

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

James Wilson Will Arrive in Ogden Tomorrow Afternoon and Is Expected to Remain a Day or More—Present Visit Recalls His Attendance at Irrigation Congress.

A telegram from Jasper Wilson, son of Secretary James Wilson of the department of agriculture, to Forester A. E. Sherman this morning announced that the secretary will arrive in Ogden at 3:50 tomorrow afternoon and the telegram advises Forester Sherman to meet the distinguished party.

Mr. Sherman is at a loss to know just how long the secretary will remain in Ogden, but it is thought that he will be here at least one day, and it may be that he will stop in Ogden until the arrival of Chief Forester Henry S. Graves, who will be here August 5.

It is possible that further information from Secretary Wilson will be received during the day, or early tomorrow morning, stating definitely how long he will remain in the city. At any rate, preparations will be made for his reception, both by the forest service and the mayor of the city. The reception will be informal, if the secretary remains but a short time, but will be more elaborate if he stays for a day or more.

The secretary and his son are making a tour of the western country for the purpose of studying the forest service. Secretary Wilson has recently visited Portland and Missoula and it is expected that he will spend some time at the Ogden office. Mr. Wilson has a great many warm friends in Ogden whom he undoubtedly will see during his brief sojourn in the city. He was here last year and spent about a week looking over affairs of the forest service, during which time he enjoyed himself and accomplished a great deal in his field of operation as secretary of the agricultural department of the government, which embraces the forestry service department.

Secretary Wilson is the oldest cabinet officer and he is, perhaps, the hardest worker, even at his advanced age. During the summer vacation he makes it a point to give his direct personal attention to the many things of the department over which he presides. He likely has a larger acquaintance among the people than any other of their servants. He is commonly known as "Farmer Wilson" and he has a speaking acquaintance with many of the tillers of the soil.

Mr. Wilson attended the irrigation congress when it assembled in the tabernacle in Ogden in 1902 and addressed the meeting on the great questions before it. He, with others, made the trip to the Grand Canyon to examine the project of conserving the waters of Ogden river for government reclamation purposes and at that time stated that he thought the plan feasible. The company took dinner at the Hermitage and, in a brief after dinner speech, the secretary said that he had never before had the privilege of partaking of such a dinner as was given by "Billy" Wilson and his wife. Since that time he has had a longing for another trout and chicken dinner in the canyon.

old contract. This has meant that the other two lines have had much the best of the deal.

It is not practicable to weigh every lot of mail that is sent over the lines of a railroad, the government, at stated intervals, weighs all outgoing mail over a given line daily for 100 days. An average of the business is then struck, and on that basis the railroad company receives its pay. No provision is made for increased Christmas mail or for any other extraordinary occurrence, and once the tonnage is fixed, it holds until a reweighing is ordered. These reweighings are frequently years apart.

CARD OF THANKS.

To those who so kindly assisted and lent help during the illness and death of our beloved son, S. Vernon Loggreen, it is our earnest prayer that they may receive the same kind of treatment during their hour of sorrow and bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. N. SAMUEL LOF GREEN.

NORTH OGDEN TEAM TOO STRONG

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
North Ogden	11	1	.916
Plain City	8	4	.666
Huntsville	5	7	.416
Hooper	4	8	.333
Liberty	4	8	.333
Eden	3	9	.250

In a great battling rally at Plain City, Saturday, North Ogden defeated the home team by a score of 12 to 9. The game was witnessed by more than one thousand fans and was one of the best contests of the league for the day.

Hooper won the game, with Liberty at the Fair grounds, and Huntsville defeated Eden at Huntsville, in a close match.

North Ogden now has a strangle hold on the trophy cup which will be difficult for any of the opposing teams to shake off. Plain City holds second place with comparative ease, but its way to the top round is barred by the lead of over two hundred and fifty points which the top notchers have piled up to their credit.

