"GHOST CITIES" TO BE RESTORED

Nevada to Draw on Underground Water for Irrigation Purposes

SALT LAKE, Dec. 18.—Underground waters, brought to the surface for irrigation purposes, soon may restore life to the "ghost cities" of Nevada, which have been practically deserted since their gold was taken from them. Already government engineers are surveying land expected to become part of a big irrigation project on the Amargosa desert, not far from Bullfrog, Beatty, Rhyolite and Gold Center. All one-time famed western mining camps.

G. D. Kirkpatrick, assistant supervisor of government surveys for Utah and Nevada, reports that two survey crews have started work on two townships, along the California-Nevada line with orders to survey 40,000 acres. Underground waters have been discovered on the Amargosa desert and it is proposed to develop them. Big crops will grow in the sub-tropical Nevada climate if the water can be brought to the surface, engineers have reported. Later the land may be opened for entry, according to present plans. The Amargosa desert is not the only portion of southern Nevada that may bloom. The Big Smokey valley, north of Tonopah, may in the near future, bring to the big silver camp a new population of farmers. The presence of underground water in this valley has been demonstrated, and it is not only a question of a short time when it will be developed, according to Mr. Kirkpatrick. The survey will go forward in southern Nevada all winter.

Woolgrowers to Meet in Salt Lake Jan. 17

SALT LAKE, Dec. 18.—The fifty-sixth annual convention of the National Woolgrowers association will be held at the Hotel Utah January 17, 18 and 19. Legislation, finance and ranch management will be the principal subjects for discussion. Governor W. P. G. Harding of the federal reserve board will address the convention on financial matters and will emphasize the importance of the reserve system in the financial structure of the country, explaining its relationship to business.

Bankers of the woolgrowing state are expected to attend the convention and to confer with Governor Harding respecting wool and sheep financing. F. R. Marshall, secretary of the National Woolgrowers association, said that most recent word from Gov. Harding indicated the possibility that congress may require him in Washington, in which event a personal representative will take his place. United States Senator-elect Frank E. Gooding of Idaho is also scheduled for an address before the convention. Senator Gooding has already announced his determination to work for legislation to help the woolgrowers.

Thomas Walker Page, chairman of the tariff commission, will probably lead discussion of tariff problems with which the woolmen are particularly concerned at present. While it is possible that a temporary measure may have been passed by congress prior to the convention, the tariff discussion will include consideration of the general policy of which the woolgrowers will seek the adoption. The legislative committee of the association is now in Washington engaged in an effort to secure the immediate passage of relief laws, and they will make a report on their accomplishment at the convention. Other reports will be made of stockyards investigations, freight rate matters, commission house charges and related subjects.

Five hundred thousand Lake Erie white fish eggs have been obtained and will be hatched in the North Idaho hatchery and placed in the Couer d'Alene lake and Lake Pontchartraine. Commissioner Isaacs has just returned from Twin Falls, where he approved a private hatchery for rainbow trout belonging to Congressman James H. Mays of Salt Lake. SELL OWN ARTICLES TO MEET SCHOOL EXPENSES

SALT LAKE, Dec. 18.—A unique way of earning money with which to pay school expenses has been found by one of the art classes at the University of Utah. Each year this class opens a gift shop in the studio, where they offer for sale the articles they have made during the autumn quarter.

All of the gifts are made from inexpensive materials and are sold at a fair profit. The aim in the creation of these gifts is to make artistic gifts, but art standards rather than the taste of the public influences the designing. The gifts offered are all of original design, and there are no duplicates. The funds derived from the sale go to the students who have made the things, and in almost every instance this money will be used to defray school expenses. A case, representing joint work, is sold and the proceeds are used to decorate the studio. The students in this class are from the college in the main, although there are some training school students, also.

Among gifts displayed this year, are trays, baskets, candle shades, lacquered boxes, corsage bouquets, rose and spice boxes, plaques and many others. Fourteen classes will be offered by the art department at the University for the winter term, January 2-March 17.

The property owners have a purpose in leaving all evergreen trees upon their land and ask the public to help them in this purpose. Those who insist upon cutting the trees and are apprehended will be prosecuted.

'FLAPJACK' JONES, EARLY WESTERN NOTABLE, DIES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—Funeral arrangements were being made today for John C. ("Flapjack") Jones, famous figure of the early west, who died here yesterday, aged 75. He was called "Flapjack," because, while he was six feet four inches tall, he weighed only 100 pounds.

He was born in Maine. When 16 years old, he joined the federal army and fought through the Civil War. Then he went to Butte, Mont., where as a stage driver, he entered himself with the west. Eight months ago he allied the national soldiers' home at Seattle, near here. Three weeks ago at Seattle, he removed to the residence here of W. A. Clark, Jr., son of the former United States senator from Montana, who takes an active interest in veterans from that state. It was at Mr. Clark's home that Jones died.

MOUNTAIN TIME IS FAVORED BY IDAHOANS

BOISE, Idaho, Dec. 18.—Boise and southwestern Idaho have adopted mountain time and there is general satisfaction over the change. Pacific time was never satisfactory. It has been felt in the southern part of the state that the ruling of the interstate commerce commission making Pacific the standard time for Idaho thereby cutting off one hour of daylight from the afternoon, was arbitrary and without justification.
