

FRANCE "LET DOWN" SINCE WORLD WAR. SAYS VISCOUNT GREY

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Oct. 25.—Considerable interest has been aroused by Viscount Grey's allusion in his address at Bradford last night, to France having been "let down" by her allies since the "World War". Viscount Grey was British foreign secretary at the outbreak of the war, retiring upon the formation of the Lloyd George ministry in 1916.

"Before we criticize France's actions," he said, "let us realize the facts. When peace was concluded France had two agreements, one with Great Britain and one with the United States, that she would have the full support of Britain and America if attacked in the future by Germany."

Agreements Gone. "These were not included in the treaty of Versailles, but they were as much a part of the peace as was the treaty of Versailles. They made an enormous difference to France. They are gone. I admit it was not the fault of France had two agreements, one with Great Britain and one with the United States, that she would have the full support of Britain and America if attacked in the future by Germany."

Points Out Remedy. Viscount Grey added, however, that exclusive treaties could not assure permanent security and would lead to counter treaties and counter alliances; therefore, if France or any other country wanted security let it be brought about by strengthening the League of Nations and making that organization as all embracing as possible.

He contended that the policy of the coalition government had brought Great Britain dangerously near the necessity of fighting a single-handed war in the near east and had imperiled the Indian empire.

The coalition had maneuvered the country into the appearance of being the one anti-Mohammedan power in the world and had thereby brought the British empire into real peril. The new government must now convince the Mohammedans in India that there was going to be fairplay.

ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL AND PARISH HOUSE DEDICATED SUNDAY

Special dedicatory services for the new St. John's parochial school and parish house will be conducted at St. John's Lutheran church and at the new school, next Sunday morning, the exercises beginning at 9:30 o'clock at the church.

Rev. B. G. Richter of Detroit, will give the first address in English and the second address will be given by the Rev. A. J. Feeger in German. Special music will be given by the church choir.

Following this first part of the program, the congregation will adjourn to the school where the actual dedication exercises will be held under the direction of the pastor of the church, Rev. A. L. Nicklas.

Flag to Be Given. The school will be presented with a large American flag on the occasion of its dedication by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans.

The new building was erected by the parish at a cost of between $30,000 and $35,000 and was constructed by day laborers under the direction of one of the parishioners. The brick work, which is considered one of the best works in masonry of this kind in the city was done by William Weaver and Russell Layman. C. E. Werking and Son were the architects for the new building and John H. Niewoehner was in charge of the plumbing and heating.

Large Building. The building is complete throughout containing all the necessities of a community house and at the same time large enough and laid out so as to accommodate the school. All of the grades of common school are conducted in the two class rooms and there are at present 72 pupils enrolled in the school. The building is not completely finished inside and it is expected that the enrollment will increase somewhat.

Construction on the building began in the spring of 1921 and the builders completed their work during the past summer. The work of interior decorating is yet to be finished. Classes were conducted in the new building for the first time when school opened in September.

Large Class Rooms. The outside measurements of the building are 45 feet by 62 feet frontage. The basement contains a large exercise room, a kitchen, steam heating system, toilets, a fire-proof record vault, and a coal bin large enough to accommodate the needs of the church as well as the school. The school is housed on the first floor where there are two classrooms, there are two large cloak rooms, two small play rooms and a lobby. On the second floor is the auditorium, which is 31 feet wide and 42 feet long, and which is bounded on the south end by a large stage and two dressing rooms. There are two kitchens on this floor in the walls of which are built large china closets.

Sound Proof Floor. The floor of the second floor is of sound-proof construction so that community meetings and affairs being held on the second floor will in no way disturb the classes being held on the first floor below. The auditorium may be used for basketball and other community games and for the production of plays, etc.

The stairways and corridors are all of fireproof construction and the doors of the building are fitted with the regular fire escapement release. The outside construction proper is of dark red brick trimmed in stone, the stone work being of exceptional beauty.

It is expected that a large number of people will attend the dedication services Sunday.

APPROPRIATE RITES MARK HIGH CORNERSTONE LAYING

The cornerstones for the Julia E. Test junior high school was laid Wednesday afternoon under the direction of the Indiana Grand Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons.

