INDIAN SUPERSTITIONS.

The Whirlwind and the Thunder Objects of Curious Theories.

The Dakotas believe that there is a close relation between the whirlwind and the fluttering wings of a moth. The cocoon is regarded as the mysterious object from which a power similar to that of the whirlwind emanates as attested by the emergence from it of the moth.

Dr. Wisner explains in Discovery that the whirlwind meant by the Dakota is the harmless little whirl on seen upon the plains every clear day. The long, slender column betraying its presence makes a profound impression upon the Indian.

In the whirlwind somehow and somewhere resides the power to produce confusion of mind. Thus it is natural that its aid should have been invoked by the warriors on going into battle, for to be as intangible, invisible and destructive as the wind was their one great desire. When a man loses his presence of mind he is said to have been overcome by the whirlwind.

A cocoon of a moth taken with a portion of the twig upon which it was found and wrapped in an eagle plume or down is regarded as a perpetual prayer to the power of the whirlwind. This prayer is not only symbolized by the genuine cocoon worn upon the person, but also by its image in stuffed buckskin or by its sketched or painted representation.

The Blackfeet see a relation between the moth and sleep and appeal to it when they desire to have dreams, for with them power is always conferred in a dream. In the case of unrequited love the whirlwind is invoked. It is believed that it can confuse the mind of a girl to such a degree that she cannot resist the pleadings of the enamored swain.

Some of the Dakotas believe that the bear controls the power of the whirlwind and that a prayer must be addressed to the animal for the assistance of the whirlwind. Sometimes a person will receive power from the bear in a dream or vision and thus come to have the aid of the whirlwind because of the conceived relation between the two. Finally the power of the whirlwind is also supposed to be associated with the buffalo and the spider web.

A duty of equal importance among the Indians of the plains is the thunder, which usually is associated with military exploits. While the Dakotas generally regard the thunder as a bird, usually symbolized by the eagle, they sometimes speak of it as a horse, a man or a dog.

The horse has always appealed to them as a creature of mysterious origin and in many cases is assumed to have been given by the thunder. In any event there is an association in their minds between the power of a warhorse and the thunder.

The thunder is often represented by a zigzag or wavy line, usually in red. But Dr. Wisner says that this symbol really represents the power of the phenomenon in the abstract, because the Indian lacks the conception of a force in nature, so that the symbol is also a general sign for the presence of mysterious supernatural power.

Whistles made from the leg and wing bones of eagles are employed by the Dakotas to symbolize the cry of the eagle as a representative of the thunder bird. In battle or sometimes in stress of great trial they are sounded to summon the aid of the power of the thunder. As a rule, a zigzag line is scratched down the sides of these whistles.

The yellow winged woodpecker is looked upon as an associate of the thunder bird, because when a storm is approaching it utters a shrill cry not unlike the sound of the whistle and is believed to be speaking to the thunder.

The spider is spoken of as a friend of the thunder, and it is the general belief that the thunder will never harm it, so that it is itself a protection against thunder. The observed fact that a spider manufactures a web and that this web is not destroyed by arrows or bullets, since they pass through it, leaving only a hole, is cited as the basis for the conception that the spider has power to protect people from harm.

Stonewall Jackson's Order.

A Virginia veteran told how Stonewall Jackson used to be of cotton in the ramparts that he threw up in defense of New Orleans, and it was naturally a matter of indifference to him whose cotton he employed. Some of it happened to belong to a rich merchant. The merchant followed his bales with doglike devotion. He could not bear to tear himself away from them. He was standing over them when Jackson happened to draw near, and, running up to the chief, he said: "Monseur, it is damage for your men to take my cotton. All property is sacred and must be protected." "But," said Jackson, "are you sure this is your cotton?" "Oh, sure, most sure," said the merchant. "I know the marks all of them. If you please, this cotton, sir, must be defended." Jackson turned to a private and told him to fetch a musket at once. The musket being brought, the general laid it in the merchant's arms and said with a grim smile: "My friend, you are the most proper person I know of to defend your own property. Stay here, then, and do so. Stir at your peril."

TIME IS THE TEST.

The Testimony of Richmond People Stands the Test.

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Richmond people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Edgar S. Mote, of 17 North Sixteenth street, Richmond, Ind., says: "Some years ago my husband was having some trouble with his back. There was a dull aching pain that bothered him most of the time. He was told about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply at A. G. Luken & Co's drug store. After taking it he never again mentioned backache to me. He believed that Doan's Kidney Pills are a great remedy and has told several people of the benefit he got through using them."

Successful Baking A Talk with Housewives

If you want to have light, tempting, appetizing biscuits, waffles, griddle cakes, doughnuts—delicate and delicious cakes, and all the other good things in which baking powder is used, try Egg Baking Powder.

Egg Baking Powder ensures successful baking. Your quick steps in the haste of preparation or the accidental slamming of the oven door will not result in fallen cake or heavy biscuits.

Egg Baking Powder is made from dried white of egg and wheat phosphates. When water is added, the resulting leavening gas is caught and held in tiny globules by the egg albumen, and it can't get away until your baking has progressed far beyond the danger line where ordinary baking powder "goes dead."

These are facts which a trial will prove. Another thing that's mighty important is that Egg Baking Powder has no cream of tartar, tartaric acid, alum or other harmful substances found in ordinary baking powders, that keep the digestive organs in a constant state of irritation and cause dyspepsia. We will give $5.00 to anyone who can prove that this is not absolutely true.

Bad baking powder causes many a kitchen tragedy. Think of company coming for dinner and the baking failed flat! Biscuits like brickbats! Cake ruined! Muffins wearing a soggy look! Only a lot of uninviting and indigestible cookery to show for a whole day's work and worry. No danger of this if you use "Egg."

You save one-third the eggs and all the worry when you use sweet, pure, wholesome and nourishing Egg Baking Powder. Best grocers sell it. Write us for the Egg Cook Book—it's free.