BURNED BRIDGE DELAYS TRAFFIC

By the burning of a bridge near Cisco Saturday night all Rio Grande trains from the east were delayed Sunday and did not get in until this morning. The bridge was a mile post 64 and was twenty-eight feet high. Being totally destroyed it was no easy job to rebuild it. But General Superintendent J. C. Dalley was on one of the trains coming, and was able to give the matter his personal direction and by dusk Sunday evening the crews assembled from Grand Junction had cribbed the bridge so that trains could pass. Trains 3 of Saturday and 1, 5 and 6 of Sunday were behind it.

Vice President and General Manager H. W. Clarke with his staff was on one of the trains en route to Salt Lake City to meet the Western Pacific officials for the meeting to be held there.

CHINATOWN HAS AN UNDERGROUND

Excavating for the Lyceum Causes Chinese to Grow Uneasy and Finally Make Known That Under the Old Theater a Tunnel Exists Which Leads to a Dismal Chamber

Has Ogden an underground Chinatown like that of San Francisco before the big quake? Are there subterranean haunts unknown to the police where crime lies hidden, where vice is rampant and yellow and white fight for justice may live without the fear of discovery?

A discovery made today by Contractor W. C. Gale, who is excavating on Twenty-fifth street for the proposed Lyceum theater, indicates that there is some ground for suspecting that such is the case. Uneasiness on the part of the Celestials connected with the Wah Sing Lung Oriental tea store just west of the Lyceum excavation, led to the discovery that deep down in the earth under the site of the Lyceum is a secret room, a den of Chinese. This room is thirty-six feet long by eighteen feet wide.

Because Wah Sing Lung feared that the excavators would look through the cavern-like rendezvous of Celestials, he was forced to make known the secret of its existence to the contractor. He did not do so, however, until A. J. Gale, brother of the contractor, who is doing the active overseeing of the work, grew suspicious of the Chinaman's many inquiries as to the depth the excavators were going and worked a ruse on the excited Lung. Lung was told that the excavation would go down about twenty feet. In desperation, the Chinaman then confessed that he had a room built under the ground about fifteen feet from the surface.

After the story was told by the nervous Chinaman Gale assured him that the excavation would not go down twenty feet, but was only to slope gradually from a few feet below street grade at the street line to about ten feet at the south end of the building. This is for the dressing room of the theater and not for a cellar.

When the tea store man was assured that his underground room was in no danger, he appeared to be sorry that he had spoken of it at all and grew very taciturn in regard to the hidden chamber.

When seen by a Standard reporter about noon today, Lung would not talk about the subterranean chamber any further than to admit that it existed. He refused to state for what the room is used, merely pretending that he could not understand what was asked. Finally he said that he had a kitchen and some tables in the underground den. He declined to permit the newspaper man to visit the place.

Persons who reside or work in the neighborhood of the Lung place tell some strange tales of mysterious happenings in which the secret chamber is believed to have played a part. It is said that about a year ago the police traced a much wanted suspect to the Lung store and saw the man enter the place. A few moments later the police had the place surrounded and made a search of the premises. The occupants of the place, who were found, smilingly assisted the police in the search and apparently lent the officers all the aid possible. No secret room was found, but persons who remember this raid believe that the man must have been secreted in the underground chamber.

When Lung was asked today what he did with the dirt that was taken from the cavern, he smiled and said, "Make chop suey noodles." It is common knowledge in police circles of the larger cities that the Chinese at all times have secret hiding places that are known only to a few who have helped to build them. The fight of the San Francisco police some years ago against the notorious Highlanders led to the discovery of many such secret chambers. In Chicago, during the recent fight against the white slave traffic, the detectives in charge of the work were baffled by the secret haunts of Chinatown, where many of the white slave traders sought refuge and where many a white girl was hidden from her friends and from the authorities until the activity of the police had lessened.

Generally the opium dens of the Chinese are hidden in chambers below the ground, and some of the most loathsome of brothels have been unearthed in similar haunts.

That other underground abodes of Chinese exist in Ogden, and that deeds and scenes are enacted in these places that would not be tolerated on the surface, where they would become known to the police, is a reasonable supposition based on discoveries of the police in other cities.

