AD WOLGAST THE MAN FOR NELSON

The day after his fight with Joe Gans at Goldfield, the illustrious, but temporarily bed-ridden, Bat Nelson brushed aside the sobriety lady who was applying liniment to his sore nose and said: "I don't admit that I was licked this time, but some day some young fellow will come along and I will get it and get it good."

It is not at all unlikely that the "young fellow" has arrived. If any boy now alive can defeat the Terrible Dane it is the little Dutch boy, Ad Wolgast.

In these days when a prize fight championship has a money value reaching into large fortunes, the appearance of a possible champion on the horizon is an event to be heralded with due hilarity, also solemnity.

If this fellow Wolgast beats Nelson in their coming fight, it will change his fortunes from the precarious existence of a "pork-and-bean" fighter to the velvet life of a man of fortune. The championship for which he is to fight has an estimated cash value of $50,000, with the prospect of multiplying that sum many times.

Temperament has a large part to play in any kind of fighting. Wolgast fights like Nelson.

He has the same cool, unangered just for combat. His people must have come from the south of Germany for he is of the type of the Latitudinal Teuton. It gives him the fierce, violent, aggressiveness of the Latin and the cold, unexcited determination of the Teuton.

Like Bat Nelson, the boy actually likes to fight. Also like Nelson, he would just as cheerfully fight in a street car or on a street corner. In the most savage minutes of a fight a pleased smile—not the sobriety smile of the stage prize fighter, but the grin of a boy having a bully good time plays over his face.

Wolgast has the typical face of the fighter. His hair grows in a thick, coarse mat over his eyes. They are blue-gray eyes, deep sunken, inscrutable. His jaw is strong and heavy, but not brutal. The picture is finished by a broken nose, which has been mended on his face.

Like Bat Nelson, he wades in with his head down and his elbows sprawled out, shaking off punishing blows with the loss and fling of a wet dog.

Although unlike Nelson, however, he is a vicious, clever boxer. His best blow is a whip with the left, just as he is coming out of a clinch. A fighter who does his best work just as he is breaking a clinch, is one who is absolutely undiminished.

Nelson has been the unconquerable champion mainly because he has what little Wolgast has—the "heart," and the undiminished, unmovable courage. He doesn't know what discouragement means. Nelson always gets the worst of the fight from the first round on until his antagonist gives up and loses on utter despair at seeing the little tow-headed boy rush back for more blows and more hurts.

When Bat Nelson meets this little boy Wolgast, it will be like Nelson meeting his other, but younger, clever self.

For the first time since he met Joe Gans, Mister B. Nelson is about to go up against a live one.

And even Joe Gans is different. The colored boy was the finished artist, the sagacious ring strategist, who "vaxed" all his science on a tough bullet head which shook off his blows and fought on with the pleased grin of a bull terrier.

BARNSTORMING NOT FAVORED BY RUELBACH OF THE CUBS.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Ball players are not unanimous on the proposition that the new baseball contract forbidding barnstorming is a hardship to the players. Edw. M. Ruebach, Chicago National league pitcher, is one of those who thinks the agreement will be of benefit to the men who play the game.

"I think the new contract is all right in the main," said the pitcher yesterday. "By playing in unseasonable weather, one is liable to injure himself permanently."

TURK MUST THROW THE POLE TWICE IN HOUR.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Mahmoud and Zhyzsko agreed yesterday to meet Sunday, but the place for the bout was not made public. Only those directly interested in the affair will be admitted. The conditions call for Mahmoud to throw the Pole twice in an hour or forfeit the match. The sum of $1,000 is in the hands of the stakeholder, E. W. Smith, and the referee has been picked.

UTAH AGGREGATION TO COMPETE WITH NATIONALS

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Charles A. Dean, chairman of the National A. A. U., championship basketball committee announced yesterday that the unlimited championships would be held at

The first regiment armory March 17, 18, and 19. As an incentive to bring the best teams together in this meeting, Dean has offered to pay part of the expenses of the Montreal five champions of Canada; the Birmingham, Ala., team one of the strongest aggregations in the south; the Salt Lake City Y. M. C. A. which has had an unbeatable team in the last few years; and the San Francisco A. C., which is represented by one of the strongest teams on the coast.

COLLEGES TO FORM AN AERONAUTICAL ASSOCIATION

New York, Jan. 20.—In response to a challenge from the Aero Club of Columbia university, an intercollegiate aviation meet is being arranged for June. The colleges thus far represented are Columbia, Harvard, Yale, Amherst and the University of Pennsylvania.

