

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indiscrete. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as absolutely confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

Jeffries Tells Why He Will Not Fight

(By James J. Jeffries.)

Just a few words in connection with the uproar that has been raised in connection with the demands that I return to the ring and attempt to re-act the title that Tommy Burns yielded up to Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight.

To begin with, I do not intend to fight again—mark this as final. I have burned up many dollars in telegraph tolls during the past week or so, telling different people in all parts of the country that I did not intend to re-enter the ring again.

I also have printed many statements in the newspapers to that effect, but the public seems inclined to doubt my sincerity. It was as if every man was saying, "Quit your joking, Jeff—when are you going to whip this negro and win back the title?"

They seem to take it for granted that I have to do it to get my hair cut, jump the rope about two weeks, put on a pair of boxing gloves and so on, and maul the life out of Johnson. They never stop to think that I have been out of the game for over four years, during which time a gymnasium has had the least of my attention.

I repeat that I am sincere when I say that I never will fight again. I will now tell the public why I am determined to stay out of the ring and a few facts in connection therewith.

I have enjoyed my ring career and it has been finished. I am now enjoying a title that no boxer ever held before and probably never will hold after me. I have my home, my wife, my business, my health, my friends, all the money I need, and will never want for anything. If a disaster was to hit me and I was to be swept off my feet without a penny in the world, then I might try to retrieve myself and my position by fighting again. As it is, I will go on as I am, enjoying my home, my friends and my every day life. Why, if it were more money I was after I would not have to fight for it. I have rejected a fortune in theatrical offers during the past year.

To sum the situation up, I am a contented man and why should I re-open my ring career, upset my business and home-life for the sake of a few dollars that I do not need. Another thing, I do not believe that the great American public wants to see me come out of retirement. I believe that they would rather point to me as I am—the retired and undefeated champion. The hundreds of telegrams that I have been receiving are mostly from newspaper men, who are looking for a good "story" and from others who would be benefited by my consenting to fight again.

Right here I want to correct a wrong impression. I do not give the title to Jack Root, Marvin Hart or anybody else. When I retired I took the title with me, and the fact that these fellows claimed that I gave them the title to fight for was press agent work, pure and simple.

Now a word to the well-meaning people who believe that I could go back in the ring next week and whip Jack Johnson. I am not the Jim Jeffries of four years ago. I have spent the best four years of my life in promoting my business affairs. Since I have been in the cafe business I have played the part of a "good fellow" and have been in moderation. I have smoked every day, and I have kept late hours. My place of business closes at 1 o'clock in the morning, and many times I am the last person to leave the establishment.

Would Train Hard.

At the very least I would require six months, probably a year, to get into any kind of condition, and it is a question whether or not I would be in anything like the condition that I was when I quit the ring. Suppose that after a year of training I should re-enter the ring and that Johnson should beat me. Then the public would say that I had been in even a worse predicament. The very people who are urging me now to go in and fight would be the very first to turn their backs on me and condemn me for ever having considered a proposition to fight again.

On the other hand, should I whip Johnson, which I, in all probability, would, I would be in no better position than I am now with the exception of having a few thousand more dollars added to my bank account.

I whipped every heavyweight in my day and the majority of them I beat twice for good measure. I have retired in every sense of the word, and I want to enjoy that retirement.

I have gone further in this article than ever before, because I want to show the public just exactly where I stand. I have everything that I want, and I want to be left alone to enjoy my retirement. I suppose that in ten years from now they will still talk of dragging me out to fight the champion, whoever he happens to be.

PATIENT HAS STRANGE MANIA

THOMAS HARTWELL IS EXAMINED BEFORE INSANITY BOARD

Tells History to Point Where He Lapsed into Unconsciousness at Roy—Strange Story Follows.

