

MERCHANTS PROTEST AGAINST LICENSE

Businessmen Prefer That the $100,000 Debt Left by the Brewer Administration be Paid by Increasing the Taxes—This Means Doubling the Taxes of Ogden City, to Which the Small Property Holders Will Object.

That the ordinance now in the hands of the city council which provides for a special tax to be levied on merchants and practitioners of every class of tradesmen doing business in the city is unpopular with merchants was shown last night when a representative body of business men voted unanimously against its passage or the passage of any ordinance of similar provision.

The meeting, which was called by the city council as a committee of the whole, with an invitation to all parties who are interested in the ordinance to be present, was well attended. President Sam Browning of the city council presided at the meeting and announced the purpose for which it was called.

As spokesmen for a number of other merchants of the city, Angus T. Wright said that he was opposed to the passage of the ordinance, but admitted in reply to a question from Councilman Barker that some time ago he was not opposed to a proper ordinance of this kind. Mr. Wright contended that the merchants of the city are now paying heavy taxes for police, fire and other protection, and that the requirements of the ordinance now being considered by the council would work a hardship should it be passed. Mr. Wright said that one objection to the ordinance is that it classifies the merchants in the city, requiring them to pay a license according to the size of their respective stock, while saloons, humbers and palatial, are required to pay the same license.

Attorney Chez speaks. Appearing on behalf of the motion pictures of the city, Attorney Joseph Chez said that either by accident or design the ordinance was made especially severe on this class of amusement houses, and insisted that the license imposed by the ordinance was out of reason compared with the profits made by these picture houses. With each moving picture theater already paying $40 a year occupation tax, the attorney declared that should the ordinance be passed it would be more detrimental to the interest of this class of theaters than any other business in the city. He agreed with the merchants in their stand against the passage of the ordinance by showing that while it is supposed to be patterned after the one in Salt Lake, the licenses are far in excess in some instances than those levied in the capital city. Mr. Chez' remarks were greeted with applause by those in the council chamber.

Councilman George Wilson, who is the father of the ordinance, spoke in its defense. He admitted that the ordinance is radical as it now stands, but insisted that if the merchants and business men of the city would get together and agree upon a reasonable license for each class of business carried on in Ogden, that it would eventually prove to their advantage from the protection which would be derived.

Defends ordinance. The mayor spoke in defense of the ordinance. The mayor, like Councilman Wilson, agreed that the present draught of the ordinance is radical, and that the amounts of the respective licenses should be modified, but declared that a similar ordinance should be passed. The mayor, he says, is laboring under an indebtedness of $100,000, and the passage of the ordinance is necessary to raise a revenue to pay off this debt and the yearly deficit.

"And Everybody Else?" Replying to Henry J. McLaughlin, who declared that if he held a license from the state to solicit orders for enlarged pictures, he could come into Ogden and carry on his business without being disturbed by the city, Mayor Glasman said:

"If this ordinance is passed I will see that the license is collected from portrait peddlers, if they can be found, and everybody else falling within the purview of the ordinance." "Of course you are excepting the Four State Fair," interposed Attorney Chez.

The mayor said he was through with the fair and therefore any shots at future fairs did not touch him. He said he had paid in cash more to give the last two fairs than any other ten men in Ogden and he would not do it again. "So if you want to discuss the fair," he said, "go ahead."

Attorney Chez then recalled some previous promises made by Mayor Glasman, among which the latter declared that when he left the mayor's office at the close of his last term the city was out of debt and had a surplus of $25,000. "You had no such ordinance then, and you were able to get out of debt, why is it necessary now?" inquired Mr. Chez. The mayor was given no opportunity to reply.

Colloquy becomes heated. The colloquy between the mayor and Attorney Chez became so heated that President Browning was compelled to rap for order. President Browning then elicited much applause by declaring that he is unalterably opposed to the passage of the ordinance, and that he believes the taxes as they are now are amply sufficient to pay the city expenses for this year, but did not say how to pay the big debt.

Councilman Browning said the mayor must have changed since election as he was against increased taxes before election. But he failed to say that the $100,000 debt was not Mr. Glasman's doing, which forced the collection of the money.

William Burton of the Burton Implement company; John Watson of the Watson-Flygare company; J. E. Carver, a retail grocer, and others spoke against the passage of the ordinance. Charles A. Smutwaine finally moved that it be the sense of the business men present that no merchants' license be enacted, which was unanimously passed. Angus T. Wright then thanked the council for the consideration which had been shown the business men of the city. On motion of Councilman G. A. Dickinson the council as a committee of the whole agreed to make a report at the regular session next Monday night, recommending that the ordinance be referred to the license committee, which will hold another conference with a committee representing the business men of the city at a time to be arranged later. All of the councilmen present voted in favor of the motion with the exception of President Browning.

