Two Men Born in Monarchical Days Demand a Residence.

They were born here, however, during the days of the monarchy, and the District Attorney has raised the objection that birth in the Islands under the monarchy does not entitle Chinese to enter now. The matter will be submitted on briefs.

A remarkable tree, dubbed the skunk tree by those who have made its acquaintance, has been found in the grounds of the Queen's hospital here in the Punchbowl district. The tree gets its name from the intensely disagreeable odor it gives forth. The first tree that was found disturbed a number of residents of the locality, who made complaints to the Board of Health, with the result that there was an inspection and improvement of sewers in the locality. The nuisance did not abate until the edor was traced to the obnoxious tree, which was promptto the obnoxious tree, which was promptly cut down and destroyed.

The tree is about the size of an ordinary mango tree. Its objectionable odor comes from the limbs and tender branches. No one here has been able to identify the tree.

J. W. Erwin, Assistant General Superintendent of the free mail delivery service, arrived here yesterday on the steamship Sierra to install the free delivery system in Honolulu. Men have already been secured by civil service examinations for the positions of carriers, and the system will be put in operation at once.

James E. Kennelly, a passenger from San Francisco for Sydney on the steamship Sierra, jumped overboard the day after the vessel left San Francisco. He left his wife on the vessel in a destitute condition, as he carried with him all the money the couple had when he jumped into the ocean. This was about $200. Kennelly had been suffering ill health for some time and is thought to have been demented. He had been in the contracting business in California and had lost several thousand dollars.

Consul Coney Says Reed Is Not an Officer in Mexican Army.

Visiting Colonel Produces Credentials to Prove His Identity.

One of those internecine disputes in the Mexican colony over the celebration of the anniversary of Mexico's independence is on once more. While this annual flesta generally provokes more or less bitterness generally provokes more or less bitterness in the colony this year the feeling has reached an acute stage. On one side is the Hidalgo Club celebration, scheduled for September 15, with Colonel Juan Guillermo Reed at the head. On the other side is Consul A. K. Coney and the clientel that affects an acquaintance with the local consular diplomatic body.

From the latter side comes the statement that Colonel Juan Guillermo Reed is not a Mexican colonel, that his name is not on the roster of the Mexican army, or anywhere else to show that he is entitled to wear shoulder straps, algrettes or anything that goes to make up the panoply of war in which the Mexican officer is wont to fight the battles of his panophy or war in which the Mexican officer is wont to fight the battles of his country.

Colonel Reed, who lives in a comfortable house on Eddy street, near Larkin, has a frame full of diplomas certifying to his proficiency as a typographer and architect from the Government military school at Chepultepec. He has a breast load of medals won in school and others won on the field by conspicuous bravery. He has a wall full of military drawings, all bearing the official seal of the Government of Mexico, signed and countersigned by numerous comandantes and generales. Yet Consul Coney says Reed's name is not on the roster of the army of Mexico. He says he has the authority of the Minister of War for the statement.

Colonel Reed, bereft of his military trapping, is a mild-mannered man, his appearance reminding one of a militia colonel in every day attire. He freely tells his story. He does not brag about his achievements, but points to his many evidences of careful study and the war maps drawn by him as proof of the truth of his statements.

"I am a native born Mexican," he said, "and have been educated." Mexican, Mex

October, when my leave of absence will expire."

During his stay here Colonel Reed has been following his profession as architect, a modest sign bearing the inscription, "John Wm. Reed, architect," standing in one corner of the dining-room.

"This man called on me a couple of months ago," said Consul Coney last night, "and introduced himself as a colonel in the Mexican army. He did not show me any credentials. I telegraphed to the Minister of War and he replied that there was no such name on the roster of the Mexican army. If anybody ought to know if Reed was a colonel in the Mexican army the Minister surely ought to."

When the attention of Consul Coney

When the attention of Consul Coney was called to the documents in the possession of Reed he said he had never seen them and that Reed had never offered to show them.

them and that Reed had never offered to show them.

"What the Minister of War says is enough for me," concluded Consul Coney. Reed says he comes from an old Mexican family and that in his country his name is pronounced Ray-ed. Although but nine months in the United States he speaks English, but with a slight Spanish accent. He claims to be proficient in French and Italian.

As Consul Coney is to be the honorary president of the day at one celebration and Colonel Juan Guillermo Reed is to fill a similar position at the other some of the Mexican residents profess to see in this the cause of certain strained relations between the consular and military representatives of our sister republic.

Webster Says Plan Is Political. Superintendent of Schools Webster is of the opinion that the new plan of electing teachers adopted by the Board of Edu-cation is an "elastic" affair and exposes cation is an "elastic" affair and exposes the department to political and personal influences. Webster believes that instead of awarding credits for experience, examinations only should be held and the papers marked accordingly.

"If the merit system is to be carried out." said Webster yesterday, "It is unfair to allow at the beginning a certain percentage of credits for experience, Again, the only safeguard after the successful candidates in the three classes have been listed is to select them chronologically for appointment. I would consider that as a partial preventive of favoritism. Should the board draw from the list at its own discretion the order of merit will not count."

Unsolicited Testimonials Tell of Its Superiority. Alf R. Kelley, residing at 2195 Devisa-dero street, San Francisco, Cal., writes the following: "When I first purchased Herpicide I thought, like the majority of hair preparations, it would prove a fake. I am happy to state that, on the contrary, it is all, and even more, than you claim for it. Quite a number of barbers throughout the section in which I travel have called attention to the new hair sprouting out on my scalp, and inquired of me what I have been using. I 'ell them 'Herpicide'; also give them your name and address."
