Here are some: Two styles of Satin-lined West-of-England Kersey Overcoats, blue and brown, reduced from $30 to $23. These goods are the finest we know of in point of style, workmanship, and quality of material. There's only one explanation for these large reductions, viz: We are overstocked with fine goods. Here are others: Two styles of imported Chinchilla Beaver Overcoats, gray and brown, satinlined throughout. They were very cheap at $25. We have reduced them to $20, however, in the hope that we may unload them during the holiday season. We argue "first loss is best loss." And it's better that wa should get rid of th m now at a loss than carry them over another year. Goods will undoubtedly be higher next year than thay are now, but we can make excellent use of the money realized from this mark down sale between now and then. These Overcoats are on exhiblion in our show windows and on our counters, and we'd ba pl ased to show them to you at your convenience.

Is a weekly occurrence. It is read by all buyers, criticised by our competitors, and indorsed by the majority of the District people. It is looked for regularly every Friday; it sometimes creates great satisfaction and causes many remarks of wonder. Then, again, it produces a lull, which is caused by many being already supplied with the articles advertised. We have so many goods which should be placed before the public at this period that we must condense same in order not to overcrowd our space in this paper.

SHORT ENDS!

Perhaps not exactly what you are looking for at this time, but our reduction on same might force sales. We want room, and as the fall production of remnants is about over, we cannot cause any great boom in advertising
