BIG ORPHEUM

The box office opened this morning for the sale of seats at the exceptional performance which comes to Ogden this week.

The past few weeks has seen such a demand for tickets at this popular playhouse, that Ogden people are awakening to the fact that seats must be reserved early. The acts comprising the bill for this week are exceptionally good. It offers a refreshing change from the kind of acts that have been seen during the present season. The advance sale has been unusually large and although there are plenty of good seats to be had at this time, it is a good policy to telephone to the theater and have them make reservations. The box office opens again tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

TWO THOUSAND HAVE GOT SEATS

New York, Oct. 1 - At the rate applications of preferred patrons for seats at the world's baseball series were being received today by Secretary Heydler of the National League, it appeared likely that the number of reserved seats to be put on sale would be small unless hundreds of the applications were turned down. CHART OF ILLIMITABLE VOID

Remarkable Five-Acre Sectional Map of the Sky at Harvard University. This seems to be an age of great things. To talk of billions no longer occasions a shiver of incredulous admiration. One of the wonders at Harvard university today is a five-acre sectional map of just plain sky and constellations. At the expense of more than a million dollars Harvard university has provided the chart which distinctly shows 1,600,000 stars, this having been prepared in sections by the Harvard university astronomers. The sections of the map, placed together, would cover an area of more than five acres, which is a pretty extensive plan of charting the "illimitable void."

In a scholarly annual report the director of the observatory called attention to the fact that during the past year 3,794 photographs of stars were made by the observatory. For more than 65 years the Harvard observatory has kept complete records of astronomical developments. By reason of thirty years' work and an expenditure of a million dollars, this observatory is placed ahead of all other similar institutions. In the study of the stars at the Harvard observatory there is something more than mere love of knowledge or tender sentiment. Even the slow-paced walk of lovers under the arching Cambridge elms has no more of witchery and romance about it than the wonders of scientific research stored away in the college observatory, which with its various stations has already become the shrine of modern astronomers. ROOSEVELT IN UTAH IN 1908

The Republican party in Utah doesn't stand pat on anything. Nor does it presume to have a fixed, definite view of things that is calculated to be lasting. From year to year the party in this state reaffirms its faith in loyalty to certain things, only to revamp its opinion from time to time and shift its fealty from one hero to another until its fickleness becomes so apparent as to give rise to a general lack of confidence in the party's utterances. In 1908 the Republican party in Utah held a convention for the election of delegates to the national convention. These men were sent to that convention bound to support Theodore Roosevelt for president, as first choice, and if he refused to run, to support Mr. Taft for second choice. This pledge was strengthened by stirring resolutions showing how tremendously strong the Republicans in Utah were for Theodore Roosevelt. Along in September of the same year the state convention adopted a platform which opened with the following plank:

