ORDER SURVEY DOUBLE TRACK

Salt Lake, Oct. 19.—Surveys are in progress for the double-tracking of the main line of the Idaho division of the Oregon Short Line from Pocatello to Minidoka. This is in line with previous announcements and it can be considered one of the most important and undertakings ever inaugurated by the big system. The great steel bridge over the Snake river at American Falls is already being rebuilt to provide additional width for the second track.

With the completion of this work the Short Line will have a double track from this city to Farmington and probably through Ogden from McCammon to Minidoka. It will be a good start on what will ultimately be the feature of all terminals.

Minidoka is the point of connection with the Twin Falls branch, which is itself growing to be almost a main line, and the second track will relieve the situation between Pocatello and Minidoka to a most appreciable extent.

The stretch is fifty-eight miles, and as it gets the burden of the Idaho division, the Utah division and the Montana division at Pocatello, the second track will enable the force at the Pocatello yard to handle the freight movements with better results by far, doing away with congestions such as are bound to occur at seasons like the present, when the harvest rush is on in full force.

FRED ARBOGAST'S FALL WAS FATAL

Salt Lake, Oct. 19.—Fred B. Arbogast, the electrician, who fell through a glass screen from an upper story of the Colonial theater building last Friday, died at 10:12 o'clock Tuesday morning from the injuries, at St. Mark's hospital.

The unfortunate man fell about twenty feet to the sidewalk, landing on his head. The injuries received from the broken glass were not dangerous, but his death resulted from the injury to his head sustained by the contact with the cement sidewalk. Arbogast was born in San Francisco, April 6, 1870, coming to Utah with his parents three years later. He had resided here ever since. He was engaged in work on the electric-light sign in front of the theater when he fell.

Mr. Arbogast was the son of George Arbogast, who lives at 606 South First West street, and who is an old timer of this city, having started one of the first confectionery stores in Salt Lake City.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning in O'Donnell & Co's undertaking parlors, The Elks and the I. O. O. F. to each of which Mr. Arbogast belonged, will be represented at the services.

DURRAND OUTLINES CENSUS BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Census director Durrand issued a statement today about the methods employed in the census bureau in investigating the possibility of "padding" in the population returns.

Director Durrand outlined the operations of a special force of experts constantly employed to detect fraud in the enumeration.

"It is needless to say," says Director Durrand, "that the census bureau would not for a moment think of eliminating names from the schedules merely because of this official investigation. In every case where such investigation indicated sufficient ground for suspicion, competent men have been sent from Washington to investigate locally.

"Such men have interviewed the supervisors, special agents and enumerators who took the census as well as others in the community and have made a house to house canvas in the suspected districts.

"In many cases they have found that the enumeration of the suspected district was entirely correct, but in a considerable number of other cases they have found clear evidence of 'padding'.

HONOR MEMORY OF MICHAEL HENEY

CORDOVA, Alaska, Oct. 18.—The stillness of an arctic night reigned throughout Cordova, and the great Copper River valley, for an hour today in respect to the memory of Michael J. Heney, founder of Cordova, and builder of the two great Alaska railways, who died in San Francisco last week.

On the Copper River railroad, which is under construction, train service was suspended and 2,000 men laid down picks and shovels and attended memorial services held in camps along the line.

Business houses in Cordova shut down and all official activity ceased during the memorial hour.

No sooner had Mr. Casey closed the gate on Royce when he says he was accosted by a man. He could not tell what he looks like, as it was very dark. The man spoke to him in an undertone, and then before he realized it, Royce says he was hit square in the face and lost consciousness.

When he awoke he was lying sprawled across the alley. His face and clothes were covered with blood. He searched his pockets and found that $8 in money were gone besides a valuable diamond stick pin. He staggered to a foot half dazed and made his way to his room at the Wabash. The matter was reported to the police, but it was suppressed and not given out to anyone today.

Sticks to His Story.

The management of the Vienna for some reason are trying to belittle Royce's story. They, however, cannot account for the terrible bruises on the man's face and head. An attaché of the restaurant states that Royce was drinking somewhat yesterday but denies that he was in such condition as to concoct such a story or to have inflicted the wounds himself. Royce sticks firmly to his story of the affair and tells it without faltering.

