit on Second South street, at about 2 o'clock to-day. Nightwatchman Thomas F. Thomas came to the rescue, and after dashing water into the man's face, surprised him with a dose of a little of the same medicine, succeeded in bringing him around.

The Walker Brothers Company have their show window fixed up in a novel and attractive way. The chief attraction is a good (dry good) imitation of Brooklyn Bridge. The towers are built of bolts of fine linen, while the cables are of the finest material of embroidery. The picture is a very natural one, considering the material of which it is made, and is bound to attract more attention than the average day fight.

The Democrat is having prepared a manhood bulletin board, upon which will be posted every evening immediately upon its issuance copies of the paper, the entire four pages being presented for the benefit of the public. It will be placed in front of the business office, and all persons, unable or disinclined to subscribe for the paper from the newspapers, are cordially invited to read The Democrat without money and without price.

We commence to-day the publication of a biographical sketch of General P. E. Connor, by H. H. Bancroft, the Pacific Coast Historian.

It is from the revised proof sheets of Mr. Bancroft's new work. It will extend through three, and perhaps four, numbers of the DAILY DEMOCRAT, and will appear entire in the succeeding weekly edition. The life of a man, who has made himself up from a private in the regular army to a captain during his term of enlistment, and afterwards by his gallant and meritorious conduct to a major-generalship in the Volunteer Army, must prove interesting to all of our readers, and especially to those of this Territory, who owe him so much, and to whom he is so generally known. Utah never had a truer friend than General Connor, nor one who has rendered it more efficient service, by making it a safe place for friends of the American Government, in anticipation of an unusual demand for the next weekly containing the entire sketch, the edition will be correspondingly increased.

"The Occidental," No. 18 E. First South street. Pure goods only, and of the best quality. Our facilities to supply the trade and families are unexcelled and our prices just.

OUR NEW SECRETARY.

William C. Hall Appointed To-day by the President.

The Tribune has a special from Washington stating that William C. Hall, of this city, was to-day appointed Secretary of Utah.

Just before THE DEMOCRAT went to press Mr. Hall was seen by a reporter and stated that he knew nothing about the matter, as he had been in Court all the afternoon and had gotten no word of it.

Should the news prove reliable, Utah as well as Mr. Hall will be open to congratulations.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

One of the Results of "The Democrat's" "Newspaper Boom" for Salt Lake City.

THE DEMOCRAT is gratified to announce as one of the results of its urging the importance of our business men joining with it in its work of encouraging the investment of capital here, that steps are being taken for the organization of a Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade in this city.

This is a most judicious movement and one which the business interests of the city and Territory most imperatively demand. The benefits and advantages that will accrue from such an organization are too numerous and evident to require enumeration at the present time. Suffice it to say that THE DEMOCRAT will facilitate by all of the means in its power the successful working of the new organization as it has always been true to the interests of the section it represents. A meeting will be held sometime during the present week to take the initiatory steps towards the formation of the proposed institution, and it is to be hoped that every business man in the city will lend it both his moral and practical support.

IN THE HIGHLANDS.

The Jordan and South Galena Mines—Highland Mary.

The evening of the 14th inst. found your correspondent comfortably settled at the office of the Jordan mine. Wherever and whenever I have been out on the road, discussing the Utah question has always formed the chief part of the conversation with the ladies and gentlemen whom I have had the pleasure to meet in mining camps. Prof. Allen, I soon discovered, was no exception to the majority unless, it may be remarked, he, being an educated man, expresses his ideas in more choice and stronger language.

To find in the recesses of these mountains, men of culture, intellectual and moral, is, being an exception to the rule and a pleasing contrast to the sterner and rougher life encountered on every hand. For this reason, the evenings spent in company with the Professor, were hours of pleasure and profit to this wandering Bohemian whose business brings him in direct contact with all shades of life exhibited in a mining camp. Prof. Allen is soon to be joined by his wife, an educated and estimable lady who will make—as every good woman makes, the rugged miners life, and log cabin—a place of rest and comfort out of the Professor's mountain home.

Anticipating Mrs. Allen's arrival, this Democrat representative wishes her a safe journey on the way to her husband and a pleasurable, enjoyable summer after she gets here to experience, for the first time, the costumes of the past few days in the mountains of the Far West.

On the morning of the 25th, Foreman Alex McMaster showed me through the South Galena mine. In this property is to be seen an excellent showing of rich galena ore. Within a few days since a very rich ore body has been struck and the men, as well as the company, are correspondingly jubilant. In this "hole in the ground," your representative found a bunch of good Democrats, waiting for his coming as though he were a missionary of the gospel, conveying the glad tidings of great joy.

