Residue From the Sale of Few Jewels Will Pay for Burial of Mrs. F. J. Burton

HUSBAND UNABLE TO AID Two Men Who Had Called Her Wife Fail to Meet the Claims of Undertakers

The remains of Mrs. Frances J. Burton, who was divorced shortly before her death from one Dr. J. Leek, but was said to have married J. Burton, a race track man, were taken to a grave in the Potter's field by the sale of a scant $300 worth of jewelry which she had pawned at a local store.

MRS. FRANCES J. BURTON, WHOSE PAWNED JEWELS WILL INSURE HER DECENT BURIAL.

The woman was reputed wealthy, but when she died, besides the jewels in pawn which left but a few tawdry pearl chains and paste stones, Dr. Leek claims that she owned $3000 worth of diamonds and that she was seen wearing them during the last month, but none were found among her effects when the Public Administrator searched the rooms she occupied at 381 O'Farrell street.
