

CHICADEE.

The song-sparrow has a joyous note. The brown thrasher has bold and free. Sing a sweeter note to me.

LOVE AND LOTTERY.

What have our novelists been doing when this anecdote was waiting for them? Charles Theodore d'Estainville found himself, at twenty-one, walking in the gardens of the Luxembourg without the smallest coin of the realm in his pocket.

quick, sagacious, sharp-witted rogue. He had a project of the live lottery which he, and before he left the box, had converted his love-letter into a charming address to all the charming women of France to purchase tickets in a lottery of which the capital prize was to be the most captivating of mankind.

The Jew was delighted with the project, exhibited all the eagerness of his tribe in a sure speculation, and promised, for a per centage, to dispose of all the shares at the synagogue in a week. To make the matter more secure, he insisted on Charles receiving fifty Napoleons on the spot, and finishing the night by supping with him at his own apartments.

The idea occurred to Euphrasia that though a thousand Napoleons would be a very satisfactory sum under other circumstances, it was unlikely to sell her good fortune until she knew what it was. The widow had bought thirty tickets. Her negotiation had failed, and she retired. In five minutes after, a traveling chariot drove to the door. Charles leapt up, and was in the arms of the fair Lyonsese.

God called up from dreams a man into the vestibule of heaven, saying, "Come thou hither, and see the glory of my house." And to the servants that stood around his throne he said, "Take him, and undress him from his robes of flesh; cleanse his vision, and put new breath into his nostrils; only touch not with any change his human heart—the heart that weeps and trembles."
