WARM ARGUMENT ENLIVENS SESSIONS OF DENTAL MEN

Spirited Controversy Deals With Relations of California and Southern Associations

UNION MEETING FINALLY FRAMED

Interesting Clinics Held in Morning Session; Luncheon in Hotel Oakland

OAKLAND, June 3 .- Warm argument centered about the relations between the California State Dental association and the Association of Southern California, an independent organization, at the second session of the state association this afternoon at the Hotel Oakland. The suggestion that the association from southern Califorthe association from southern California be allowed to affiliate with the California State Dental association in representation at the National Dental association called for a debate that threatened the peace of the conven-

A motion was made during the consideration of amendments at the after-noon session that the association join the national association, and the argument was made by Dr. A. M. Flood of San Francisco that a committee of three be appointed to confer with a committee from the Association of Southern California to form a coalition in joining the national body. The amendment was attacked by Dr. Calvin W. Knewles of San Francisco, who

"This reply is unworthy of us. It is about time we fongot our differences and joined hands in friendship. This is a bombshell just as I had hoped that we might get on a better and more friendly footing with our southern California brothers. There are good men down there—the best that walk the earth. We can't expect them to come into our organization, for that is ers. We have our homes here, pay sociation of Southern California had already been recognized by the national association and had been granted representation. The question was peacefully settled by the adoption of a resolution to appoint a committee of three to confer with a similar committee from the southern organization already appointed to get together to arrange a union meeting of the two societies next summer.
