THOUSANDS ARRIVE AT RENO DAILY

RENO, July 1.—With the appointment today of the timekeeper and announcer, the circle of ring side officialdom for the Fourth of July battle between Jeffries and Johnson, upon which rests the undisputed championship of the world, was completed. The officials are:

Tex Rickard of Nevada, referee; Charles White of New York, alternate referee.

George F. Harting of San Francisco, timekeeper.

Billy Jordan of San Francisco, announcer.

Tim Sullivan of New York, stakeholder.

Tom Corbett of San Francisco, betting commissioner.

Despite the persistence of the rumors that Rickard does not intend to actually referee the contest, no tangible ground for the report could be discovered. Rickard himself denied emphatically that he had any intention of stepping down at the last minute in favor of the New Yorker.

Rickard Will Be Referee.

"I am the referee," he reiterated, "and I am going to do the refereeing. Here"—Rickard reached into his pocket and produced a roll of bills. "Here—just bet that $500 for me that I referee the fight. That's how I feel about it."

Of the fight officials named above, all but Jordan are on the ground. Harting and Sullivan arrived yesterday. "I have $50,000 of the purse money now in my hands," said Sullivan, "and the rest will be turned over to me tomorrow."

Rickard was at the depot to meet Sullivan. After a brief conference the pair climbed into an automobile and set out for Jeffries' camp. Five members of Sullivan's party accompanied them.

Tim Sullivan Meets Jeff.

When the machine drew up in front of Jeffries' cottage the fighter came forward.

"Hello, Tim," he said, extending his hand.

"Hello, Jeff," replied Sullivan. "I wish you all kinds of luck, boy."

After a few moments of talk with the big man, Rickard and Sullivan whirled away over the dusty road to Johnson's quarters. They arrived just after the champion returned from his afternoon road work. The greeting between Sullivan and Johnson was cordial and after an interchange of remarks the two officials hastened back to the city.

Reno was much perturbed today by rumors. They were flying everywhere, rumors about Jeffries, rumors about Johnson, rumors about Rickard and the referee job, rumors about everything and everybody directly or indirectly connected with the fight.

Taking the Jeffries rumors in chronological order, he first broke his forearm; at noon he ruptured a blood vessel in his elbow and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

In spite of all this hard luck, Jeffries was sufficiently recovered at 5 o'clock to look up from a game of cards and draw!

"Well, so long as I am all right on Monday afternoon, I don't cut much figure what happens to me now, does it?"

Jeffries Sued Again.

The only real affliction to come upon Jeffries during the day was one which threatened his pocketbook. A suit for $3,000 attorney fees was filed against him in the district court by the local lawyers who drew up the contract conveying the fighter's share in the moving pictures to an eastern syndicate. The lawyers alleged that because of the terms of the contract with the syndicate's representative they were entitled to at least $5,000. They argued that since by the contract Rickard and his partner in the deal, Tex Rickard, would get $65,000 in good, hard money as soon as the first going tapped on Monday, and that even if no blow was struck in the fight that $65,000 belonged to Tex and Jim absolutely and they could throw it at the birds if they liked. $5,000 did not look very big after all.

Rickard said later in the day that the matter had been adjusted. The lawyers said that it had not. They admitted, however, that it was liable to be settled at any moment. There were numerous conferences at the lawyers' offices during the day and Rickard did not appear worried in the least, so it is supposed it was all settled to his satisfaction or would be any moment.

Newspaper Men Kept Busy.

Another of the flock of rumors that electrified into life the corps of newspaper men and sports that dotted the shady side of Center street was one to the effect that Sam Langford would box with Jim Jeffries before daylight faded. That particular mark kept the war correspondents hopping around in circles. They went out to Moana, then they came back. As soon as they got back they wished they had stayed there and started out again.

About 6 o'clock it became known that Langford had come in from the camp to his hotel, secured a large and suspicious looking grip, which bulged with suggestions of boxing gloves, and hastened back to Moana. Everybody was on the jump out to the camp again in a moment. The road was almost destroyed by the hurrying wheels. Most of it was hanging in the air, a cloud of blinding, stifling dust. It did not get a chance to get back to earth for hours.

When the war correspondents arrived at Jeffries' quarters there was no sign of Langford. He had not been there, it was declared. The scribes, greatly disappointed, waited to watch Jeffries do his last work, a few short sprints, then abandoned him for the night. Jeffries' home spurt from his road work was made under the eye of the moving picture camera and this probably is the last time the machine will be trained on him until he enters the ring.

Fighters and Fans on Every Train.

Reno began today to assume something of the appearance it will on Monday before the battle. The depot was a scene of excitement all day. Early trains from the coast unloaded fighters and fight fans at every gang way. So many notables arrived that the correspondents began to look hopeless. It was impossible to talk to them all. Some escaped unharmed.

Later in the day the overland limited from the east rolled in. Tim Sullivan, the stakeholder, took the spot light among the arrivals, but Frank Golch, the wrestler, and a host of lesser lights, some of them from across the Atlantic, came in for a share of public attention. Even Old Sol took an interest and he gazed at the cosmopolitan throng so curiously that many called for liquid help and ran for shelter.

It was an odd sight along the main thoroughfare of the city when the evening shades allowed the visitors to get out on the sidewalks and circulate again. In front of the hotels the passageways were solidly blocked with notables and unnotable men. They were all talking fight. Across the street from the door of a poolroom a hoarse voice roared offers of wagers through a megaphone.

Gambling Is Wide Open.

"Who wants 10 to 6 1/2? Take a chance, boys. It's going on inside now. They're betting real money. Ten to 6 1/2, who wants it?"

