Merry Wives of Windsor

Louis James, as Falstaff, and a Splendid Supporting Company in This Play Tonight.

"The Merry Wives of Windsor," which is presented here to night by Louis James, is a masterpiece of good humor, neither lyric, dramatic, narrative nor historical, but on excellently well conceived, constructed solely to amuse, as well as to fulfill a regal edict executed by good Queen Elizabeth, who wishing to witness the cupidity of Sir John Falstaff, commanded Shakespeare to write a comedy depicting the "various humors attendant to the Jolly Knight of Windsor in love."

This Shakespeare did with an abandon in construction and execution that startled his followers and admirers, for he discarded all of his noted characteristic style and methods of playwriting, and presented to his Queen a play written almost entirely in prose, and illustrative of the humor and shortcomings of the country tradespeople and not the court or the nobility, as had heretofore been his custom.

This play is one of the writer's best efforts and fairly bubbles over with brilliant characterization. "Falstaff" is undoubtedly the master comic creation of Shakespeare. His close woven and unlagging mirthfulness, together with his inexhaustible wealth of drollery condones whatever moral shortcomings he may possess by his love of "Sack" and his flirtation propensities for the fair sex.

As the swagger Sir John Falstaff, Louis James seems to have found a more harmonious and fantastic vehicle to display his irresistible mirth provoking faculties than has been his fortune for years, and reports speak very glowingly of his success.

His supporting company is said to be a most excellent one and the wealth of scenery, accessories and many other things with which he has mounted this production, is said to be especially lavish and appropriate.

Notes From Hyde Park

Marriage of Robert McQuarrie and Lillie Mikklesen the Event of the Week.

HYDE PARK, November 21, 1906.—The event of the week was the marriage, in Logan Temple, Nov. 20th, of Robert McQuarrie, and Lillie Mikklesen, two of our most popular young people. The groom is the only son of Bishop Robert McQuarrie of Ogden, and is a fine young man. The bride is the charming daughter of Christian and Mary C. Mikklesen. The young people start out in life with bright prospects, and a host of friends wish them a long, happy and prosperous life.

Our young men who were working at Garland, came home last week, and report having made very good wages.

The amusement committee is putting a new floor in the hall so that the dancers can have a good smooth floor to "trip the light fantastic toe," upon.

The dancers will try it next Friday night, as Robert McQuarrie has promised them a free dance. All his friends are invited.

WIRELESS DID GOOD WORK.

Materially Aided Admiral Togo to Crush Rojestvensky.

Wireless telegraphy played a most important part in the great naval engagement between the Russian and Japanese ships in the late war. A Japanese writer says that at the time of the battle of the Sea of Japan the weather was foggy and hazy to such an extent that it was impossible to see for a distance greater than five miles. A Japanese scout cruiser, while searching for the Russian fleet, suddenly found herself, when the fog had lifted, unexpectedly for a moment, practically in the midst of the numerous vessels of the enemy. A wireless message was at once transmitted giving notice of the discovery, and this message was simultaneously received by all the vessels of the Japanese squadron, notwithstanding that these were some 150 miles distant.

Admiral Togo, immediately dispatched a squadron of scouts, which kept in touch with the enemy, and informed him at five-minute intervals of the course, speed, position and location of the Russians, with such accuracy that Admiral Togo was able to forecast with absolute precision the actions of the enemy.

It was through wireless communication alone that it was possible for the Japanese commander to maneuver and to place his fleet to enable him to strike the enemy most advantageously. All of the Russian ships were equipped with the latest and most efficient wireless outfits, but they failed to interfere with the messages.

Travels With Gems.

Miss Grace, who is now in New York, has crossed the Atlantic 21 times as the agent of an English diamond concern, and on each trip she has carried with her gems valued at $150,000 to $300,000. Miss Varcoe is said to be an expert lapidary. She has traveled in all the principal cities of this country, Canada and Europe as the representative of her firm. She speaks four languages and incidentally carries a revolver, which, should occasion require, could also "speak."

SIGN WELL PAID FOR.

One Thousand Dollars a Word for Railroad Crossing Warning.

At the Franklin Inn a literary club of Philadelphia, a young poet, licking his lips, said that Conan Doyle was paid one dollar a word.

"That is nothing," said one of the Reading railroad advertising men. "I know of a case where a man was paid $1,000 a word. Our line used to have at its grade crossings a very long and complicated sign that began: 'Beware of the engine and cars,' and then this sign went on with a lot of injunctions and warnings that would have taken five minutes to read. In a number of accident cases the claimants for damages declared that our long signs were not clear warnings. Therefore the line decided at last to get a new grade crossing sign, and Judge Paxson was engaged to write one.

"The sign that Judge Paxson wrote cost $1,000 a word, but it was a classic. It remains a classic. It has been copied everywhere. It is as well known among us as 'Father, I cannot tell a lie,' or 'England expects every man to do his duty.'"

Seek Substitute for Sun's Rays.

Experiments are being actively pursued on both sides of the Atlantic to see whether it is not possible to discover some light which would have the same effect on vegetation as has the sun. Science is familiar with the composition of the solar rays to a large extent, and it is not regarded as unreasonable to seek for an artificial substitute. As a matter of fact, the rays from an acetylene lamp have been found to approximate very closely to sunlight. So much is this so that fairly well developed plants have been produced which have never known the daylight, the whole course of their existence having been spent under the influence of acetylene light.
