TRASHY ADVERTISING.

Along with our little talk on advertising in Richmond we are not going to neglect to mention the merchant who devotes his time to throwing away good money on trashy advertising. Incidentally it may be mentioned that trashy advertising can not be bought in Richmond. The merchant who patronizes the manufacturer of trashy advertising novelties must necessarily go outside of Richmond again demonstrating the beautiful disregard of some merchants for the trade-at-home argument.

Trashy advertising in Richmond applies to the many cheap advertising novelties on which good money is thrown away. Foot rules, yard sticks, puzzles, fans, calendars, mirrors, programs, time cards and all other forms of novelty advertising are not legitimate advertising nor in the long run are they acceptable to the people upon whom they are forced. Such advertising novelties clutter up any home and become a nuisance and the merchants who put them out justly receive the blame for creating such a nuisance.

Furthermore, this trashy advertising is not dignified and for a dignified firm to lower itself and use such advertising lowers its estimation of all discriminating people. The merchants who use this kind of advertising always try to justify themselves under the excuse that it keeps their name before the public. True enough but what they want to sell is goods and not a name. If they sell the right kind of goods and advertise their goods judiciously that fact alone will make their names stand for far more than cheap advertising novelties will. A merchant trying to sell goods on the strength of his name is a good deal like the dog that was wagged by its tail. The people want to know about the goods, the price and quality and not about the merchant's name.

The merchant who advertises in the newspaper must necessarily advertise in a dignified manner and the dignity of his advertisement is enhanced by the dignity of the newspaper. A newspaper naturally must be dignified in order to appeal to the best sentiments in the community. The majority of people in any community are sensible and dignified and demand that their newspaper be likewise. The merchant, therefore, who uses the newspaper gets the added advantage of the prestige his paper has gained. With trashy advertising novelties he has only his own dignity and prestige to command and lowers both by descending to the use of such advertising.

Yet He Didn't Need Them.
He had been calling on a young lady for many moons; but, being backward, his suit progressed slowly. Finally she decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to the rose in his buttonhole and said:

"I'll give you a kiss for that rose." A large, open face blushed meandered over his countenance, but the exchange was made. Then he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Why, where are you going?" she asked in surprise.

"To the—er—florist for more roses," he exclaimed.

Dangerous Ignorance.
If his son came to him and said, "I want you to show me on a piece of paper how this house is drained and why such traps are used," could the average citizen satisfy that son? Of course he could not. A few might be able to do so, but the average man is an ignorant person on all questions of hygiene.—G. H. R. Dabbs, M. D., in C. B. Fry's Magazine.

All Here.
"I'm told," said Miss Pepprey, "that your bride is very pretty."
"Yes, indeed," replied Mr. Con Seet. "Several of the guests at the ceremony were pleased to call it a wedding of beauty and brains."
"Really? She must be a remarkable woman to have beauty and brains too."—Philadelphia Press.

He Listened to All.
Fontenelle listened to everything, and he offended no one by disputing anything. At the close of his life he was asked the secret of his success, and he replied that it was by observing two maxims, "Everybody may be right" and "Everything may be so."

The true strength of every human soul is to be dependent on as many nobler as it can discern and to be dependent upon by as many inferior as it can reach.—Ruskin.

ROYALTY AFFLICTED WITH "GREAT WHITE PLAGUE."

Latest picture of Alfonso, King of Spain, who has been reluctantly informed by his physicians that he is a victim of tuberculosis, the hereditary scourge of his family. The king has been advised to visit London and consult a noted English specialist on consumption. The malady is so well pronounced that further denial is useless. The other photograph is of Queen Victoria (Ena) who also urges her husband to see the London specialist.

TIME OF YEAR FOR RAILROAD WRECKS

Special Precautions Will Be Taken by the Lines Through Winter.

FREEZING AND THAWING.

THIS IS ONE OF THE CAUSES OF DISASTERS—OTHER NEWS OF THE VARIOUS RAILROAD LINES.

The season for railroad wrecks is just beginning, and from this time until the late spring months, track inspectors, and all persons connected with the safe operation of trains on the local divisions of the Pennsylvania and the C. & L., will necessarily be on the alert. There is not so much danger during the early fall months, but when the ground begins to freeze and thaw, trains of all character stand in more danger of being wrecked than at any other season of the year. All supervisors and their men will be obliged to watch the rails and road-bed closely.

Winter traffic is carried on under circumstances which are everything else but encouraging. With all the labor that is expended during the summer months to prepare the track and roadbed for the winter travel, but few weeks of varying weather is all that is required to place, both in comparison bad condition, from a railroad's point of view. More accidents result from broken rails during the winter months than any other season of the year. Since the steel manufacturing concerns began to adulterate their rails sold to the various railroad companies the country over, accidents from the broken rail cause have been more numerous than ever before. Last year the local divisions of the Pennsylvania employed track inspectors on each section to keep a close watch on the rails during the winter months. Washouts are also guarded against.

One of the advantages of Grape-Nuts food is that it is pre-digested in the process of manufacture.

