

G. O. P. OUT FOR 3 STATES OF SOLID SOUTH

Chairman Hays Outlines Plan for Campaign Against Three Weakest States.

NEW YORK, June 2.—To break the solid South in 1920 so impressively that it will not be solid any more is the task cut out by Will H. Hays and the Republican national committee.

The weak spots in the Democratic line have been tested out. They are Missouri, Kentucky and North Carolina.

It is no secret in the Republican or the Democratic camp that the Republican attack will be especially severe against the enemy in these three states.

Evidences are multiplying that the younger Democrats in the border Southern states are growing disgusted with the old bourbon machines that have dominated politics. The modern political junkerism in the old slave states have sapped the interest in popular elections. The younger men resent it. The total vote cast in the old solid Southern states of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia was a little more than 2,000,000, while in the Republican state of Illinois the vote was 2,163,000.

Kentucky Republicans are confident of triumph this year when they elect a governor, and next year, when the larger test will be made. Two weeks ago at Lexington they held their state convention. The meeting was harmonious, enthusiastic and determined. A state ticket headed by Edward P. Morrow for governor was nominated for ratification in the state primaries.

Four years ago Mr. Morrow was defeated for governor on the face of the returns by a plurality of less than 500 votes. There is good ground for believing that he was actually elected by a plurality of more than 10,000. The election machinery of Louisville at that time was in the hands of the Democrats, and they used it to the limit. Since that time Louisville has twice been carried by the Republicans, and now they are in position to see to it that a square deal is given.

President Wilson on his last visit to the United States nominated as United States district attorney for North Carolina the Democrat state chairman, under whose manipulation the election in 1918 was made more or less of a joke. He issued a letter to his partisan registrars, whose right to control the privileges of voters in the state has been judicially decided to be absolute, directing them to vote sick voters, although at home, under an absent voters' statute, but admonishing them not to let the Republicans know about their intentions.

Thirty-nine Brands of Fraud. Of the thirty-nine kinds of fraud detailed in a statement issued by the Republican state conference held at Greensboro, Feb. 15, one was that the registrar of a Republican precinct went hunting on election day, carrying the records with him and thus prevented an election. The Republican state conference held in Greensboro on Feb. 15, was the largest and most enthusiastic political gathering ever held in the state. It was addressed by Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, and when Mr. Hays left town the young fellows gathered around him and told him to watch North Carolina at the next election.

The Republicans last fall elected a United States senator, Selden P. Spencer, in Democratic Missouri, and next fall they are confident of putting the state in the Republican column. The Democrats are broken with disension as never before. United States Senator Reed is bitterly opposing the league of nations, and has held the support of William R. Hearst in all his newspapers. Champ Clark is understood to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. The friends of Clark never have forgiven Wilson for beating Clark out of the nomination in 1912.

The administration's hostility to Champ Clark was uncovered following the election last fall when the Wilson men pointing to the small plurality by which Clark won his re-election began propaganda looking to his retirement from the leadership of the House. The real purpose of the hostility to Clark, engineered by Sanders of Louisiana, was to put into the minority leadership a man amenable to the wishes of the White House, and at the same time get rid of Clark as a presidential possibility.

REV. WOODMAN IN NEW YORK

The Rev. Charles Woodman of Alen Jay Memorial church is attending New York Yearly Meeting which is held in Poughkeepsie this year.

Some years ago, during a scarcity of tobacco, an effort was made in Scotland to raise this plant, and since then other attempts have been made, as it seems that the soil and climate are adapted for such a crop, but the degree of success attending these efforts has been very indifferent.

The early bird gets the buckshot.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and the Farmer

THERE is no general class of men who understand so thoroughly, and appreciate so well, the service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as do the farmers of the Middle West.

Wherever he may live the farmer is as familiar with the dark green tank wagon as he is with the conveyance which brings the mail carrier. He knows that his requirements of petroleum products will be provided.

He depends upon the service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), confident that the Company will deliver to him whatever products he needs, when he needs them, and at a price which is fair.

During the past two or three strenuous years the farmer of America has carried the responsibility for feeding the world. Every hour of every day he was busy and every minute was precious.

To multiply the effectiveness of his own and his employees' labor, he installed modern equipment—tractors, trucks, cultivating and harvesting machinery.

To run these machines, gasoline, kerosene, lubricating oils, and greases were absolutely necessary. To get them the farmer would have been forced to take hours of time going to town, were it not for the distributing facilities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). The Company brought the products he needed to the farm, even to the tractor in the field.

It is this kind of service which has brought the farmer and the Company into such close and such friendly relations. It is this kind of service which emphasizes the usefulness of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as a public servant.

Read what the people who work for you have to say to you

The manufacturer who makes your shoes is working for you. The store that sells you shoes is working for you. So is your grocer and baker and gas company and clothier and every person who makes or sells anything that you buy.

Quite often these people have messages for you. They want to tell you about new goods or changes in styles and prices or give you other information.

It is not practical for them to come and speak to you personally because they have too many customers to serve. So they put their messages in advertisements in your daily newspaper.

It is to your interest to read advertisements.

They are published for your benefit. Advertisements keep you informed as to what manufacturers and merchants are doing for you. They help you to buy the right goods at the right time and make the most of your money. You'll find that business concerns which tell you frankly what they are doing are most to be depended upon. Stores that advertise are progressive stores that have something really worth while to say to you. Manufacturers who advertise their goods have confidence in them, it does not pay to advertise anything that is not good.

Make a habit of reading advertisements. It is interesting as well as profitable.