STOCK EXCHANGE TO PROTECT ITSELF AGAINST UNDESIRABLES

New York, Jan. 22.—The adoption of a new stock exchange rule, under which the governors shall have the power to forbid members doing business for any person who has incurred the displeasure of the governors, has been urged as the result of the agitation following the bursting of the Hocking Coal & Iron pool on Wednesday and the subsequent failure of three brokerage houses. Under this rule it is said manipulators, who are not members of the stock exchange and whom it has been impossible to reach, may be denied use of the facilities of the stock exchange, much as undesirable are now ruled off the turf by the jockey club stewards. It is declared to be practically certain that charges involving expulsion or suspension will be preferred against some of the men who are involved in the manipulation of the Hocking stock.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Residents of Lake avenue, in the vicinity of Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets, were convinced last night that Chicago was experiencing a continuous earthquake. Tables in flat buildings jarred, draperies and curtains fluttered and pictures on the walls were disturbed. Even the ground shook. Investigation showed that the ice had gone out in several places along the shore and the waves were pounding upon the land, the ground transmitting the vibrations.

SALT LAKE AND STATE NEWS

UTAH HEIRESS DISMISSES SUIT

Salt Lake, Jan. 21.—Miss Isabel L. McLaughlin, heiress to the $250,000 estate of her mother, Mrs. Henrietta A. McLaughlin McEnery, dismissed the suit filed against her uncle, Prof. Andrew C. McLaughlin of the University of Chicago, which was filed in San Francisco by her stepfather and guardian, Dr. William A. McEnery, when she became of age last week. Dr. McEnery charged McLaughlin with illegally withholding funds from the estate of his niece, who is the daughter of the late David C. McLaughlin, the wealthy mining man of Park City.

In 1905 Henrietta A. McLaughlin, widow of David C. McLaughlin, married William A. McEnery. In 1907 Mrs. McLaughlin died, and in what was presented as her daughter Isabel, the girl's uncle and stepfather, Mrs. McLaughlin's relatives had opposed her marriage to McEnery, and a great surprise was sprung when probate proceedings were held in this city.

Miss Elizabeth Evans, an English nurse, testified that she had met McEnery while he was "doing" the London hospitals. In a breach of promise suit for $50,000 filed at this time, Miss Evans alleged that she had traveled all over northern Europe in company with Dr. McEnery. It is claimed by McEnery that Miss Evans was induced to file the suit against him by the McLaughlins, to have him barred from being joint guardian of Miss McLaughlin.

As a result of the suit against McEnery, Prof. McLaughlin was appointed sole guardian of Miss Isabel L. McLaughlin. In the will of Mrs. McLaughlin, both her brother-in-law and her second husband were legatees, as well as the daughter. In a spirit of retaliation, it is said, McEnery filed suit against McLaughlin, in the name of his stepdaughter, who was then a minor.

Miss McLaughlin was in Salt Lake recently, only 23,849 shares of stock being sold in all this representing transactions of the value of $10,852. None of the stocks was particularly strong and Columbus Consolidated was especially weak, sales being made as low as 83 cents. Since its sensational advance of some weeks ago this security maintained its lead in good shape until quite recently, when its price sagged, and since that time it has steadily declined.

Reports from the mine are still of a satisfactory nature, shipments have been kept up and the action of the stock on the local exchange can be credited only to the vagaries of an uncertain market.

Sioux Consolidated is also relaxing somewhat and sold down to 35 cents at the morning call. Colorado, however, kept well up around the 79-cent mark.

SOUTH UTAH NOW ORGANIZED

Salt Lake, Jan. 21.—A copy of the articles of the South Utah Mines & Smelters company, successor to the Newhouse Mines and Smelters company, has just been filed in this city. The capital stock of the corporation, incorporated under the laws of Maine, Augusta being the principal place of business, is $3,300,000, divided into shares of the par value of $5 each. L. N. Kramer is president of the company; Joe Justin, secretary, and C. C. Parsons, resident agent for Utah.

Operations at the mines of the company in this state have been resumed, and the assurance is given that as soon as the necessary new contracts can be made with the smelter, railroad and refining companies, shipping will begin. Samuel Newhouse, formerly president of the company controlling the South Utah mines in question, is not connected, it is understood, with the new corporation.

JARBIDGE IS A DRY CAMP

Salt Lake, Jan. 21.—C. G. Winter, a veteran cattleman and prospector of Nevada, who came out of the new gold camp of Jarbridge very recently on skis, and who has been visiting in Salt Lake to buy machinery for the further development of the Escalante claims, on which he and associates have secured a lease, is enthusiastic over the prospects of the new country, and states that all that has been said of it does not exaggerate the wealth of the district in the least. Mr. Winter says that Jarbridge is going to be a $4 camp, this scale of wages to be maintained indefinitely.

