

SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS

With Catarrhal Derangements of the Pelvic Organs.

Miss Kate Brown.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain—Peruna Cured.

to you for Peruna."—Miss Kate Brown.

A neglected cold is frequently the cause of death.

It is more often, however, the cause of some chronic disease.

There is not an organ in the body but what is liable to become seriously deranged by a neglected cold. Diseases of the kidneys, bladder and digestive organs are all frequently the result of a neglected cold.

Hundreds of dollars are spent on doctors and medicines trying to cure these diseases, but until the true cause of them is discovered, there will be no use in using medicine.

Dyspepsia, indigestion, diarrhoea, medicine and constipation medicine is of no good whatever when catarrh is the cause. The catarrh must be treated. The cause being removed, the derangements will disappear.

Peruna cures catarrh of the digestive organs, the urinary organs or any of the internal organs.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Miss Kate Brown, Recording Secretary of the L. C. B. Association of Kansas, in a letter from 605 N. Seventh st., Kansas City, Kansas, says: "For seven years I have not known what it was to spend a well day. I caught a severe cold which I neglected. It was at the time of menstruation and inflammation set in and prostrated me. Catarrh of the kidneys and bladder followed; my digestive organs gave way, in fact the cold deranged my whole system. "I spent hundreds of dollars with doctors and medicine, but derived but little benefit until I began treatment with Peruna. I kept taking it for nearly nine months before I was completely cured, but I kept growing better gradually so that I felt encouraged to continue taking Peruna until my health was restored. I send my thanks and blessings

THIS IS HARD TO BEAT.

Mr. Duncan of Kentucky Has a Hen That Has Laid a Petrified Egg.

William McKee Duncan of Kenwood has a hen that has reached the stone age. She lays petrified eggs.

It would seem that the stone age, like the second childhood, comes on unexpectedly. In fact, the alarmist eccentricity in this particular producer of eggs developed only three days ago. Up to that time her schedule had been one a day and they set the clock by her. Then, five days ago, for the first time, she was late. The lawyer missed his car and the whole household went wrong.

After noon the 8 o'clock egg arrived. The hen cackled as though she had really done something to be proud of—something that no other hen had ever done before. So she had, but they did not discover it until later.

The egg was intended for use for supper. Then the egg was broken, at least the outer shell was knocked off. The inner part did not break. They worked on it with a spoon, a knife, a chisel; some suggested a hatchet and an axe, but still the oval lump held solid. It was petrified.

Mr. Duncan is watching his choice bird solicitously. He expects in the course of the next few days to have the feathered wonder carefully examined, for he is sure that he can prove by any number of scientific tests that this is the only and original descendant and miniature reproduction of the ancient roe. His Kentucky friends are advising the lawyer to start a quarry. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

HE SHOT THE HAT.

A Custom in Oklahoma That Saves Time in a Sandstorm.

"A whole lot of ideas with which we grow up change when we get into another country," said a New York man who has just come back from a three-months' trip in the Southwest. "Now, one of the things we have heard of all our lives is that if a man's hat blows off he is a fool to run after it, for there is always somebody around polite enough to pick it up and hand it to the owner, if he has to walk a block to do it.

"I have seen it done. I have read about it more times than I have had hats.

"But it is not the custom at Reno, Oklahoma. I was sitting on the veranda of the hotel in that town, watching the various articles which one of those sandstorms whirled through the air.

"The hat of a citizen was raised and carried against a place on the other side of the street. A strapping fellow, who had been picking his teeth with a match, whipped out a navy revolver and fired a shot at the hat, nailing it to the fence.

"The owner came up, pulled the hat from its impalement, waved his hand at the man on the veranda and proceeded on his way.

"It saves time runnin' after it," said the man on the veranda, "and it don't hurt the hat."

CRAIG AND THE PRESIDENT.

Points of Similarity Between Two Strenuous Men.

A typical soldier of fortune was "Big Bill" Craig, the secret service man who was killed near Pittsfield while riding in the coach with the President and party, that met with so serious an accident. It is told that Craig was the only secret service man that the President in his innate distaste of dependence of any kind would tolerate about him.

Theodore Roosevelt liked Craig, not alone because he was a physical giant, not because he had served in the Household Guards of England's Queen, nor yet because he was of the famous "Black Watch" in the Sudan and went to the relief of Gordon. All these things were incidents to the fact that Craig was a man after Roosevelt's own heart, bent upon doing, and doing as well and as hard as nature allowed.

An incident of the President's trip may be recalled here. It was during a reception in a Vermont town. In the middle of the reception the lights went out. With the rush of darkness a big form seemed to envelop President Roosevelt and two strong arms thrust back the people in a manner that led to but one conclusion—that no one would come near, except after passing Bill Craig. And no one passed.

Isolated.

Two well-known officials, one of the state and the other of the city, while warm friends, occasionally get into arguments as to the proper pronunciation of words. The other night the word "isolate" was used by the city man, who pronounced it with the accent on the "i" as "isolate," whereupon the state man immediately "butted in" with "Oh, no, not isolate, but is-olate." "Why, you're bughouse," rejoined the "i" man. "Common sense ought to teach you that you are wrong. Just look at what the word means—ice, that is frozen, which is to be a dead one, that is of no account, I mean out of commission, or put away back, see?" "No, I'll be hanged if I do, nor anyone else," shouted the state man. Then a pained look came over the face of the city man, and with gentle pity he said: "You ought not to need a pile-driver or an axe. I'll speed it for you phonetically. Ice-o-late. Ice, do you catch on? Frozen put away, eh?" "Oh, rats!" yelled Bowen, "let's have some vichy and milk," and William acquiesced.

There is a wide difference between the real and the professional working man, and it is always in favor of the former.

HOW TO TIE KNOTS.

New Feature for Entertainment for the House-Bound People.

An article in Pearson's on "Knotty Problems," written by Arthur Banfield, gives a clever idea for a new "feature" at an evening entertainment.

"A knot-making contest would be something new in the way of an evening's entertainment. Let each of the guests be furnished with a piece of small rope of suitable length, and with illustrations and descriptions of the knots to be made. Simple prizes could be awarded to those who make the most knots correctly within a given time, and a 'booby' prize to the one, or ones—for there would quite likely be a number—who stumble into making 'grannies.'

"The only qualifications needed for 'the granny' is total ignorance of the art and science of knot-making. Lay the end of the two pieces of rope together, and—well just knot them. There you have your 'granny.' Put pressure on the rope, and one of two things will happen; either the knot will slip until the ends are passed and you are as you were, or else the knot is drawn together so fearfully tight that it seems as if no power on earth will possibly untie it.

"Knot-making is a pleasant and useful hobby, and a liberal education to those who are naturally clumsy with their hands. Every one should learn at least the simplest knots."

Cut in Two to Save Life.

Toronto surgeons are proud of an unparalleled feat performed in November last at the Toronto hospital. The patient, a laborer, was suffering from spreading gangrene which affected both legs and must infallibly have proved fatal in a very short time. The only hope was to cut off both legs. It was not a mere case of amputation. The whole of the thighs had to be removed, the hip bones being separated at the upper joints and the nerve branches destroyed. The man was, in fact, cut in halves. The operation was a brilliant success.

Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and time has not diminished my estimation of this preparation. Not only did Doan's Kidney Pills cure me at that time, but although over three years have elapsed there has not been a symptom of a recurrence of the trouble. I consider this preparation to be a wonderful kidney remedy and just as represented."