"I wanted to go out the back way," he says, "because I had been drinking some and didn't want Mr. Mack to know. I called Mr. Casey and he opened the gate. Next door I saw several people walking across the viaduct of the Tribune as I stepped into the alley I could see them because it was light there. Suddenly a man stepped up to me and mumbled to himself. He carried some kind of a weapon. Before I knew it he had struck me and I knew nothing until I awoke some hours later soaking wet and with my money and pin gone.

Employees at this restaurant and those in the vicinity believe Royce's story implicitly. They scoff at the idea of him falling or falling in an untruthful story. Royce's condition justifies his story. He is badly beaten up. A man who roams near him corroborates the story he tells by stating that Royce told him the same story when he appeared last bloody at the rooming house last night.

To quote the chief of police, "there are no thugs in Salt Lake." Royce though asks where the police were when he was beaten. He says he supposed to do so. "Where were they?" he asks, "as I laid there for four hours?"

BOY IS KILLED BY A FREIGHT TRAIN

Midvale, Oct. 19.—Frank Droblich, aged 15 years, was killed at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, near the Rio Grande Western roundhouse, by an Oregon Short Line freight train passing over his body. He, with a younger brother named Tony, and Clyde Hayward were near the United States spur of the Oregon Short Line track when the freight train headed for Murray came along. Frank boarded the train and rode half a block. While attempting to alight he was thrown between two cars, the wheels passing over his hips. His legs were left on the outside of the track while his body was rolled or dragged forty feet and left in the middle of the track.

Neither Engineer D. S. Edgar nor any of the train crew saw the boys before the accident and they would not have known of it had not Conductor Daniel Hughes stepped out on the rear platform of the caboose and saw the body on the track.

Justice J. J. Williams was called and decided that an inquest was not necessary. Undertaker Banks of Murray took charge of the body and the funeral notice will be given later.

Frank, although of Austrian parentage, was born in Pueblo, Colo. He was the son of Frank and Anna Droblich, and, besides his parents, leaves three brothers and one sister to mourn his death. In spite of the fact that he was of foreign parentage, he was very popular and a leader among his schoolmates.

THUG ATTACKS CHIEF IN ZION

SALT LAKE, Oct. 18.—Chief Barlow says there are on thurs and thieves in Salt Lake City. There were no robberies or holdups last night.

For four hours B. L. Royce, a chef at the Vienna cafe on Main street, laid unconscious in the rain in the alley in the rear of the cafe. Slugged, robbed and left for dead. This is the experience of Royce.

Royce had been drinking yesterday. He admits it. At about 7 o'clock in the evening he was through work and because he had been drinking he left the restaurant by the rear door. Night Manager Casey of the place opened the back gate for him. This gate is kept locked until after 6 o'clock each evening, but Royce had explained that he was drinking a little and didn't want the head management to know of it, so he left by the back way.

No sooner had Mr. Casey closed the gate on Royce when he says he was accosted by a man. He could not tell what he looks like, as it was very dark. The man spoke to him in an undertone, and then before he realized it, Royce says he was hit square in the face and lost consciousness.

When he awoke he was lying sprawled across the alley. His face and clothes were covered with blood. He searched his pockets and found that $8 in money were gone besides a valuable diamond stick pin. He staggered to a foot half dazed and made his way to his room at the Wabash. The matter was reported to the police, but it was suppressed and not given out to anyone today.

SPAIN HAS ITS HIGH COST OF LIVING PROBLEMS

Washington, Oct. 19.—Spain is much perturbed by the high cost of living as is this country, according to Consul Robert Frazer, Jr., of Valencia, who has communicated to this government facts relating to the inquiry taken up to the excessive cost of food stuff by the Spanish ministry.

Popular opinion in Spain attributes the high cost of food, Consul Frazer reports, to "the consumers" or octroi tax, to municipal market taxes and to the activities of the middlemen.

The octroi tax is collected on all food stuffs, except green vegetables and fruits, drinks and fuel entering municipalities and is highly unpopular.

The ministry in a recent note on the subject deny that the high cost should be altogether contributed to the causes generally supposed, but is, the octroi tax, deficiency in home production, currency depreciation, etc., and while admitting that taxes help to maintain high prices in internal markets aver that this is not the principal cause.