It is probable also that the camp will hold a unique place in the long list of prosperous gold camps, in that it will be, to use a free expression, "boozelless." The camp and surrounding territory are embraced in a national forest reserve, in which the sale of liquors is prohibited, so that the frontier saloon so characteristic of the new mining camp, may be conspicuous by its absence in Jarbridge. On account of its being forest land, also, it is understood that townsites schemes will not be sanctioned, so that the ban will be placed upon another one of the promotion schemes which have in the past been a source of considerable revenue to those who have undertaken them in new districts of promise.

If a man wishes to secure a lot for his cabin or store, it is necessary for him to go to the forest ranger in charge of the division and deposit a fee of $10, for which he receives permission to erect whatever structure he may desire, but for townsites companies there seems to be no way for the acquisition of extensive holdings, the government retaining possession for reasons of its own.

Mr. Winter plans to take the first machinery into the camp from Salt Lake, and will use an improvised sled for transporting his equipment from Twin Falls, Id., over the snow to Jarbridge. He states that Salt Lake City will be able to claim the distinction of having furnished the first steam whistle to break the stillness of the forest primeval in Jarbridge district.

LATE NEWS NOTES FROM BRIGHAM CITY

(From Box Elder News.) Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Duffin were in Ogden one day last week to attend the wedding reception given in honor of the marriage of Mr. Duffin's sister, Miss Louie, to Mr. Frank Olend, who recently returned from a mission to Denmark. Mr. Olend is a resident of Wyoming, where he and his bride will make their home.

Mrs. A. C. Campbell, accompanied by her son and daughter, has just returned from Ogden, after a week's sojourn visiting relatives and friends. While there she had her son treated by a specialist, and thinks he is improving.

Don Maguire, the mining man of Ogden, who has good holdings east of Willard City, was in Brigham last Friday, and gave this office a pleasant call.

In our last issue, in recording the birth of a child at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wight, we stated that the new born was a son, which should have said a daughter.

Messrs. H. N. Bowring and R. Kasper made a business trip to Ogden last Saturday.

Mrs. I. E. Duffin went down to Ogden Tuesday morning to spend a day with relatives and friends.

Special Officer H. H. Cordon of the S. P. R. Co. was in Brigham yesterday attending the inquest hearing as to the cause of the wreck on the Southern Pacific last Monday morning.

Prof. S. D. Bradford of the Weber State Academy at Ogden was transacting business in Brigham Monday.

Salt Lake, Jan. 22.—H. T. Allen of Twin Falls, Id., an owner of several promising claims in the new Jarbridge gold district, has returned to camp after a visit in Salt Lake during which he purchased mining tools and supplies which he could not secure in Twin Falls. Mr. Allen, though not overenthusiastic about the Jarbridge district, is of the opinion that it is destined to be a "gold bonanza." Mr. Allen confirms what has already been said regarding the number of men now in the district—about 300, with more than that number now waiting in Twin Falls to rush into the country just as soon as the roads become suitable for the transportation of supplies and provisions.

Samples of ore brought to this city for testing by local assayors have returned of from $40 to $800 per ton, these ores having been "grab samples" from five different strikes already opened on located claims, and by no means picked specimens. Cripple Creek, Colo., and Goldfield, Nev., mining men, it is said, are especially anxious to get into the new territory, and the Oregon Short Line officials at Twin Falls have to date resolved more than 1,300 letters of inquiry as to the best route into Jarbridge.

Extensive Locations. Mr. Allen states that the ground surrounding the original strikes in the camp has been staked out and located for a radius of twenty miles, though the actual mineralized zone so far as prospected is about two and one-half miles in width and five miles in length. When the snow goes, however, and prospecting is again made possible, it is thought that the boundaries of this zone will be greatly increased, as good values were found near the surface some twelve miles to the east of the camp late last fall.

Mr. Allen lays stress, as do others, who have visited in Jarbridge, on the benefits to be derived by the new goldhunters' mecca, from the almost unlimited water and timber supply which is a part and parcel of the mineral-bearing land.

ROUGH HOUSE CAUSED BY A COCAINE FIEND

Salt Lake, Jan. 22.—For waving a gun about his head and threatening to kill the inmates of the house at 131 South Second West street, Lawrence Mertzheimer, who is said to be a "dope fiend," was arrested Friday night by Patrolmen Johnson, Ekbert, Duvander and Griffin and disarmed, after which he was taken to the police station.

Telephoning the police that a crazy man was about to kill everyone in the house, one of the inmates of the house implored the desk sergeant at the station to send officers immediately. When the police arrived they found that the man had driven every one out of the house and had threatened to kill any policeman who entered. It could be seen through the window waving the gun about.

With drawn revolvers the patrolmen entered the room and when close to the man, Patrolman Griffin stepped up and grabbed the gun, while the rest of the officers surrounded the man. He was then placed in the patrol wagon and taken to the station. When searched at the station he was found to have enough cocaine on his person to kill a dozen ordinary men, and he later confessed to the police that he was under the influence of the drug and had been "running a big bluff," as he expressed it, on the inmates of the house. He was charged with exhibiting a deadly weapon.