FORESTER GRAVES IS COMING

Chief Forester Henry S. Graves is rapidly approaching Ogden on his tour of the western forest districts of the United States. It is announced by Forester Sherman that he will reach here August 5.

Mr. Graves is now in Colorado re-connoitering the forest lands on the western slope of the historic city of Indian massacre, Meeker, near the border line of Utah in the vicinity of Vernal. From that point the forester and his party will come direct to Ogden, the plan being for him to remain in Ogden August 5, 6 and 7.

Assistant Forester W. T. Cox, of the silviculture department, accompanied Mr. Graves on his tour. From which point he made his way to Ogden to take up his labors in the department here. He says that Mr. Graves was called to the Meeker country to investigate regarding agricultural lands claimed to be embraced in the forest reserves there, but that up to the time he left the party they had encountered nothing but precipitous mountains, fit for nothing but grazing, and the growth of forest trees.

After three days in Ogden, Mr. Graves, in company with Forester Sherman, will make a trip through the Kaibab forest in southern Utah and northern Arizona, which will occupy about twelve days time. The party will cross the great Colorado river just over the border line in Arizona, and from that point the chief forester will make his way either to San Francisco or Albuquerque, N. M.

VAGRANTS IN POLICE COURT

The charge of vagrancy held the boards in the municipal court this morning, it appearing that nearly all the "vags" of the city had been taken in the last few days. One of the vagrants was charged with vagrancy, and was sentenced to serve time, while others protested their innocence and will be tried tomorrow.

Since Saturday night the police force has been on the outlook for vagabonds and mendicants, taking care the while of the drunks and other offenders. The recent show, though, that there has not been a single hold-up or burglary since Saturday.

John Walsh pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and the court gave him the light sentence of a fine of $5 or five days in jail. The judge looked upon the matter as of not very great seriousness and he stated that he would inflict light punishment.

Jerald McDonald stated that he was not guilty of vagrancy, offering the further information that he is a resident of the city, but Harry Ward, charged in the same complaint with the same offense, said he was guilty and would like a sentence passed. The court concluded to hold the hearing of the case of McDonald tomorrow and not render a decision in the case of Ward until the testimony in the McDonald case is given. The case could not be heard this morning because the complaining witness was not present. The men were placed under bonds of $10 each pending the hearing tomorrow.

Joseph Kuhn, in answer to the charge of vagrancy made to him by the clerk, advised the court that he was not guilty. The witnesses in the case not being present, the case was set for trial tomorrow morning. Kuhn was placed under a bond of $10 for his appearance for trial.

J. P. Sweeney and C. B. Jones acknowledged to the court that they were vagrants, Sweeney stating that he lives in Ogden, but that he had been out of employment for fifteen days. The men were sentenced to pay fines of $10 each or serve ten days in the city jail. It was also stipulated that in case they remain in jail, they must do hard labor during the time of their incarceration.

Thomas Hunt disturbed the peace yesterday by making loud and unusual noises and by threatening to fight. He acknowledged the charge against him and was sentenced to pay $5 to the clerk or spend five days in the city jail.

Pauline Deming, Mamie Brown, Mary Jordan, Norma Russell, Hannah Hatos and May Ward were not present to answer the charge of vagrancy and their bail in the sum of $10 each was declared forfeited.

The case of the city against Ernest Wilson, in which the defendant was alleged to have stolen three pounds of brass, the property of the Southern Pacific company and of the probable value of $150, was dismissed, the evidence against Wilson being insufficient to establish a cause of action.

William Scheffler was tried for disturbing the peace, it being alleged that, on July 31, the defendant fired a shot at Isaac Harper, a carpenter, was not certain whether his peace had been disturbed, he stating to the court that he had been told by another person that Scheffler had proposed to shoot him and he thought he "heard the click of the trigger." The case was dismissed, the court stating that the prosecution was flimsy.

NEGRO IS CHARGED WITH BRUTALLY BEATING WIFE.

