WOULD MODIFY TAXATION LAWS

Washington, Jan. 26.—Again measures for modifying the law in regard to issuance of United States bonds and certificates of indebtedness and for fixing the tax rate on national bank note circulation to maintain the parity of the existing two per cent issue of bonds were submitted to congress today by Secretary MacVeagh. The circulation tax act as proposed reads:

"Be it enacted that the rate of tax on national bank circulation secured by bonds of the United States hereafter deposited bearing rates of interest greater than 2 per cent per annum whether the particular bonds have or have not heretofore been used to secure circulation shall be increased over the tax on circulations secured by two per cent bonds one-fourth of one per cent each half year for each and every one-half of one per cent excess over two per cent in the rate of interest borne by such bonds.

The other proposed act is intended to remedy defects in laws regarding United States bond and certificate issues.

MINE WORKERS STANE TOGETHER

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26.—"Stand or fall together."

That was the sentiment of the convention of the United Mine Workers of America when it closed discussion of the prospective strike of bituminous coal miners today. The resolution will not be formulated definitely until the wage scale committee reports.

In the speeches of union officials, it was declared that bituminous miners are determined to demand wage increases of ten per cent or more; that no one district organization shall sign the uniform wage contract until all districts sign, and that if a strike is inevitable in one or more districts all shall strike.

The basic contract of the whole country is to be negotiated next week at Toledo, though specifically the conference between operators and miners is to adjust only differences of western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana.

WHEAT ONLY GRAIN SHOWING INCREASE

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Wheat was the only grain here which showed a net gain at the close of the day's trading, chiefly remarkable for fluctuation. It advanced from 1-2 to 3-4 cents in the final figures while corn and oats fell off from a firm opening and finished 1-8 to 1-2c down.

The trail of wheat led over Boulders and into ruts, prices rising and falling over a range of from 5-8 to 1-2 cents in a succession of fluctuations. Time and again unusually large arrivals tilted the market to the bear side and as often a wave of buying would surge over the pit hanging the complexion of the figures. May was the most active and touched each fractional point between 111 1/4 and 109 3/4, making a strong finish, 5-8 up at 111 1-8@114.

Corn fluctuated less than wheat and the trading was within a narrowed range.

The range for the day was from 3-4 to 1c with May the most active month, closing 3-8@1-2 down at 67, after having journeyed from 67 3/4 to 66 3/4.

Oats were less nervous and less active than the other grains although their range was similar, extending from 14 to 1 1/8.

May ranged from 47 3/4 to 46 7/8 and closed at 47 1/8, 1-4 cent lower than yesterday's final figures.

In provisions, futures closed from 7 1/2 to 22 1-2c higher.

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best success. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Tenn. grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet, I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby."

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk, and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner."

"My little 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." PNEUMATIC SWEEPER

Suction Provided By Means of Blower Operated By Hand.

It is no longer necessary to have the house wired for electricity in order to have a pneumatic sweeper. A New York man has invented one which answers practically every purpose and which can be operated by hand by one person without any other motive power. The sweeper consists of a triangular framework, with a receptacle for the dirt set inside. The upper bar of the triangle is hollow and terminates at the lower end in a mouth like that on any pneumatic sweeper. At the upper end is a blower device, a handle to guide the machine by and a wheel by means of which the blower is operated. A flexible pipe also runs from this upper portion down into the receptacle. By turning the wheel a suction is caused by the blower, and as the sweeper is pushed along it takes up the dirt through the stationary pipe and deposits it into the car below through the hose. The machine is not so cumbersome as most other types of sweepers that generate their own power.

WOLGAST WILL DEFEAT NELSON

(By T. D. W. Smith)

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Battling Nelson's own statement that Ad Wolgast is liable to give him the hardest fight of his career is shared by several excellent judges of the game on the Pacific coast. As a matter of fact, such a good judge as Eddie Graney is looking for the birth of a new champion the night of Washington's birthday, or whenever the battle between the pair may be decided.

"This is the news brought to this city by Billy Ryan, a lifelong follower of the boxers and a personal friend of most of them. Billy passed through the city yesterday toward the west on some mining business and will be present at the battle, having had his appetite whetted for something rich by the first encounter of the champion and near the champ at Los Angeles."