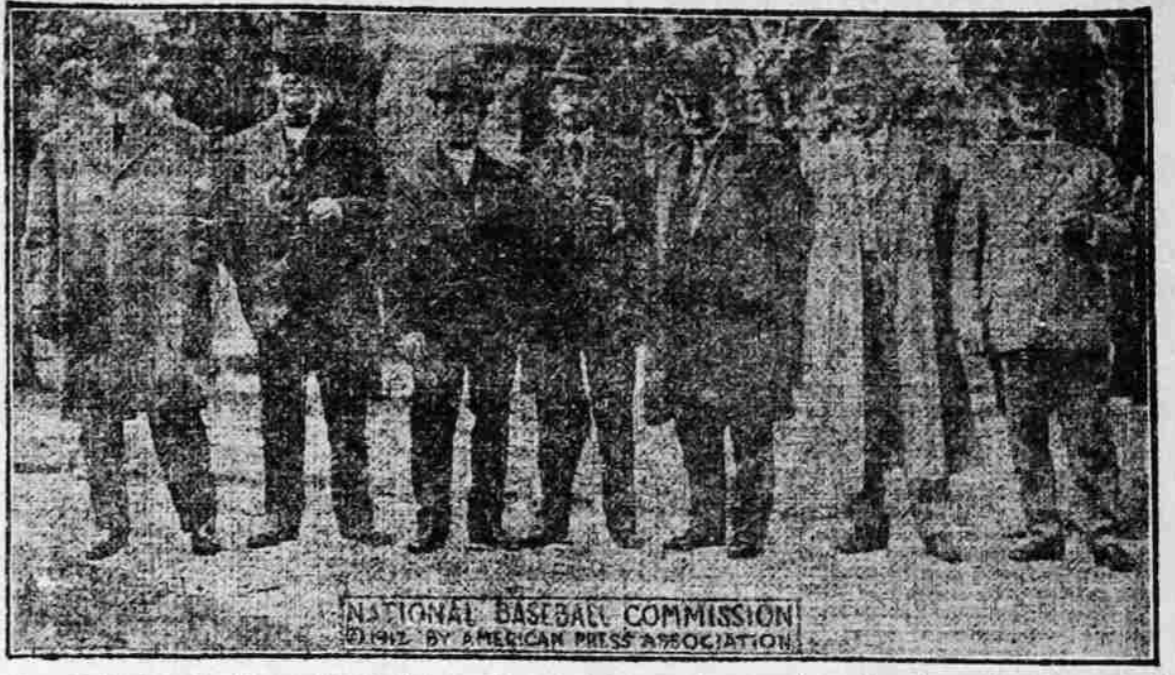

Before another state republican convention shall be held the administration of Theodore Roosevelt will have passed into history; we, therefore, deem it a patriotic duty to express at this time our grateful appreciation of his brilliant and progressive leadership. His administration in its high purposes and great achievements, consonant with the highest ideals of government, has exemplified in full and rounded measure the highest and noblest aims of American manhood. He has courageously and unflinchingly battled for the highest standards in our public and private life. Our people are better and stronger and our nation wields a great influence because Theodore Roosevelt has filled the exalted office of President. We pledge our adherence to his reform policies and measures. Four years later the same group of men dominated a similar convention. Here the name of Roosevelt did not appear in the platform; his picture was absent from the hall; a suggestion of some of his friends that delegates be sent uncommitted to the national convention, where four years ago they went instructed for him, was steam-rolled into silence. His record as President still stands. The written history of the Republican party in Utah will always show the deadly parallel. In a few short years the colonel was transformed by the Utah machine from a "brilliant and progressive" leader, a man who "courageously and unflinchingly battled for the highest standards in our public and private life" to an "agitator" and "theorist," totally unfit to be trusted with the reins of government. - Goodwin's Weekly.

Staying Power of Irish Butter. Irish butter, which is engaging the attention of the house of lords, has staying powers. In 1906 some men cutting turf near Killacan found a tub containing about two hundredweight of butter buried deep in a bog. From the style in which the tub was made it was surmised that the butter was over 100 years old. Yet, owing to the use of some preservative it was not absolutely uneatable, though somewhat rancid. Similar deposits have been found in other parts of Ireland, some wrapped in cloth which on exposure to the air crumbled to dust. It is supposed that the preservative powers of peat soil were known to the Irish in very early days, and that during the summer they buried butter for use in the winter. - London Chronicle.

The Elevating Touch. "Don't you think music has a refining influence?" "It must have," replied Miss Cayenne. "Some of the popular songs contain language that it would be impossible to employ in any other way."

Heydler, secretary National League; Thomas J. Lynch, president National League.

TELLURIDE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

At Telluride, Colo., today will be held the regular annual stockholders' meeting of the Telluride Power company, at which such changes are expected to be made as will place the company in a position to carry out an extensive campaign of improvements and enlargements. One proposal is to authorize an issue of $10,000,000 preferred 7 per cent stock and to retire outstanding bonds by means of this issue. There now being $10,000,000 of common stock in the company, the proposed total capital will be $20,000,000.

Another contemplated change is to have the principal offices removed from Telluride to Denver, and it is barely possible that the name of the company may be altered. In the event that the desired program shall be voted by the stockholders, the new management contemplated prosecution of great extensions of the system, enlargement of its horsepower capacity and further development of water power projects to bring into the system other generating units. P. B. Sawyer, general manager, and S. A. Bailey, chief counsel, both of this city, are now at Telluride for the purpose of attending the meeting. According to A. M. French, retiring director, D. C. Jackling of Salt Lake is likely to become president of the company, with several Salt Lakers in the directorate.