Salt Lake, Aug. 1.—George Williams, a negro living at Fourth avenue and C street, was arrested by Sergeant Beckstead and Patrolmen Bush and Pierce Sunday night, charged with wife-beating. According to the police, the Williams case is one of the most flagrant that has ever come to the notice of the department.

When the police arrived at the house, in response to the telephone messages of the wife and the neighbors, they found Mrs. Williams in a most pitiable plight. Her teeth had been knocked out and were scattered about the floor and her eyes were blinded, the surrounding flesh having been beaten and bruised until the swelling had closed the eyes. She also complained of bruises about her body. Williams offered no resistance to the police. When being searched at the station, he laughed about the beating he had given his wife.

BROODING CAUSES WOMAN TO SHOOT

Denver, Aug. 1.—Insane, it is believed, as the result of brooding over accounts of a murder and suicide which took place in Denver eight days ago, Mrs. Mabel and her husband, Jos. A. Elvland, as he lay in bed, and then killed herself.

The murder was not discovered for an hour. Then the bodies were found by Mrs. G. Connor, the mother of Mrs. Elvland. Mrs. Connor and neighbors believe Mrs. Elvland's mind had become deranged from reading accounts of the slaying by Mrs. Lulu Ferris, eight days ago, of her husband, followed by her own suicide. The Elvlands' young son and Mrs. Connor asserted that Mr. and Mrs. Elvland had apparently been living happily, although Mrs. Elvland recently had acted peculiarly.

AUDIENCE IN SYMPATHY WITH HIM

Rev. A. S. Watkins, president of Asbury College, Kentucky, and at one time candidate for vice president on the Prohibition ticket, gave a strong address on "The Case Against Liquor" at the Ogden tabernacle Sunday afternoon. The musical program was made up of selections on the organ by Prof. Sam Whitaker and solos by C. G. Purinton, and was greatly enjoyed.

The speaker of the afternoon said that liquor was not only not a benefit, but a harm. He impressed upon his audience that not less than two billion dollars is the annual drink bill of the nation. This was illustrated by saying that, if that number of silver dollars were to be placed flat against one another, they would reach from New York, through Ogden and San Francisco, several miles out into the Pacific.

There have not been two billion minutes from the day that Moses was born until now," the speaker said.

He showed it to be the greatest economic question of our day. He attacked the argument that the breweries and distilleries aided the farmers by furnishing a market for their products, but, showing that these institutions simply extracted some of the good out of the grain, and then put it back on the market at the same price as it had been before.

Of the 100,000 lives that are annually lost by drink, many are taken of men who do not drink themselves. It is a terrific toll in lives.

Mr. Watkins said that Cooks, who killed President McKinley, had been raised in a saloon as a boy and that he belonged to anarchists that met in a saloon and that he went from a saloon to the act.

Insanity, poverty and crime were traced to the saloons. Mr. Watkins said that the merchant who was deprived of the trade of the drinker and the drinker's family was the one who really paid the tax of the saloonkeeper.

A large audience listened to the speaker and all were manifestly in sympathy with him in his declarations.

A Sale of Jelly Tumblers

Two glasses in one—drinking glass, jelly glass. The glass is clear and white—the edge perfectly smooth—just like your table glass.

The common jelly glass is "muddy," rough and has a "saw edge" top. It is good for only jelly. It is hard to clean. You can buy common jelly glasses for 25 cents a dozen—they're worth no more. These pretty table tumblers of ours are fitted with tin tops—they cost you 35 cents a dozen—and they're worth it.

Let us send some to you—if they don't look ten cents better than common jelly glasses—send them back.

DECORATING FOR KNIGHTS CONCLAVE

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The work of decorating for the reception of the half million visitors who will be in Chicago for the Knights Templar convocation next week, was begun yesterday.

Most of the material for the arches was placed on the ground yesterday and the work of erection started with a rush today.

The "Templarway" on State street, extending from Randolph to Van Buren, will be the largest and most elaborate decoration that has ever been erected in Chicago.