From the gambling halls, which frankly proclaim their business in this land of license, lurking behind no modest green doors, the hum of roulette wheels and droning calls of the crap dealers and the murmur of voices and clink of coin floated out as the summer evening drew on and the air cooled, the visitors began to move about the city, eyeing everything that suggested the big west. By twos and threes and tens they surged up and down the streets. In at one gambling hall door and out at the next the crowd wended along. All stopped at the poolroom boards, but few seemed inclined to bet. The wagers remained very quiet. The odds had dropped back from 7 1/2 to 10, and days ago to 6 1/2 to 10. There seemed to be little prospect of change. One big bet was recorded during the late afternoon of $10,000 to $15,000.

$10,000 Bet Made on Jeff.

Late tonight, when the day's arrivals had taken their last look at the two fighters and compared notes, the betting aspect of the situation began to live up. Tom Corbett, the betting commissioner, received $5,000 from his brother Jim to place on Jeffries and later in the night received $10,000 from one New Yorker to wager at $6,500 or better against Johnson. The only other $10,000 bet thus far made was made by Andy Craig of Chicago some weeks ago.

The trainers, rubbers and other camp attendants out at Johnson's headquarters tonight raised a purse said to be $5,000 which they were offering at 6 to 10. Up to a late hour tonight this money had not been placed.

John Bush of Ely came in with $2,500 which he placed against $5,000, taking the Johnson end.

To Toss for Corners in the Ring.

Johnson refused tonight to permit his manager to toss for corners. At least that was the excuse made by Tom Flanagan when Sam Berger from Jeffries' camp asked him to make the trial ahead of time. Berger wanted to toss tonight, but Flanagan insisted that they wait until the men enter the ring and then toss in accordance with the time-worn custom in ring battles.

"You know," said Flanagan, after the conference with Berger, "we may use electric fans in the ring. It is not decided yet. We think it possible that the other fellows may put in some apparatus that we don't know about and we are not taking any chances."

Late tonight there was a squabble between Tex Rickard and the contractors who built the arena. There has been a difference of opinion between the supervising contractors and the local builders before and this is said to have extended to Rickard tonight. Rickard was refused admittance until the battle ground is turned over to him on July 3, it being feared that he might put up signs that the local men did not wish to have placed.

JOHNSON IS STILL TRAINING

JOHNSON'S TRAINING CAMP.

RENO, July 1.—After four rounds of light road work, with a half dozen of his followers trailing at his heels as usual, Jack Johnson did not work today. The champion was prepared to do a little springing for the picture men, but they did not call on him unless he decided to do it on his own hook. The trip was made late in the afternoon and Johnson walked most of the way, which proved a boon to his followers. There were few visitors at Camp Johnson during the day. It was known in the city that the dusky fighter did not intend to do any work except at the dictation of the picture men, and when the latter departed for Camp Jeffries the crowd tagged along. Johnson arose before 8 o'clock, but spent the day either in his rooms or loitering around the grounds with his trainers. A number of the distinguished sporting men who reached town during the day called on him, but there was little in sight to repay the ever-vigilant war correspondents who traveled out to his camp.

Johnson in Good Humor.

Johnson was in his most sunny humor all day. He was repeatedly attacked by his sparring partners and trainers in the playful mock assaults popular at the resort and never lost an opportunity to set things going on his own account.

When asked, as he is about every hour of the day, how he felt, the champion's big black face beamed with amusement.

"Just look me over," he would answer.

"If I felt any better I would not know how to stand it. I think it would probably hurt me."

Light road work and a little limbering up in the gymnasium is the champion's plan of campaign for tomorrow and Sunday. What he will do Monday morning he has not said. None of his trainers was able to give an outline of his advance program, as Johnson acts as a rule, on the spur of the moment. The before-the-battle tension is noticeable about the camp, that is, among the champion's followers, but Johnson displayed not the least sign that he thought of the near approach of the Fourth of July except when some question compelled him to turn his mind to it.

Johnson's Measurements.

The champion was measured today by Tom Flanagan, his manager. The following figures show the size of the black giant.

Height, 6 feet 4 inches; neck 17 1/2 inches; chest, normal, 32 1/2 inches; chest, expanded, 42 1/2 inches; biceps, 16 inches; forearm, 14 1/2 inches; wrist, 10 1/2 inches; waist, 30 inches; thigh, 23 inches; calf, 15 inches; ankle, 9 1/2 inches; reach, 72 inches; weight, 209 pounds; age, 32.

MUCH JOHNSON MONEY IN 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Betting on the big fight was lively here today, with the odds remaining all day at 10 to 7, with Jeffries on the long end. Much Johnson money was offered that the champion would stay fifteen rounds, but there was no Jeffries coin to cover this. So anxious, however, are the fight followers to wager on the probable duration of the contest that the poolrooms here have announced that tomorrow morning they will begin to take money at odds that Johnson will last twenty rounds. Corbett telephoned from Reno today to his local manager here that the betting at the scene of the fight was very light today, but the contrary prevailed here, much money coming in with the bettors on both sides apparently satisfied with the prevailing odds.

DELANEY TO BE JOHNSON'S SECOND

OAKLAND, Cal., July 1.—Billy Delaney will be in Johnson's corner on the Fourth of July if his physicians permit him to act as the champion's second. This was the substance of a statement made tonight by Delaney to the Associated Press.

The veteran trainer will leave for Reno tomorrow night and will go directly to Johnson's camp. Delaney has been in ill health for some time and he stated tonight that he may be too ill to second Johnson, but that he will be in the champion's corner unless prevented by actual physical disability.

What is meant by the term, "Immediate relatives?" When there is a wedding, it is frequently reported that only "immediate relatives" were present; does this mean the second cousins, or does it stop at cousins in any degree? Or, perhaps, it means that only the relatives in good circumstances were asked, poor, kin never being "immediate" even at funerals.