In the afternoon, through the courtesy of Mr. Wm. Ross, I went through the Jordan mine, a property worked in connection with the Galena by the same company of which Prof. L. E. Holden is the principal stockholder and Superintendent. In the Jordan there are immense bodies of ore in sight, notwithstanding that the mine is being worked very near the surface. What will be found when they conclude to "sink down on her" does not take a prophet to foretell, for the indications are that the now large body of wealth will increase in every direction. At the ten-stamp mill, now running to its utmost capacity, there are engaged over sixty men, who by their "incomings and outgoings" give to this region in the spring an appearance of industry and business life.

HIGHLAND MARY.

Not in this city or town alone does one see all of the phenomena of human nature. The man who travels is sure to find, beside the something or something "blest and dear" as Moore puts it, many unaccountable persons and things. Up in this part of Bingham the country is called very appropriately "The Highlands," and in perfect keeping with the thought that highland suggests, there is here a Mary, not a Scotch one, but a Scandinavian, though in appearance, action, wit and spirit an "Irish girl is she." Were this Highland Mary but the owner of a mine, there certainly would be a romantic appropriateness about her being where she is; but as it is, she is simply a walter girl at the company's boarding house, and, therefore, deprived of that distinction for which romance has fitted her.

Leaving "Highland Mary" to enjoy the mediocrity of her life and employment, your correspondent, this morning of the 26th, took up his "line of march," as it were, for that region of Bingham known as the South Fork of Butterfield Canyon. Mito Zir.

OUT ON BAIL.

William McDade Released from the Pen This Morning.

William J. McDade, who was arrested in Ogden some months ago on the charge of robbery and who was committed to the penitentiary by Justice Dee, was released from imprisonment this morning on a $300 bond, signed by C. P. Mason and Harry Duke.

McDade is a young man of less than thirty summers, and was formerly a brakeman on the C. P. road. The offense with which he is charged is that of taking some money away from a drunken man. He, however, has some very good evidence to show that the man lost the money, and it is the general impression among those who know him that he is innocent of the charge. At no time in his past record was a good one and he now has a chance to show what he is made of.

He has been in the Pen. for about two

GENERAL P. E. CONNOR.

Biographical Sketch by H. H. Bancroft, the Pacific Coast Historian.

Patrick Edward Connor was born near the Lakes of Killarney, in Kerry county, in the West of Ireland, March 17, 1820. At an early age he emigrated with his parents to New York City, and there he received his schooling.

In 1839, while the Florida war was in progress, he entered the regular army, although but 19 years old. Five years later, in November, 1844, the left the army, and returning to New York, engaged in mercantile pursuits.

Early in 1846, he removed to Texas, and, as the Mexican war broke out in the same year, joined a regiment of Texas volunteers, of which Albert Sidney Johnson was elected Colonel. For this gallant conduct he was given a full Captain's pension. Soon after the close of the Mexican war, Captain Connor left Texas, and passing through Mexico and California, arrived in New York on January 22, 1850. Shortly after his arrival great excitement arose throughout the State over the discovery of gold in the Trinity River, which at that time was generally supposed to empty into the ocean—for the northern part of the State was almost wholly unexplored.

Being this the true opinion of the Captain Connor, in company with Lieutenants Blunt, Bahe and Browning, of the navy, organized a party to explore the river for the purpose of locating the mouth of the stream, and of founding a settlement there. They chartered the brig Arabiah, and sailed from New York on January 22, 1850. The vessel made but slow progress.

Anxious to reach the point where the water of the Trinity River enters the Gulf, the brig could not do so, Captain Connor manned a whaleboat and started for the place. Lieutenant Bahe went with him. They rode the first three miles in such a way as to cause Lieutenant Bahe to lose control of the boat, which was overturned, and the two men were carried into the water three-quarters of a mile from shore. One of the sailors, who probably was struck and stunned by the waves, was a light headwind, Captain Connor's vessel made but slow progress.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

The Cases Before Judge Zane To-day.

The following cases came up in the Third District Court to-day: David E. Buel vs Harvey Hardy et al. Attorneys and jury present, and trial resumed. Answer amended on motion of defendant. Case continued at cost of defendant.

John Howarth, a native of England; August Clander, a native of Sweden; David Williams, a native of Wales, and Henry Rogers, a native of England, were all admitted to citizenship.