It has been suggested by the University of Pennsylvania that an intercollegiate aeronautical association be formed. The Pennsylvania representatives think that acroplaning will soon be put on the same basis as football and other college sports.

JOHNSON SIGNS UP FOR PARIS ENGAGEMENT

New York, Jan. 20.—Jack Johnson has completed negotiations for a Paris engagement. September next with Joe Jeanette. The articles of management which already have Jeanette's signature will be signed by Johnson today.

NELSON-WOLGAST FIGHT.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—Thomas McCarrey is preparing to stage the Nelson-Wolgast fight for the lightweight championship here on February 22. Hester of San Francisco not having received a permit, McCarrey is in telegraphic communication with Nelson.

O'BRIEN LOSES TO AL KAUFMAN

Philadelphia, Penn., Jan. 19.—Jack O'Brien's ring generalship tonight saved him from a terrible beating and a possible knockout at the hands of Al Kaufman of San Francisco in a six-round bout before the National Athletic club tonight.

At the close of the fight both men were bleeding from nose and mouth. Kaufman, however, was in far better condition than the Philadelphian.

There was a tedious delay in getting started because Kaufman insisted on the gloves being weighed.

When the bell rang for the opening the men rushed to a clinch, and in the breakaway, O'Brien sent two straight lefts to the nose. Kaufman rushed his opponent around the ring, but O'Brien would stop suddenly and jolt a hard right or left to the face. There was little damage done in the first round, but in the second Kaufman drove his right under O'Brien's heart, and crossed a left to the jaw, causing Jack to clinch. The minute rest helped O'Brien and he had all the advantage of the third round. His exertions seemed to weaken him, however, and he did not begin for his clinching in the fourth round O'Brien probably would have been knocked out. About the middle of this round Kaufman drove a wicked right to the wind and hooked a vicious left to the chin. O'Brien dropped to his knees, and when he arose rushed to a clinch. His clever foot work saved him. In the fifth and sixth rounds O'Brien would not allow the Californian to get set. The Philadelphian would jab the nose with a left and then rush to a clinch before Kaufman could land with effect. In the middle of the sixth round Kaufman caught O'Brien coming in and almost lifted him off his feet with an upper cut.

O'Brien clinched and saved himself. It is doubtful whether O'Brien could have lasted another round, even with his brilliant foot work. Kaufman gave his weight at 195. O'Brien said he weighed 165.

SALT LAKE AND STATE NEWS

EPISCOPALIANS STATE MEET

Salt Lake, Jan. 19.—One hundred of the most prominent Episcopals in this city and state gathered at the festival board in the Cullen hotel Tuesday evening, 19th of the month, to discuss the missionary district of Utah under the auspices of the St. Paul's Men's club of this city. The gathering included the Right Rev. Bishop Spalding, Dean Colladay, the new dean of St. Mark's cathedral, given by the churchmen of the diocese, Rev. Paul Jones, and Rev. D. Jones of Logan. Rev. T. Denhart of Provo, Rev. W. Fleetwood of Ogden, Rev. M. J. Hensley of White Rocks, Prof. George M. Marshall of the University of Utah, Major Wilkes, M. H. Walker, Judge Jones, Rev. M. W. Rice, Rev. W. F. Buckley and many others.

The tables were set in the conventional letter "U" shape, with the base of the letter at the north end of the hall, where Rev. Paul Jones, of St. Paul's church presided as toastmaster. At his right sat the bishop as the special guest of honor, at his left was Dean Colladay, the other guest of honor, with Judge Ritchie at the left of the dean. Visiting clergymen were ranged on the right and the left, while down the tables sat prominent citizens clad in their evening dress. There were no decorations; but, but, none were needed. The prevailing good humor and enjoyment of the occasion proving all that was necessary in that line.

When the yearnings of the inner man had been given full rein, the following program was carried out:

Toastmaster.....Rev. Charles E. Perkins
St. Paul's Church.....Prof. George M. Marshall
Our Own Field.....Rev. Paul Jones
St. Mark's Cathedral.....Judge M. L. Ritchie
The Old and the New.....Dean S. R. Colladay
Church of the Good Shepherd.....H. C. Tavey
Retrospect and Prospect.....Bishop F. S. Spalding
President J. W. Gates of the St. Paul's Men's club introduced Rector Perkins as the presiding genius and toastmaster of the evening.

Perkins spoke briefly of the occasion of the dinner and of the growth of the Episcopal church in Utah under the guidance of Bishop Spalding. He also spoke of the significance of the coming of the new dean of St. Mark's cathedral, succeeding Dean Brewster, now bishop of western Colorado. While much had been accomplished, much remained to be done, and it would be done under the intelligent and energetic administration of the present bishop.