Thomas Hartwell, the unfortunate young man who was picked up near the Roy railroad station immediately after the Clark murder, which occurred at Utaah on the 27th of November, in an unconscious condition, occasioned by a fractured skull, told the story of his life last evening before an insanity board of examiners, consisting of Judge Howell and Drs. H. B. Forbes and J. R. Morrell. After listening to the story the board adjudged him insane and he was committed to the state mental hospital at Provo. He is suffering from a religious mania, which is considered likely to be of long standing and yet it is possible in the opinion of the members of the examiners that his insanity may have been brought upon him through the injuries he received at Roy at the time in question.

Since the fateful morning, Tuesday, December 1, when the man was brought to Ogden for treatment, he has remained at the hospital until yesterday, when he was taken to the sheriff's office for the above mentioned examination. The man seemed to have quite completely recovered from his physical injuries and he was perfectly rational in the telling of his life. He stated that he was born in Omaha, Neb., 32 years ago, being the son of Thomas Jefferson and Elizabeth Hartwell. He said that his father is still living, but that his mother died when he was a young man. According to the story he told, he left home immediately after the death of his mother and came west. He had always been a working man, his trade being that of a broom maker. He had usually been in the possession of money, but there had been times when he had to work from place to place for want of means.

He stated that he vividly remembered everything that had transpired in his life except that which happened from the time he lay down beside the railroad track near Roy, and the time he regained consciousness at the Ogden hospital, a few days later. He said he walked from Portland, Ore., to Ogden, arriving at the latter place about the first of last month. December. From Ogden he journeyed on to Salt Lake. At a point near Roy he said he sat down beside a "switch stand" to rest. He finally concluded to rest for an hour or so and accordingly, spread one of the old quilts he had with him upon the ground about four feet from the railroad track and lay down to sleep. That is the last he knew until he was aroused from unconsciousness at the hospital. He said he had no idea at all as to how he was injured, "unless," he continued, "I met with an accident with some men." He stated further in answer to questions that he was much improved in health and felt that he was able to go to work at his trade and he felt that he could easily do sorting and light shop work in a broom factory.

Up to this point the man showed no signs whatever of a mental weakness, but the key note to his mental condition was struck when Dr. Forbes asked him why he was going to Salt Lake. Here his story turned to his mother. He said that he was going to Salt Lake to advise the Mormon church of certain evidences he knew of what would help them in preaching the gospel. He desired to take the leaders of the church to a certain point of the railroad about 200 miles away from Salt Lake, where he would show them Christ and the Godhead. In this story he said: "The place where these things are is close to the railroad, about 200 miles toward Portland, by a body of water. It is close to the railroad. After leaving the railroad for a short distance, they would come to a small stable and then a little further on, by the water, we would come to the Godhead, Jesus Christ and Mary, and Jacob and Joseph and to the right of this is the Holy Bible. All these things prove the gospel beyond doubt and I wanted the leaders of the Utah Latter Day Saints to see them because it would be of great benefit to them in preaching the gospel. These things could be shown the people and then if they did not believe in Christ and the Godhead they would have to go to hell." He also stated that as we saw God and Christ in the rocks and trees on his way down from Portland and that he had tried to take a minister of the Baptist church at Huntington, Ore., to see them, but the minister would not go with him.

It was hoped that when Hartwell regained consciousness he could give some clue to the Clark murder, but nothing whatever in this direction can be gleaned from the man's story or the circumstances connected with his injury. How the man was injured may always be shrouded in mystery, the general supposition on the part of the officers, however, is that Mr. Hartwell was lying closer to the railroad track than he thought he was and that he was struck on the head by a passing train. He will be taken to the mental hospital today.

Male Friendships.

Remarks have been made lately as regards the apparent decline of close personal friendship between men. Perhaps something in our busy modern life accounts for our lower note in masculine friendships. Perhaps, too, much that belonged to interchanges between man and man is now possible between woman and man, as equals—London Light.

MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD

M. S. BROWNING ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NEW BOARD.

Matter of Clerk and Treasurer to Be Submitted to Legal Adviser of Board of Education.