The case of Austin vs. Roberts was continued in the afternoon. The defendant allowed fifteen additional days to answer.

Salt Lake City vs. Mark Tobias. Motion to release defendant from costs argued and denied. A. C. Brixen vs. Deseret National Bank. Trial before ten jurors by agreement.

CAPTURED.

The Shoshone Wife Murderer Caught in a Tank.

From Major Bennett who is just down from the north the facts in regard to the capture of the Shoshone wife murderer are learned.

The particulars of the horrible affair which occurred but a few days ago, will be remembered and all will be glad to hear that the villain is to be brought to justice. At the residence, about eighteen miles east of Shoshone, the agent saw a man enter the tank on Friday evening last. Deputy Sheriff Kinney was notified, and, with a posse he surrounded the tank at about 11 o'clock that night. On closing in he was found to be asleep and was instantly handcuffed. He was then taken back to Shoshone where an examination will be held.

The wife of the fellow is still alive but may die at any moment.

HOW IS THIS?

The Inter-State Law to be Observed by the Local Roads.

Heretofore it has been the general impression that the Inter-State Commerce law would be observed only by the Trans-Continental or Inter-State roads and that it would have no effect whatever upon the local roads, but the developments of the past few days put another phase on the matter.

It is now pretty well assured that the law will be strictly observed by the local roads of Utah. Thus all passes and mileage tickets will be called in and after the 1st of April, no more will be issued except to ministers of the gospel and to railroad employees.

While this matter is not entirely settled, the information comes from good authority that those whose whom it will effect may begin to prepare for the worst.

The Trial at Provo.

The trial of the alleged Tintic Lynchers at Provo will close to-day. Mr. Thurman closes for the defense and Assistant District Attorney Hiles for the prosecution. It was expected that the case would be submitted to the jury this evening. Of the eight defendants, it is concluded, we understand, by the prosecution that two, and perhaps three, will be fully acquitted, while the result in regard to the others is problematical. THE DEMOCRAT learns from a gentleman who has attended the trial that the evidence elicited will probably cause a nolle prosequere to be entered in the case of T. D. Sullivan, who was to have had subsequently a separate trial. Mr. Sullivan has borne an excellent reputation as an industrious, peaceable and good man in the mining towns where he has lived and worked, and has many friends among the law and order people at Eureka, who would require the strongest kind of evidence to induce them to believe that he would engage in such proceedings as those with which he is charged.

PERSONALS.

J. H. Young, of the Northwest, is again in town.

Major Barnett, special government member agent, has returned from the North.

Mr. D. C. Dunbar, of the Western Merchant, left yesterday morning for Ouhau.

Miss Therese Godbe returned on Saturday from Weber, where she has for some time been teaching school.

Prof. L. E. Holden left yesterday morning for Cleveland, Ohio. He expects to return about the 1st of May.

Dr. Benedict went South this morning in answer to a urgent call from Springfield. He will most likely return to-morrow.

Mr. D. R. Coray, formerly of Ogden, left over yesterday's D. & R. G. for New Mexico, where he goes to grow up with the country.

Mr. Fred Soar went to Provo on Sunday to visit the B. Y. Academy. Owing to special business the gentlemen did not return until this morning.

Hon. M. D. Foley, of the firm of Remington, Johnson & Co., arrived here yesterday morning from Eureka, Nevada. Mr. Foley is accompanied by his wife. They will remain here several days.

HEADQUARTERS, DISTRICT OF UTAH.

ORDER No. 1.—The undersigned, pursuant to orders from Department Headquarters, hereby orders and directs that the District of Utah, comprising the Territories of Nevada and Utah.

Being the true opinion of the command of the district I especially enjoin upon all disbursing officers the necessity of being particularly attentive, careful and economical in their disbursements of public moneys, and that they in no instance purchase from persons who have at any time, by word or act, manifested disloyalty to the Federal Government.

Being notified in inform that there are in this district persons who, while claiming and receiving protection in life and property, are endeavoring to destroy and defame the principles and institutions of our Government, under whose benign influence they have been so long protected; it is therefore most rightly enforced upon all commanders of posts, camps and detachments to cause to be promptly arrested and closely confined until they have taken the oath of allegiance to the Government of the United States, all persons from this date who shall be guilty of uttering treasonable sentiments against this Government; and upon repetition of the said treasonable sentiments and conduct, the fact shall be communicated to these headquarters. Traitors shall not utter treasonable sentiments in this district with impunity, but must receive some more general, or receive the punishment they so richly merit.