Praise for the unselfish life work of Julia E. Test, beloved teacher for whom the building was named, was voiced by the speakers of the occasion. It is the first time in the history of Richmond schools that an educational building has been named for a woman.

R. W. Phillips, Grand Master of the Masonic order of the state of Indiana, accepting the invitation of Dwight Perkins of the firm of Perkins, Fellows and Hamilton, of Chicago architects, laid the corner stone at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

In requesting Mr. Phillips to lay the corner stone, Mr. Perkins said: "Seek Perfect Structure."

"It is a great pleasure to me and my Chicago associates to spend the people's money in a most appropriate manner, as the erection of this building will prove. It is the intention of our company to build a structure as perfect as the significance it has."

"On behalf of the board of education of the city of Richmond I request you to lay the corner stone of this structure."

Charles Jordan, president of the school board, referred to the significance of this building and its part in the building program for the city in a short address before the corner stone was laid. He said:

"We feel honored to have with us the grand officer of the Indiana lodge of Masons. We are glad that we can refer to the memory of Richmond's greatest of teachers, Julia E. Test. Many present remember school days spent in the rooms taught by her. This is the first time a school has been named after a woman teacher."

600 Attend Rites. A crowd of approximately 600 persons was present at the ceremony. A short talk was made by Dr. J. J. Rae, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

A parade, led by members of the school board starting from the downtown section at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, preceded the ceremony. The line of march started in front of the Masonic hall on North Ninth street, thence to Main and out Main street to the site of the new building. The parade was made up as follows: School board, architects, contractors, officials, high school band, Garfield school pupils and members of the local lodge of Masons.

Smith Gains Favor In New York Race

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 25.—Wall street is betting even money on New York's spectacular government fight—a fight that may make a presidential nominee in 1924.

On a bet of $20,000 and numerous smaller but sizable wagers have been made on the chances of "Al" Smith, Democrat and Nathan L. Miller, Republican incumbent.

In Democratic circles here, this trend in the betting is regarded as favoring Smith, whose chances of coming back against Miller was not too highly regarded in the earlier stages of the campaign.

The gubernatorial battle in the Empire state has overshadowed the senatorial scrap between Senator William Calder, Republican and Dr. Royal Copeland, Democrat. The Copeland adherents are demanding odds of 2 to 1 and there is little betting, according to reports received here.

MAJOR TO DEMAND EXPLANATION OF NEWS STORIES ON GAMBLING

(By Associated Press) BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Mayor Frank X. Schwab was expected to appear before a supreme court justice today and ask for an order requiring editors and reporters of the Evening News to show cause why they refused to appear before the mayor to disclose the bases and sources for information for a series of articles disclosing alleged protected gambling and a wide open city.

The New editorial disclaimed being engaged in any political squabble or in any personal grudge against the mayor, but declares that it will resist and "battle for the principles vital to the existence of a free press."

"If the right of a city official to call a newspaper representative before him for information is conceded," the editorial says, "to what extent may it not be abused? No more effective muzzle for the press could be imagined or devised."

No possible penalty, the editorial declares, can budge the News from adherence to the principle of protecting its sources of confidential information. Representatives of the newspaper Tuesday ignored subpoenas to appear before Mayor Schwab.

BLOOMINGTON WATER PROBLEM RECEIVES M'GRAY'S ASSISTANCE

(By Associated Press) INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 23.—State officials are co-operating with city authorities at Bloomington in an effort to solve the water supply problem. Gov. McCray said today. A shortage of water so serious that for several days a supply has been hauled from neighboring cities has caused considerable inconvenience, according to reports received at the state house.

Gov. McCray said the state had offered to send engineers to assist the city in efforts to establish a plentiful water supply. The state is particularly interested, the governor said, because of the location of Indiana university at Bloomington.

University Has Water. The governor said he was informed that the university itself has a water supply independent of the Bloomington water works, but many students, who must live in homes off the campus are affected by the shortage.

Doctor William Lowe Bryan, president of the university, has conferred with the governor on the situation. Dr. Bryan, according to the governor, believes that the city can adopt the plan that is used by the university in piping water from a reservoir several miles distant.

There has been no serious agitation for the removal of the university from Bloomington to a more favorable location, the governor said.