A clear cut division was made in the city board of education at the meeting of that body last night. Whether it was a political division or one between the new members of the board and the old members—those re-elected at the recent election—is not definitely known. The three old members, Browning, Farr and Williams, are Democrats, and the two new ones, Dr. Coulter and Pingree, are Republicans, and in the division demonstrated during the proceedings of last night, the old members voted one way and the new members the other.

On motion of Mr. Browning, Dr. Coulter, was made chairman of the meeting. The temporary organization proceeded immediately to the permanent organization. Mr. Farr nominated M. S. Browning for the presidency of the board, no other nominations being made. Mr. Pingree moved that when the board voted on the presidency that the roll be called and each member cast his vote when his name was called. The result of the vote was for Browning, Farr, Williams, Browning, the vote against him being cast by Coulter and Pingree.

Williams nominated Dr. Coulter for vice-president, the vote resulting in Williams, Pingree and Coulter voting for the nominee and Browning and Farr voting for Mr. Farr, who in Mr. Browning placed in nomination against the doctor. Mr. Farr placed in nomination for clerk of the board Miss Ivis Williams, the incumbent, whereupon Mr. Browning ruled that the nomination of clerk and treasurer of the board was out of order on the grounds that both had been elected to the positions a year ago, and that their term of office was for two years, hence there was no vacancy. Coulter and Pingree disagreed from the chair on this point, and claimed that the clerk and treasurer should be elected at the first meeting of the newly elected board, citing the statutory provisions on that point. Dr. Coulter claimed that he had been advised by legal authority that the clerk and treasurer must be elected at the time of the organization of the board. President Browning, in answer to Dr. Coulter, stated that he had been advised by lawyers of repute that the law did not contemplate any such thing. An appeal was taken from the ruling of President Browning, which on a strictly party or personal vote resulted in sustaining the presiding officer, and the election of a clerk and treasurer was deferred. The board finally decided, however, to submit the matter to the legal adviser of the board of education and abide by his decision, the matter to be recalled at the next regular session of the board.

Mr. Pingree made a motion that the accounts of the board of education for the last four years be audited and that the auditors be persons not connected in any way with the board, either as teachers of the Ogdan schools or other employees of the board. Dr. Coulter seconded the motion, the other members, Browning, Farr and Williams taking exceptions to it on the ground that the accounts had been completely audited up to the month of August, 1907, and that whatever auditing that is done at this time should be for that date. On motion the question for a four years' auditing of the books was lost, on a strictly party vote.

At this point Pingree created a sensation when he asked to be shown how much money the board had on hand, particularly money that had been raised by the recent bonding of the city, where it is deposited and how much interest it is drawing and when it was placed on deposit.

President Browning took exceptions to the "imputation," as he expressed it, uttered by Pingree, that the funds had not been properly handled by the old board, and by way of explanation, stated that the bond money had been placed on deposit at the time of its receipt, since which time it had been drawing interest at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent with the view in the minds of the old board of ultimately placing it in some bank as a savings deposit where it would draw 4 per cent interest. He said, "We left the money received from the bonds issued in the condition now existing because when we received it, it was near election time and the board did not care to make a final disposition of it until after the election of the new board. We did not care to embarrass the new board by making disposition of the funds and, further, we did not want our action at that time to be such as to give an opportunity to make political capital of it."

Mr. Browning stated that he thought it was a little bit early to spring political disturbances. The matter was finally settled when, upon the suggestion of the presiding officer, Dr. Coulter moved that the treasurer be required to report at the next meeting of the board the amount of the bond deposits, where deposited, when deposited, and the interest it is drawing. This motion was carried by a unanimous vote.

When Mr. Browning accepted the presidency of the board he stated that "In all my experience in the school affairs of Ogden, this is the first political board meeting I have ever attended." He further enforced this idea at the closing of the session, when he said: "If there are no other political rakes to be presented, a motion for adjournment was made and carried without controversy."

Daniel H. Adams, assistant superintendent of Ogden schools, acted as secretary of the board, as he has done for some time past.
