LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGlone Gibson

IN JOHN'S ARMS.

Helen came toward me with arms outstretched. "I am so glad," she said, "that you are feeling better this morning."

"I did not say so, my dear," I answered.

"No, but you look it," was her comment. "The color is coming and going in your face just as it always does when you are physically fit. That ebb and flow of pink in your cheeks is the most charming thing about you."

"Did you know John was here?" I asked.

"Yes, he came here to find out where you were and we told him of your mother's death."

At the mention of my mother I could feel the blood ebb from my cheeks and I knew I was growing pale. Helen put her arms around me a bit tighter and said, "Come, Katherine, don't you want to see her? She really looks very calm and as though she were quite happy."

Shaken by Sobbs.

I went in and bent over my mother's casket. Convulsively I threw my arms across the casket and shook with sobs. The gates of emotion were lifted. All the dear memories of childhood, my girlhood and my wifehood rushed through my mind. And always in the background of these scenes of other days was my dear, sweet mother—now forever still.

"There, there, girl, don't cry so, don't cry," I felt two arms clasped tenderly about me and I was lifted close, close to the breast of my husband.

"Don't, Katherine, it breaks my heart to see you like this."

"But I have no one else in all the wide world, John."

John only clasped me closer.

"Yes, yes, I know I have you, but your love is not like a mother's."

"Perhaps not," said John. "It is all the love I have to give to anyone, dear. In all the world, Katherine, I love only you. I know I am selfish, but that seems to be a man's prerogative, you know. I have never been as lonely in my life since you have been away from me."

Needles Closer to Him.

I nestled a little closer to him. "Why didn't you ask me to come home, then?" I asked with my mouth close to his ear.

I could feel that John made a little stubborn movement, his shoulders stiffened and he pulled away from me a tiny bit.

"Don't do that, John," I said.

"Don't do what?" he asked quickly.

"Don't turn away from me. I want you, dear. You are all I have in the world at this unhappy time."

"You do love me," he said.

"Did you doubt it?" I asked.

"Well, I was not sure, because you know you left me."

"I had to get away where I could adjust myself to you and those about me."

"Is the adjustment made?"

"I am not sure. But, oh, hold me close, close in your arms for just a little while, and let's don't worry about anything else except that you are sorry for me in my great trouble, that you love me and I love you."

Not a Word is Said.

"All right, girl," said John, and for a long while we sat there in the great armchair to which he had taken me when he found me sobbing, over my mother's still form. Neither of us said anything, but as usual I had that comforting feeling come over me—more slowly this time, perhaps, than others—of absolute security.

This was the feeling that I had always when John's arms were about me. Resultingly I put away all our differences in the past, and thought now everything will be all right.

Tomorrow—Alice Interrupts.

New Long Range Gun Sends Shell 120 Miles

PARIS, March 27.—Delamare Mazen, a French inventor, has sold to the French government the patent on a new long-range gun which, after thorough tests, has shown it has a range from 80 to 120 miles. The shell leaves the muzzle of this gun at a speed of approximately 4,178 feet per second.

Premier Lloyd George announced in the British parliament recently that England had been negotiating with France to secure the right to use the plans for the new gun and the Belgian government is now manufacturing a similar cannon at Liege. American military attaches in Europe have written to the government asking that American representatives may be present at tests of the weapon.

In connection with the development of this piece of ordnance which is called "the turban cannon," it may be recalled that two years ago last Tuesday the Germans began to bombard Paris with their long-range "Big

NORMA TALMADGE IN UNDERWORLD FILM SCORES HIT

A story of the underworld and the underworld is graphically presented in the screen version of Le Roy Scott's "A Daughter of Two Worlds," starring Norma Talmadge, which opened at the Orpheum theatre last night. It will run again today and tomorrow with matinee.

As a girl whose family name is tainted with an unsavory reputation, Jennie, the part taken by Miss Talmadge, rises from her environment as the daughter of Black Jerry Malone, keeper of an underworld cabaret, to a high place in society.

Forgery Leads to Society.

A forgery of which she is wrongly accused results in Jennie's advent into a fashionable boarding school for girls under an assumed name. Black Jerry placed her there in the hope that she would never return to the old life.

Jennie wins as her best chum Sue Harrison, a girl from a family of name and fortune. She is invited to Sue's home and there meets the man of her dreams, Kenneth Harrison, Sue's brother.

The dark cloud of the past arises in her new environment. To save the life of a friend of former days who has been arrested for a murder he did not commit, Jennie is compelled to decide a question which may mean the loss of her lover and her place in the underworld.

Dorothy Dix Talks THE WAGE EARNING WIFE

By DOROTHY DIX, the World's Highest Paid Woman Writer

A fine young man and woman of my acquaintance are very much in love with each other. The young man is a clever, intelligent, energetic fellow who earns a salary that our father's time would have been considered ample to justify matrimony, and in our grandparents' time would have made him a catch in the eyes of managing mothers, but that in our days, with the high cost of living, is too slender a shoestring upon which to risk the great adventure.

This young man will undoubtedly eventually be prosperous and about the time he is forty-five or fifty years old, and has gotten set in his bachelor ways, and his heart has dried out due to his making enough money upon which to support a wife. But twenty-five is a long way from fifty, and you can't dehydrate love's young dream and have it come out of the can fresh after a quarter of a century, and the young couple want to marry now while the bloom is on their romance and their hearts throbbing and quivering, and to wait until life has pressed out of them a banquet on their lips instead of being dead sea fruit.