The starch contained in the wheat and barley is transformed into grape-sugar by exactly the same method as this process is carried on in the human body, that is, by the use of moisture and long exposure to moderate warmth which grows the diastase in the grains, then long baking completes the remarkable change from starch to grape-sugar.

Therefore, the most delicate stomach can handle Grape-Nuts and the food is quickly absorbed into the blood and tissue—certain parts of it going directly to build and nourish the brain and nerve centres. "There's a Reason."

With all the probable trouble, local Pennsylvania officials feel that everything will run as smoothly as possible during the winter. The C. & L. during the summer months materially strengthened the roadbed and the tracks on divisions both north and south of Richmond and the many track troubles experienced last winter are not expected to be repeated.

EXPRESS CO. INTERESTED.

But few persons or corporations, it is stated, are more vitally concerned in the outcome of the Harriman-Fish controversy, than the American Express Co. When the American company was given exclusive privilege over the entire line Stuyvesant Fish is credited with having been friendly toward the American Express company. If his defeat at the annual meeting is consummated it is thought that the Harriman faction will dominate in the Illinois Central. This established, the logical conclusion is that E. H. Harriman would prefer that the Wells-Fargo, which he also controls, acquire the business on the Illinois Central. The contract between the Illinois Central and the American Express company expires in two years, when the chance could be conveniently made. Such a change would be a serious blow to the American Express Co., it is stated.

BIG CARS IN DEMAND.

A railroad official in speaking of the demand for larger cars, said that shippers are now loading 88,000 pounds into the cars marked 80,000 pounds capacity, a 10 per cent increase being allowable with new cars. Of late many cars marked 100,000 pounds capacity have been loaded 110,000 pounds and box cars marked 80,000 pounds capacity are now frequently loaded 90,000 pounds. Shippers seem disposed to order the large cars as far as practicable and it is stated that frequently 118,000 to 120,000 pounds are loaded into grain and coal cars now in service.

IN SEPARATE EXHIBIT.

The Ohio Railroad Commission has undertaken to separate the passenger earnings of railroads within that state from the receipts from all other sources and the commission's annual report will present some tables which will be of interest. The value will depend entirely upon their accuracy and this will be explained in the remarks of the commission when the report is made public. With about ten exceptions the report shows an increase in the number of passengers carried and the decreases were generally wholly within the state and probably the experience of the latter lines form the best test of the Ohio law.

INCREASING FORCE.

While the Pennsylvania was first among the big corporations to trim sail and lay off men a year ago it is now the first to turn in the other direction. Orders are out for a large increase in force in the shops at Altoona. It was the first to prepare for the coming storm, says the Pittsburgh paper, and first to spread sail when the storm had passed over.

SLOW FREIGHT MOVEMENT.

Slow freight movement was started on Monday of this week over the Pennsylvania main line. The Pennsylvania always shuts down slow freight throughout the summer on Sunday, but this year it has lasted longer than ever before.

TRUANT OFFICERS REPORT ON WORK

Shown That Many Parents Were Prosecuted for Failure to Comply.

396 CASES IN THE COURTS.

MORE THAN TWENTY THOUSAND CHILDREN WERE BROUGHT INTO SCHOOL BY THE 111 TRUANT OFFICERS.

Reports filed by the truant officers of the state with the state truancy board for the school term of 1906-7 show many prosecutions of parents and guardians under the truancy law. With the exception of Jennings county, where no appropriation for truancy was made, each county in the state has a truant officer, those containing the larger cities employing from two to six officials.

A total of 396 cases was taken into court during the year, and of this number 345 proved successful, fifty failed and one is still pending. In forty-one counties no prosecutions were found necessary; in thirty-one counties the number was from one to five each; in eleven counties there were from five to ten each; in four counties from ten to twenty each; and in the remaining five the report was as follows: Madison twenty-three; Marion twenty-five; Lake twenty-seven; St. Joseph thirty-eight; Floyd, eighty-six. The truant officer of Floyd county wrote in explanation of the high number of prosecutions in his county, that sixty-four of the complaints were against parents or guardians for failure to comply with the law and twenty-two were against children for truancy.

The truant officers are 111 in number. Their reports indicate that during the school term of 1906-7, 22,000 children were brought into school who had either not been in school before or whose attendance was irregular. Of this number, 21,049 went to the public schools and 957 to private or parochial schools. It was found necessary to provide clothing or books for 7,900 of these, and the assistance so given amounted in value to $18,896.73, an average of $2.48 for each child aided. In the administration of their offices the truant officers spent 16,313 days in service and made 67,918 visits. Their salaries amounted to $32,822.50. This sum, added to the aid given the children, makes the total cost of administering the law amount to $51,719.23, an average of $2.35 for each child brought into school.

Another field of usefulness has been found for the dog in war. He is already employed as scout. He is now to serve in the ambulance corps. Two French army surgeons have taken up the question with eagerness, pointing out the limitations of human agency in collecting the wounded, of whom, after every engagement, large numbers go to swell the dismal list of the missing. It is contended that dogs of keen scent could, with proper training, render aid.