By order of P. EDWARD CONNOR, Col. 3rd Infantry, C. V. Com. Dist. of Utah. JAMES W. STILLMAN, A. A. General.

This strong declaration was an earnest that Colonel Connor's course with the Mormons would be continued by the United States, who in 1858 had been compelled by them, although surrounded by 3,000 men, to enter winter quarters in the mountains, and who in the following spring were forced by a treaty made by Commissioners McCullough and Kane, appointed by President Buchanan, not to leave his camp within forty miles of Salt Lake City.

The volunteers were encamped temporarily at Ruby Valley, and the men began to express great dissatisfaction with their destination. They were extremely anxious to go East and participate in suppressing the rebellion. They voluntarily agreed to allow the paymaster to withhold a large portion of their pay, provided they were transferred to the seat of war. The sums that individuals agreed to contribute were very large; the majority of the men agreed to forego all their pay; second lieutenants volunteered to surrender $100 to $300; first lieutenants offered to contribute $200, captains from $300 to $500, and one man, Corporal Goldwater, of Company G, subscribed $5,000. As a result of this generous response to the following dispatch to Gen. Halleck with the consent of Gen. Geo. Wright, commanding Department of the Pacific:

Major General Halleck, Secretary of War, Washington, D. C., Sept. 24, 1862.

The Third Infantry, Cal. Vols., has been in service one year, and marched 600 miles; it is well officered and thoroughly drilled; is in service on the Oregon and Mail Routes, as there is cavalry sufficient for its protection in Utah District. The regiment will authorize the paymaster to withhold $50,000 to pay on due if the Government will order it East; and it pledges Gen. Halleck never to disgrace the flag, himself or California. The men enlisted to fight traitors and can do so more effectively than raw recruits; and ask that they may at least be placed on the same footing in regard to transportation. If the Government is inclined to accept of our own passages from San Francisco to Panama.

By request of the Regiment, P. EDWARD CONNOR, Col. Commanding.

RUBY VALLEY, N. T., Sept. 24, 1862.

By the middle of October the volunteers advanced to Fort Crittenden. This post, some times called Camp Floyd, which had been the former encampment of U. S. troops, was erected at an expenditure of $3,000,000, but the property was afterwards sold to private parties for little more than a song. The purchasers of the post were extremely anxious to have Col. Connor buy the property and make his headquarters there. Indeed, while on the march to Utah, Colonel Connor had often been solicited to make the purchase, by agents of the owners, who felt that, under the pressure of a near approaching winter, necessity would compel him to take these quarters already prepared. Among the buyers were Mormons, who did not scruple to endeavor to intimidate the Colonel into compliance, by inciting the Mormon community to an uprising against the troops. A certain number of the Danites was especially active in this way; he was reported to have ridden through the streets of Salt Lake, offering to be $20 that he would never cross the Jordan and found no takers. But they were dealing with the wrong man; all their bluster did not avail to turn Colonel Connor from his purpose. In spite of threatening rumors that the Mormons would never allow the troops to approach nearer their city than the river Jordan, he left Fort Crittender, crossed the Jordan, without opposition, and marched straight into Salt Lake City, to the astonishment and consternation of the Mormons, who, lining the sidewalks and filling the windows and roofs, silently watched the progress of the troops. The command halted in the very heart of the city before the residence of Governor Harding who publicly addressed the troops in terms of greeting and admonition. At the close of the governor's speech Colonel Connor called for three cheers for our country and flag, and three more for Governor Harding; he then continued his march with bands playing, to the neighborhood of the site of Fort Douglas, established what is now known as Fort Douglas.

Meanwhile Colonel Connor had his attention drawn to other matters. Indians had murdered many immigrants who had taken the northern route to California. To suppress these Indians he sent a cavalry expedition from Ruby Valley against them, and the force succeeded in destroying many of the savages. But the Indians continued their atrocities, especially interfering with whites travelling to and from the mines in Idaho, Montana and Dakota. Since the arrival of the volunteers at Salt Lake, two expeditions had been sent against the Indians in Northern Utah; one was to recover a white boy who had been carried on by his murderers, and the other to regain some immigrant property. At length, however, Colonel Connor received reliable information of the exact location of the hostile Indians, who had been carrying on their murderous work for fifteen years, and he at once commenced preparations for their annihilation.

This expedition resulted in the battle of Bear River, fought January 26, 1863, against the Snake and Bannock Indians, who were led by Bear Hater, and other noted chiefs. It was described in Colonel Connor's official report.