Couple Asks Advice.

But they can't marry unless the girl, who is also earning a good salary, keeps on with her work, and they have asked my advice about what they shall do.

I say to them to get married, while they are still young and still can love, and has gotten set in his bachelor ways, and his heart has dried out due to his making enough money upon which to support a wife. But twenty-five is a long way from fifty, and you can't dehydrate love's young dream and have it come out of the can fresh after a quarter of a century, and the young couple want to marry now while the bloom is on their romance and their hearts throbbing and quivering, and to wait until life has pressed out of them a banquet on their lips instead of being dead sea fruit.

Of course, the coming of children makes a complication, but even this objection to the wife outside of her own home is not insuperable since in practically every family there is a grandmother, or aunt, or cousin who knows far more about raising babies than any young mother does, and whose empty hands ache for just such a job.

And at its worst, will not the extra food, the superior environment, and the additional advantages of education that the mother's earning will give the child be a far greater advantage to it than if she had personally cooked its food, and washed its little face, and blown its little nose?

Undoubtedly the ideal state is when a man shall make enough to support his family in comfort, and when the husband and father shall come home to a vine wreathed cottage where his wife and children await his return, but between a no wife cottage, no cot-

DEADLY BREAKFAST IS PREPARED FOR GROUND SQUIRRELS

One and a half tons of oats were prepared to furnish breakfast for ground squirrels in Weber county. To make the preparation tasteful to the rodents, nine ounces of saccharine, 30 pounds of Karo syrup, three pounds of starch, six packages of soda and, as a "chaser," 55 ounces of strychnine was added to the mixture.

The "dope" was prepared by W. P. Thomas of the local farm bureau; C. E. Pettigrew, county crop inspector; B. E. Richards of the biological survey, and A. E. Taylor, county club leader.

Mr. Thomas said that the mixture appeals to ground squirrels and when eaten by them, generally is their last repast. The oat kernels are like sugar coated pills, with the exception that the strychnine is included in the sugar coat.

The mixing of the oats and other ingredients is the first step that has been taken this season towards the extermination of ground squirrels. An active campaign is planned and even better results than were obtained last year are predicted.

Last season over $20,000 was saved by killing this pest, according to a signed statement from farmers of Ogden valley. The average saving per farm was $261.13, and for each ounce of strychnine used, farmers reported a saving of $202.

On this basis, the batch mixed yesterday should result in a saving of $11,165, and other batches are expected to be made ready for the squirrels.

Mr. Thomas stated that the poisoned grain would be resacked in 10-lb. sacks and distributed to the squirrel eradication committees of each local farm bureau in the county.

JUST THINK OF CADOMENE

When You Find You Are Losing Out in the Game of Life

Worn-Out, Nervous Men and Weak Bloodless, Anemic Women Have Found New Strength and Vigor in Taking Cadomene Tablets.

A well-known writer on physical culture says: "You cannot run a high-powered engine without fuel. You cannot get much speed without plenty of steam. You cannot get up much steam without plenty of coal and a perfectly working furnace body. Similarly, in your own case, the internal 'works' must be sound and working properly."

That tired feeling—do you know what it means? It means that digestion and nutrition are lacking. It means that your blood and nerves are impoverished. It means that slow but sure decline in your vitality will surely ensue and real sickness will overtake you unless you bestir yourself in overcoming the weakness of the organs responsible. This is not written to frighten. In reality it expresses logical facts. Cadomene Tablets, the favorite prescription of a great physician, are made, and sold by druggists for people who need help for nature's forces, owing to ignorance, neglect or dissipation of one kind or another. Every package is guaranteed to please or money back.—Advertisement.

ACCENTUATED "D."

"J. U. H." is a humorist whose initials are better known than his own name and address. On an automobile trip recently Mr. and Mrs. J. U. H. were obliged to ride many miles out of their way on account of road improvements which being made at many points.

While they were wobbling up an unusually bad piece of dirt road one afternoon they were accosted by a native who hailed them with the inquiry:

"Touring?"

With equal brevity, J. U. H. replied: "No, detouring!"

Finally was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lowell, Mass.—"I was all run down and had an awful pain in my right side, was persistently constipated and had very dizzy spells. I suffered for three years and was perfectly miserable until a friend was telling me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I found it a wonderful medicine. I can now do twice as much work and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other women. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. M. TRBALL BESSEY, 46 Chestnut St., Lowell, Mass.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON.

A lot of authors kill our laughs, and bore all gentle readers, by finishing their paragraphs with foolish strings of leaders. . . . It's spoiled a lot of books for me, this silly affectation, and when a "leadered" page I see I'm filled with indignation. . . . They say the Walpole books are great, they boast his "Secret City," but me they chafe and irritate, inspiring this punk dirty . . . His sentences all disappear in leaders running tandem; and if I had some stale eggs near, to Walpole I would hand 'em. . . . Over books I never am enthused, however apt their phrases, if in them fly-leaf lines are used, when words are cheap as blades. . . . I do not think the writer fine (I grieve to make confession) who has to use a dotted line to help out an impression. . . . The stratagems of writing hicks or make me shrink and shiver; no author need resort to tricks, who can the goods deliver.
