NEARLY READY FOR ELECTION

Vote on Capitol Proposition Will Be Small—Judges Are Secured.

C. V. Anderson, custodian of the voting machines, yesterday shipped twenty of the voting machines to the districts farthest from the city and county building, and will send the others out today. The machines are all ready for the election next Tuesday, June 8, when the proposition of adding one mill to the tax levy to provide for a capitol which will be a credit to the state is voted upon.

The machines are so arranged that each voter on entering must vote before he or she can leave the booth. A further improvement over last fall made by Mr. Anderson is that it is only necessary to place the pointer in position on the "Yes" or "No," and pull back the bar. The releasing knob need not be touched, and all party levers are out of sight and locked.

There is little doubt in the minds of members of the state administration that the proposition will carry. Governor William Spry says he has received advices from various parts of the state that indicate the people generally are in favor of the scheme and that the general desire is that Utah shall have a capitol building worthy of her.

The vote will probably be small. Secretary of State C. S. Tingey sent out 225,000 ballots.

In Salt Lake county nearly all of the judges have been secured after some difficulty. To save trouble the county commissioners decided to present a report to the judges for the election last fall. This did not work well, many of these judges failing to qualify. There was not any general anxiety to act and some trouble was experienced in many districts in securing qualified taxpayers to act. There are still a few blanks which will be filled today.

Qualifications.

Judges of election must be qualified voters, and qualified voters are only those who paid taxes in 1908. In case of a married couple paying taxes on real estate, only the party in whose name the tax receipt was issued may vote.

Qualified electors having moved from their old district must present a transfer from the registration agent of the district where he or she was last registered. The remuneration of the judges is but $3 a day. The conditions prevailing at the polling places are the same as in any other election.

It will probably be some days before the result of the election is known. Returns are made to the county commissioners, and canvassed by them. The report to the secretary of state, who canvasses the total vote. The vote in the larger cities and towns will be in by Tuesday evening, but outlying districts will not be known for some days.

Another feature which will tend to prolong the stockade cases—a move the defense seems to have sought ever since the beginning of the various cases—came to light yesterday in the proceedings against the Citizens' Investment company, charged with owning property used for immo-entertainment of Justice of the Peace Stanley A. Hanks.

The property referred to was designated as lot 6, block 6, in the precinct known as the stockade, and utilized as the disorderly house from which one of the prisoners, Margaret Smith, was taken.

At the conclusion of testimony Justice Hanks discovered that the particular case came within the limitations of the category known as "indictable misdemeanors," the penalty for such a charge being from $1,000 to $10,000, while the limitations of his rulings came within a penalty of $300. He said he had no jurisdiction in a case of that kind, and it was therefore transferred to the district court. The prosecution was represented by P. T. Farnsworth, while Samuel King and C. L. King represented the defense.

PROVO NEWS NOTES.

Provo, June 3.—Evan Kimber, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kimber is at the Provo general hospital, where he has undergone an operation for appendicitis. The young man's condition is favorable to recovery.

The board of commissioners of Utah Indian war veterans is now in session here. They will get the names of the Utah Indian war veterans for the purpose of ascertaining who are entitled to pensions. The members of the board are: J. M. Westwood, M. L. Pratt and J. H. Arthur. They will probably remain here about a week. Judge J. E. Booth was this first signer of the roll in this city. The board meets in the county commissioners' room in the court house.

Miss Maud Zimmerman, a teacher in the Provo academy, and F. W. Hazelwood of Oakland, Cal., were married today by Rev. Challen Smith at the Congregational parsonage. The newly wedded pair left immediately on a wedding trip to California.

State Fish and Game Warden Chambers and Deputies Madsen and Johnson stripped a number of Utah lake trout yesterday in Provo. The spawn will be taken to the state fish hatchery. There is a movement on foot among Provo business men to send the Provo tabernacle choir to the Yukon-Alaska exposition. It is believed the thing will go through and if it does there is no question but that the choir will give a good account of itself.

This Glass

Contains one-half pint of Fisher beer, a remarkable combination of beverage and food.

A glass of Fisher beer possesses an interesting history. One that takes you back to fields of barley and hops, ripening in the sun.

Then to the brewery. If you think that a brewery is a dark, gloomy, untidy establishment, you should visit ours. Darkness is necessary only where we produce the yeast, which is responsible for the carbonic acid gas that gives "head" to the beer.

But we are overstepping ourselves in trying to tell you here the whole history of Fisher beer. It's a splendid beverage, both for health and enjoyment.
