

IN WOMAN'S WORLD

The Smart Set

THE latest news from France last week was that Dr. and Mrs. William J. Younger had given a musicale at their home in Paris.

This week the domestic history of William Ellis Corey is cabled to a waiting American world. Foreign correspondents thus keep their countrymen at home au courant with affairs in Europe. Usually the progress of the Coreys is followed from week to week, but the coronation so soon after their ball rather overshadowed it. If one thought of it between reading about John Hays Hammond and Mrs. William H. Crocker at the coronation, it was to suppose they were resting quietly on the laurels of the fete. It seems, however, that William Ellis Corey was not. He is said to be restive, bored at the butterfly existence of a French gentleman, longing for the clash of steel in the battle of American finance. Also to be desirous of a reconciliation with his former wife, one of the original Reno divorcees.

This, however, is not the point. In late bulletins Mrs. Corey the second is called a chorus girl, who won her first recognition in San Francisco. It is no more important than anything else about the Coreys, but it is still interesting that she was a student at Mills college a few years ago, where girls who are now living in the Greenway set were her classmates. She was pretty and clever, and had a voice for grand opera, they say, if it had been developed. She was only 16 when she came across the bay from school to sing "Ben Bolt" in "Tribby," quite thrillingly, at the old Baldwin theater. She sang behind the scenes, while Virginia Harned posed before the footlights, and it was a well guarded secret whose was the really beautiful voice in the wings. Not a stage appearance exactly, but Mabelle Gilman's first professional venture.

In the excitement of later events the Mills college career and "Tribby" seem to have been forgotten, and are not referred to in chronicles of the Coreys.

Miss Harriet Pomeroy, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Thomas Scott Brooke, at her home in Portland, is expected to return to San Francisco next week.

'Aspiration' Hat, Reaching To Heaven, Is the Latest

The New "Aspiration" Hat
—Photograph by Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

It may be the height or the upward effect of this chic and daring creation that has given it its name, but in either case the title is appropriate. Here we have the narrow brim and the tall trimming that characterize the fashions in millinery. The hat is of black velvet, the brim surmounted and the crown surrounded by a mass of soft curled ostrich plumes, from which spring a dense cluster of straight, tall feathers.

WOMEN'S SELF-DENIAL TO HELP CALIFORNIA

How Quarrels Are Started By Lovers---By Ruth Cameron

S AID the girl in love to the man she loved: "I don't think you care so much for me as you used to. Just think! You were in town all day yesterday and you didn't call me up. You know you would never have done that six months ago."

Said the man in love to the girl he loved: "Why, dear, I thought I just told you that I was with Rushworth every single minute. You know I was trying to put through that big sale, and that I didn't dare let him get out of my sight for a minute."

Reiterated the girl in love: "I think you would have managed somehow six months ago before you were so sure of me."

Retorted the man in love: "You didn't use to be so abominably unreasonable. Are you always going to be like this?"

Flushed the girl in love: "Yes, when I have so much cause to be. Why? Don't you think you can stand it?"

And there they are with a perfectly good quarrel on their hands and unkind words on their lips and heartbreaks in their hearts, for "to be wroth with one we love doth work like madness in the brain."

And all for what?

All just because the man in love didn't realize that what the girl in love wanted when she said he didn't love her as much as he used to was reassurance—fond, foolish, reiterated, convincing reassurances. And because, instead of these, he gave her cold, logical, sensible reasoning.

Is there—I wonder—was there ever a couple who did not have at least one quarrel along these lines?

I doubt it.

Can't you imagine Eve saying to Adam, "When we lived in the garden you used to be with me all the time, and now I seldom see you except at meals. I don't think you love me the way you used to."

Any of course, Adam answered, "But, my dear, you know I didn't have any work to do then, and now I have to work for my living. I think you are unreasonable."

And poor little Eve, who just wanted to be told that he loved her quite as much, if not more, than ever, went off into the nearby glade to cry her heart out at the coldness of his tone, and Adam went back to his work, bating the unreasonableness of woman.