The toastmaster then introduced Prof. Marshall of the university, who eulogized Bishop Spalding's cooperation in the work he was accomplishing in Utah. Rev. Paul Jones, a Yale 1902 graduate, gave a good account of his stewardship in St. John's mission at Logan, of which he is in charge, and referred to the significant work done by Bishop Spalding had done for his special field of labor up north. Judge Ritchie of the district court, formerly colonel of the First Infantry, N. G. T., reviewed the work done in St. Mark's parish, which was progressing satisfactorily under the administration of Dean Colladay. The latter in his address eulogized the west, with its atmosphere of freedom, its push and enterprise, and inspiration of its environment. He expressed his pleasure in being brought into such surroundings in general, and in particular with his new charge, of which he felt that he could justly entertain the best and highest hopes. He was glad to meet with the best known members and workers of the Episcopal church in Utah. The occasion gave him inspiration in his labors, and he felt sure that the associations thus profitably begun would continue to gratify him.

H. C. Tavey, the local representative of Marshall, Field & Co., gave an interesting narrative of the good accomplished by the Church of the Good Shepherd at Ogden, and the speaking closed with well received remarks from Bishop Spalding on "Retrospect and Prospect." He reviewed the work of the Episcopal church in this missionary district since the death of Bishop Leonard in a hopeful vein, and spoke optimistically of the future outlook. All he expressed sincere thanks for the banquet tendered him. It was a close to the fifth year of his episcopate that was indeed flattering, an honor that he appreciated highly and could never forget. It would inspire him to further and greater effort in the future. The second period of five years would witness stronger efforts than ever on his part for the furtherance of the cause of the church in this part of the country.

The speaking was so interesting that no account was made of how the time flew by, as though suggestive of the quotation from "Paradise Lost."

"Now morn, her rosy steps in the eastern clime Advancing, saw the earth with Orient pearl."

When Adam wak'd, custom'd for his sleep Aery light, from pure digestion bred."

STREET CAR FARES TAKEN BY ROBBER

Daring Holdup on Waterloo Line, in Which Two Desperados Take Part

Salt Lake, Jan. 20.—Two desperate holdups occurred rapidly moving on Waterloo street car No. 356 on Fifth East, between Eleventh and Twelfth South streets, at 12:58 o'clock this morning, as it was making its last trip into the city, held up and robbed by two desperados. The holdup occurred on 349 Eleventh East street, of $15.00 street car tickets and transfers and a gold watch valued at $7, and then swung off the still fastly-moving car and escaped in the darkness.

All the while the motorman A. D. Harrison, who lives on Eighth East street, between Seventh and Eighth South streets, was in blissful ignorance of what was happening. His surprise, when the conductor told him of the robbery, could better be imagined than described.

The holdup occurred in the neighborhood of Fourth avenue. As the car approached the avenue the motorman observed two men standing at the crossing as they waited to board the car, and he slackened his speed slightly. The back car curtains were down, and when the car slackened speed Conductor Kunkel opened the rear door to see if his supposed passengers had gotten safely aboard.

"Throw up your hands and be quick about it," was the unexpected greeting from the taller and seemingly older of the two men, neither of whom was masked.

As Kunkel saw no weapon he merely smiled.

This aroused the bad man's ire and he snarled:

"I mean business."

Both highwaymen accompanied the smart with the draw of revolvers. Then the taller and older of the men pushed his way into the car, search Kunkel, while the other stood guard over him with a drawn revolver.

The robber also held his gun on the conductor with one hand while he searched him with the other.

Without parting words the men swung off the car as it approached Eleventh South street and disappeared. Kunkel immediately told his motorman of the holdup, and the two in turn notified both the police and the sheriff's office. One of the two holdups appeared to be about twenty-five years old while the other was slightly younger. Kunkel says: One wore light complexion, while the other wore a hunting coat.

NEGLECTED CHILDREN OF OGDEN

The Ladies of the Child's Culture club had an interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. John Farr, corner of Adams avenue and Canyon road.

Juvenile Judge Gunnell, upon invitation, appeared and gave the ladies a talk about "Dependent and Neglected Children," which needs to be done, how to do it, exposition and explanation of the law respecting such children, and how the people of Ogden can best organize and act under the law and with the advantages given by the law, and how best to aid the juvenile court pursuant to the provisions of the statute.