"How good do you think this Wolgast boy is, eh? Well, he's better than that and then some," said the good looking William, as he beamed on a party of friends and talked of everything but business.

Has All Requirements.

"Wow! but he's a puncher, this chap. He's accurate, too, and strong and game. O, he's got everything you could wish for in a boy," was the way the enthusiasm bubbled out of Billy, whose judgment is not blinded in the least by any prejudice, for he likes the Bat and wouldn't mind if he held the championship for the next ten years.

"Just listen to this and I will outline to you why I think he has got the Dane's number," continued the young mining man. "I've seen Nelson in a lot of his fights—most all he ever had on the coast, in fact. In some of them did I ever see him back away when he was smashed in the face and body.

"It was always his system to bore right in, taking what was handed out without giving an inch. His wonderful stamina and his ability to assimilate any sort of a wallop enable him to keep coming in for more. There wasn't a boy that he fought that could stop his onward march."

Ad Stagers Dane.

"But what did Ad do when they battled? Just this. Every time he napped the Dane, Bat would topple back on his heels, completely staggered. Wolgast's every punch seemed to stagger Nelson right down to his ankles. Of course, he showed a few flashes of his old force, but before the tenth round was over he was a sight, I'm telling you."

"Now, it's just this. Either Nelson is suffering from all the beatings he has received and is going or has gone back immensely, or Wolgast is about the niftiest thing that ever stood on the canvas swapping wallops. I attribute to think well of Ad rather than bad of Nelson."

"Believe me, I couldn't understand it, and appealed to Eddie Graney for the opinion of the match. He told me that he figured that Wolgast was the next champion of the world to a moral certainty and that if he got a crack at Nelson in a long fight the Dane never could possibly stand for the bombardment he would get. Eddie further told me that he intended to have a fat commission down on the Michigan man when they hooked up. That's the way mine is going, too."

Wolgast Beats Nelson.

Wolgast and Nelson boxed ten rounds in Los Angeles last fall and the common report was that Ad had bested him effectively and completely. As a matter of fact, the reports agreed that Nelson never had a look-in at the distance and that he was lucky to stay at all.

At any rate, Ryan's talk recalls the oft-repeated prediction that the first really bad, tough man that tackled the Dane would whip him, if capable of out-roughing and out-attacking him at his own game. In Wolgast we have the ideal man for the job if he is as good over a distance of ground as he is at the shorter routes. Being of solid, powerful build and game to the marrow, there is no reason why he shouldn't stick.

And the old question comes up: Has the Bat zone back so far and have the beatings unfitted him? Often we thought this must have been the case in the past, but Bat proved a fooler as well as a fighter. What's going to happen this time?

PLACE OF FIGHT NOT YET SETTLED

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 27.—Jack Gleason, the fight promoter, announced last night that he will probably leave for Portland, Ore., this morning to have a talk with Jim Jeffries, whose show is billed in that city for Friday. He hopes, he says, to take up the question of the probable location of the fight in Salt Lake or here, and the report from New York that the fight may be declared off.

A morning paper this morning attempts to draw from the general belief that Jeffries' show will not be presented here an inference that the champion is chilly toward San Francisco.

ADVOCATES LESS MEAT.

New York, January 27.—A word of endorsement and encouragement for the meat strikers has come from George Bonhage, the Irish-American Athletic Club's champion long distance runner. In an interview on training for distance contests given out here today Honhage says:

"Many athletes would do well to join the meat strike. Most of them eat too much meat. They would be better off if they would cut out meat diet about half the time and resort to a vegetable diet in the interim. For instance, I eat sparingly for the hours preceding a race and just before the contest I satisfy my appetite with figs, raisins and almonds. I attribute my victories in large part to a vegetarian diet."

TARIFF NEGOTIATIONS HAVE BEEN SIMPLIFIED

Berlin, Jan. 27.—The non-insistence on the part of the United States that Germany admit American meats more freely is regarded in official quarters as greatly simplifying the pending tariff negotiations and as removing one of the principal embarrassments. Upon the point of American cattle imports, the German government, it is declared, could not yield. It would be impossible to overcome the opposition of a majority in the reichstag even were the government willing to advise a concession.