Upon each side of the street massive Corinthian columns will be erected, thirty feet apart and surrounded with a globe studded with stars. The columns will be twenty-one feet in height and one hundred electric lights will be used to illuminate each cap and globe. The neutral laurel will be festooned from column to column and in the center of each festoon will be a circle three feet in diameter, surrounding the bright red cross of the Knights Templar.

SHOT AND KILLED BY ACCIDENT

Seattle, Wash., August 1.—Florence Strobble, 30 years old, was shot and killed last night at the home here of her former husband, Charles Lytle. Lytle says the shooting was accidental and the police, after investigating his story, decided not to arrest him.

Lytle and the woman had been separated two years according to the story told the police; she called at his home to discuss plans for a reconciliation. Two loaded revolvers were lying on a table, was knocked to the floor and the gun was discharged, the bullet striking the woman in the side as she stood in an adjoining room placing a record in a photograph. She died in a short time.

MACHINISTS WON ALL HONORS

After a twenty-minute struggle, the machinists moved the anchored feet of the boilermakers in the big tug-of-war of the Southern Pacific shop employees at Lacon Saturday. The contest was witnessed by nearly a thousand people who cheered lustily for both teams.

About fifteen hundred people in all were at the park attending the picnic, eleven hundred of these securing tickets from the shop committee. When the time came for the tug-of-war only the machinists and boilermakers were on hand to compete. About sixteen men from each of these two crafts lined up on opposing sides and took hold of the huge cable. For fully twenty minutes the cable was held taut, neither side giving or taking an inch of ground. It looked like a permanent deadlock, when, by an extra hard heave of the machinists, the anchorage of the boilermakers was broken and once broken there was no quarter given by the machinists. The war was ended and the machinists were the victors.

The ball game had a somewhat similar ending, as the machinists won by a score of 19 to 0 from the boilermakers. Only five innings were played.

The car men have issued a challenge to meet the machinists on the diamond and the machinists have responded with an offer to play the boilermakers for a side bet of $50. Just when or where this game will be played has not been decided, but both teams seem eager to have the game pulled off in the very near future.

CHEROKEES TELL ON EACH OTHER

Interesting sidelights on the gentle art of "holding up" one's fellow man are coming to the surface since the incarceration of "Cherokee Bill" Rio and his versatile pal Frank Bell. The evidence is that resourcefulness is often the highwayman's main stock in trade.

"Cherokee Bill" and his black accomplice, who claimed relationship to the red man until Bill inadvertently referred to him as a "good-for-nothing nigger," were arrested last week on the charge of holding up Insurance Agent Loggreen, Billy Clark and a youth whose name has not yet come to light.

By a clever bit of pardonable prevarication the police succeeded in getting the two hold-ups furious at each other and one of the other has been "coming up" information regarding the other almost daily since the arrest.

It developed yesterday that, after holding up Loggreen, the men next tackled the youth referred to. Their only weapon was an absolutely worthless revolver, so trusted that it could not be loaded when discharged. Unaware of its harmlessness, however, the young man snatched it from the

SHOWER DOES CROPS GOOD

Ogden was visited by a heavy shower last evening, which did untold good for the crops in this vicinity by relieving the dry spell which has prevailed here for a number of days.

The rain was accompanied by a heavy electrical display and several violent shocks of lightning occurred during the evening.

Lightning is believed to have struck a house near the power house during the storm, the only apparent damage, however, being the burning out of one of the coils at the sub-station which supplies the elevator service of the city.

The lights were temporarily weakened, but nothing of a serious nature resulted.

No more welcome or refreshing shower has visited Ogden in many weeks and the benefits will be manifold.

WEIGHING U. S. MAIL ON SALT LAKE ROUTE

Announcement is made that the postoffice authorities will reweigh the mail carried by the Salt Lake Route. This will mean a gain of many thousands of dollars a year to that line, as the company is now being paid on the basis of mail carried when it was first opened.

During the time the trains on the Salt Lake Route suspended operation owing to washouts, the government granted a reweighing to the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific. As the Salt Lake Route was not in operation it was cut out, and since its trains were not back in the commission it has been forced to carry the mail under the