The judge told the ladies that there are young children in Ogden who, without being at fault themselves, but being the innocent victims of the faults of others, the misfortunes of the state, the sickness of others, or the shame of others, need aid, need care, need in some cases to be removed from present places of abode, and need to be put into different, better homes; that in some cases the entire family should be so assisted that home conditions of the children would be changed, improved, and the family life elevated.

It was stated that wherever it could be arranged for a child to remain with parents, or one parent, and have a decent chance, reasonably safe and decent surroundings, and under favorable influences, it is best; but where home conditions and parental control mean degradation, intolerable, distressing poverty, immoral tone and general bad atmosphere, the child should be taken in hand by the juvenile court and be put into more promising surroundings. It was then shown how the law makes most remarkable and encouraging provisions for ladies and others of sympathetic mind and good heart and liberal inclinations toward the unfortunate and suffering in our midst, to supply means and prepare the place for the reception of such children from the court and the future care and disposition of them.

It was declared that our country leads the world in advanced thought and action in the interest of children, and that our state of Utah stands with the most progressive states and behind none in its legislative provisions for the care, protection and bringing up of children. That the juvenile court is the greatest of our country's efforts (especially the "Children's Aid society," as described in the statutes) for the handling of children in conjunction with and assistance to the juvenile court, and that the juvenile court is the heart of the state, having the right to be stirred to the depths and to action.

The law was read at some length pertaining to the power and authority and dignity, as well as the wonderful usefulness of a children's aid society, such as is recognized by the law, and those present were urged to come to a full realization now of the fact that this city and county have shamefully neglected the great work, and for long this district, with all of its intelligence and wealth, has been unable to place in an orphanage, a home, a place of any sort or provisions of any kind where unfortunate children were to be cared for. That the juvenile court had labored under embarrassment continually on this account, that the judge had been privately and publicly pleading with the people for some action along these lines for more than two years, but that there was no doubt that if a proper organization should be effected, and the movement put on foot to use this law, and care for these children, the time of some and the money of others would be liberally repaid.

Judge Gunnell made no pretense of doing more than give an off-hand talk, and even without the guide of a previously written note before him.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SAYS ANIMALS CAN BE KILLED

For some time there has been a difference of opinion between the state board of health and the state veterinarian with regard to the treatment and destruction of tuberculosis cattle.

The state board of health, and the government inspectors now in the field making tuberculosis tests have the right to order infected cattle to be destroyed and to superintend the destruction; in short, that they possess the same powers as the state veterinarian. The state board of health claimed that the owner of infected animals could dispose of those parts of the animals that were not infected, and also the hides, but this the state veterinarian denied. To ascertain the proper status of the various officials in the matter State Veterinarian Young addressed the following letter to Attorney General Barnes to obtain his opinion:

"For the guidance of work in this department, will you kindly give me your legal opinion as to the method of procedure in cases where animals are afflicted with incurable infections or contagious diseases, and your construction of sections 4, 5, 6, 9 and 14. The question on the latter section: Can federal inspectors act with the same authority as the state veterinarian?"

In reply Attorney General Barnes has sent the following opinion to Dr. Young:

"Your question is very broad. I do not know exactly what parts of those sections you desire construed. Section 4 provides for a quarantine of infected premises, in cases of contagious or infectious diseases of all animals mentioned in the act. I think the procedure provided for is clear, and I can not see any necessity for a construction. Under the provisions of section 5, where the premises have been previously quarantined, the veterinarian is authorized and empowered, when in his judgment it is necessary, to cause a slaughter of the diseased animals upon such quarantined premises, and I think also, the procedure provided for in this section can not be misunderstood. It appears that the authority to cause the slaughter of animals as provided for in section 5, goes no further than the authority to slaughter diseased animals mentioned on premises which have previously been quarantined, but under the provisions of section 6 it would seem that where any animals infected with any incurable disease, they may be condemned and destroyed without con-

sentation to the owner, and it is provided that such animals shall possess no property value, and that this section it is made the duty of the state veterinarian, or one of his assistants, to superintend the slaughter of such animals as may be condemned.

"Under the provisions of section 9 it is made unlawful to dispose of, by selling, giving away, or in any manner parting with, to another, any animal infected with a contagious or infectious disease or any animal which has, or which the owner or his agent, or employee, or the party in possession thereof, has reason to believe has, within thirty days next preceding such transfer, been exposed to any infectious or contagious diseases, without first notifying the proper purchasing or purchasing of such animal that it is so infected or has been so exposed.