All of which might have been avoided if Adam had just taken Eve right up in his arms and said, "But, dearest, you know I love you more every day. You are the one woman in the world to me."

And now, you people who still think I'm a man masquerading—can you doubt any longer?

Would I have known this if I weren't a woman?

Suffrage Pennants Fly From Tamalpais 3,000 Feet in Air

Suffrage pennants fly, nearly 3,000 feet high, from the top of the weather bureau station on Mt. Tamalpais. The flags were placed there last Sunday by Mrs. Berthold Baruch of Los Angeles, who was a visitor yesterday at the headquarters of the women's suffrage party.

Mrs. Baruch, who is an enthusiast of enthusiasts over the right of women to vote and who is a member of the executive committee of the political equality league of southern California, said she could not resist the temptation, when on Mt. Tamalpais, of asking permission from the weather officials to place the pennants on the building.

When the request was granted, Mrs. Baruch managed, with the aid of friends, to place two suffrage emblems upon the little station which caps the mountain.

DRESSMAKER BRINGS SUIT FOR DAMAGES

OAKLAND, Aug. 16.—Suit for $15,500 damages was begun today against the Oakland Traction company by A. M. Stewart, a dressmaker, for injuries alleged to have been sustained March 26. She said that she was crossing the track at Grove and Twelfth streets when she was run down by a streetcar. Her right arm and the thumb of the right hand were broken and numerous severe bruises inflicted.

One of the first stores I went into was that of a cheery old Frenchman. Almost as soon as I began speaking to him of my object he cried out with enthusiasm: "Why, I have heard the greatest speakers in the world talk on that subject. I heard Dr. Anna Shaw and Susan B. Anthony. I believed in it for years."

I urged him to come to our meeting at the Presbyterian church and give us the benefit of his experience, and he acquiesced with a slightly amused expression, and gave us then ray-eyes fell upon records of great whisky barrels in the back of the store, each with a glass on top, and I said: "What a pity that I had penetrated a saloon!"

Adeline Francis at the Empress in Clever Novelty Entitled the "Graphophone Girl"

The most entertaining novelty at the Empress Theater this week is undoubtedly Miss Francis and her graphophone. It is one big surprise and a rare delight. Graphophones, phonographs and singing tables have been in existence for several years, but Miss Francis (the originator of this clever idea) is the first to come forward and employ the instrument to give the public what it is always clamoring for—something unique, something new.

In creating this act, Miss Francis has delivered a most entertaining and original novelty, which must have required the patience of a Job and a very considerable quantity of gray matter besides. The act is protected by copyright and consists of a clever duet and recitation, the graphophone enunciating both questions and answers, as well as songs and accompaniment. Miss Francis' own voice was used in recording the records used in this act, and at the Columbia laboratory in New York. It is said that her recordings are perfect specimens of tone quality and enunciation.

In trying out all makes of machines and records, Miss Francis finally decided, after exhaustive tests, that the Columbia instruments are superior to all others because of the evenness with which the motor operates, and because of the tonal qualities and the durability of the mechanism. Columbia machines and Columbia double disc records are sold in San Francisco by Kohler & Chase, fifth floor, at 26 O'Farrell street.

Society Woman Invades Saloon In Suffrage War

A prominent society woman from across the bay discussing suffrage in a saloon in one of the small towns of Contra Costa county. Now what do you think of that?

It all came about through enthusiasm for suffrage, but the suffragist, for such she is, does not mind it now, as she secured the promise of the saloonman, an old admirer of Susan B. Anthony, to help in the fight in his town. The information of the incident was conveyed to the league, of which the society woman is a member, in a letter, of which the following is an extract:

"Curious things happen to us when we are out on our organizing trips. Last week I was in a little town in Contra Costa county. We felt that our meeting had not been fully enough advertised, and the four of us who were there divided the village street, beginning at opposite ends and going into every shop to talk with the men who kept telling them to take an interest in the suffrage cause."