"The governor shall, through the secretary of agriculture at Washington, ask the cooperation of the United States bureau of animal industry in controlling and eradicating contagious and infectious diseases in animals enumerated in this act, and when said bureau, through its duly authorized representatives, agents or employees, shall be thus engaged, they shall possess the same power and authority in this state as the state veterinarian and his assistants under and by virtue of this act."

"I take the governor has made such a request, as is provided for in this section, then the duly authorized representatives, agents or employees of the United States bureau of animal industry, acting under such request, and under the same power and authority as a state veterinarian in possession; that is, they act not only as representatives of the government, but representatives of this state, and they would be protected in their acts the same as the state veterinarian. The provisions of this section contemplate simply a cooperation of the government agents with the state veterinarian. The state veterinarian has his duties expressly provided for in this act, which duties he should perform, using his own judgment at all times."

REVERSAL IS ORDERED BY SUPREME COURT

The supreme court on Wednesday handed down an opinion reversing the judgment of the lower court in the case of F. A. Neuberger against David Robbins, doing business as David Robbins & Co., appellants. The action was brought in Cache county to recover damages in the sum of $176.73 for breach of contract in the purchase of some wheat. Neuberger and several other parties, on September 1, 1907, contracted to sell 3,000 bushels of wheat to Robbins at 64 cents per bushel. When wheat went up a short time later to 68 cents, Neuberger set work to Robbins that he would not sell at the price agreed upon in the contract. Robbins, on October 10 of the same year, agreed to pay Neuberger 68 cents for his wheat.

Instead of shipping 3,000 bushels, as agreed, Neuberger only shipped 1142 1/2 bushels, and Robbins refused to pay him but 64 cents for it. He sued for the balance at 68 cents per bushel and was given judgment for $176.72. Robbins put in a counterclaim, in which he asked damages for $280 because Neuberger failed to ship the entire amount of 3,000 bushels and he was compelled to buy enough to make up that amount at 68 cents per bushel. The lower court did not recognize the counterclaim at all and the supreme court reversed the judgment and remands the case for a new trial.

Justice McCarthy wrote the opinion of the court, which is concurred in by Chief Justice Straup and Justice Frick.

ATTRACTIVE EVENING BODICE

This effectively designed bodice for demi-toilette occasions is of black linen, with V-neck and sleeves of cream net trimmed with narrow jet insertions. Harking jet ornaments appear in front suspended from a band of jetted net thickly spangled with small jet sequins.

A blouse of this sort is not beyond the ability of a good home seamstress, if she is at all capable.

INTERESTING FACTS OF NEW YORK CITY

ONE baby born every three and one-half minutes every day in New York City is the way New York City shares in 1907 toward the propagation of the human species. Deaths occurred only at the rate of one in five and one-third minutes, and from that it will be seen that the big city would be able to grow with considerable rapidity, even if immigration ceased. Accidents last year resulted in 3,919 deaths; there were 284 murders and 711 suicides. There was a marriage every eight and one-third minutes. The largest single cause of death was consumption, which had 8,999 victims. Organic heart diseases caused 7,257 deaths.—Human Life.

So it seems that organic heart trouble is next to "consumption" in the cause of deaths—and yet people will continue to drink coffee when the ablest men in the medical profession have time and again stated that "caffeine in coffee is frequently the direct cause of organic heart trouble."

SOME HARD KNOCKS

Woman Gets Rid of "Coffee Heart."

The injurious action of coffee on the heart of many persons is well known by physicians to be caused by caffeine. This is the drug found by chemists in coffee and tea.

A woman suffered a long time with severe heart trouble and finally her doctor told her she must give up coffee, as that was the principal cause of the trouble. She writes:

"My heart was so weak it could not do its work properly. My husband would sometimes have to carry me from the table, and it would seem that I would never breathe again."

"The doctor told me that coffee was causing the weakness of the heart. He said I must stop it, but it seemed I could not give it up until I was down in bed with nervous prostration."

"For eleven weeks I lay there and suffered. Finally husband brought home some Postum and I quit coffee and started new and right. Slowly I got well. Now I do not have any headaches, nor those spells with weak heart. We know it is Postum that helped me. The Dr. said the other day, 'I never thought you would be what you are.' I weigh 158 pounds and now I weigh 158."

"Postum has done much for me and I would not go back to coffee again for any money, for I believe it would kill me if I kept at it. Postum must be well-bled like directions on pkg. say, then it has a rich flavor and with cream is fine." Read "The Road to Wellville," found in pkg. "There's a Reason."

POSTUM

Is a food beverage—when boiled for 15 minutes.

Builds up coffee-worn nerves and tissues—strengthens the heart, clears the brain and makes the red, red blood of good health.
