HIGH POINT HOTEL BEING TORN DOWN

THE NORTH END GOES FIRST AND REST WILL FOLLOW

THE APPEARANCE

Of the Inside—Some Rooms Intact and Others Demolished—History of the Building.

In a few weeks at the most, the last vestige of one of the distinctive buildings of Richmond will have disappeared and only a grass plot will mark the site. One whole end of the building known as "High Point Hotel," has been torn down and in a few days laborers will be at work demolishing the rest of the structure.

The "hotel" is a large three-story, rambling structure, about two hundred feet long by seventy-five feet wide, with wide verandas extending clear around and is situated on the high point of ground at the end of North E street, and just at the entrance to Glen Miller.

Inside the building presents a curious scene. Parts of it are totally empty, dirty, and with the plaster fallen from the walls. Notably is this true of the upper stories. But the lobby, and the clerk's desk, or the place of the latter, are well preserved, even to the bell board on the wall back of the clerk's desk. The paint still remains in the old lobby and the fixtures are all there.

The dining room, at the extreme northern end, is all gone, this end being the first one to be torn down, and the bed rooms above it are also gone and the walls and partitions torn down. The work has been stopped for a few days now because of the fact that the owner left no directions as to where to take the laths, lumber, etc., from the building.

The History.

The "High Point Hotel" has long been connected with many of the great affairs of the social life of Richmond, or at least until the past few years, when the non-use of it caused dust to accumulate. It was first started a good many years ago as a hotel. The owner expected to make a fortune of it, using it both as an apartment house and as a hotel. It was thought that its nearness to the Glen would draw patronage. But the situation was too far from the city, and those who did come here did not desire to stay at a hotel for from the center of town. It is an example of wrong judgment, coupled with little foresight. In stead of the city growing out in that direction, it grew more to the southward, and the hotel was left "high and dry," with at least a half a mile between it and the nearest houses. For many years it was used as one thing and another and then the idea sprang up to utilize it for a sanatorium. This failed, and after a few years of idleness it was renovated for the "Wilke Art Institute." This lasted only for a short time, and since about 1896 the hotel has been empty.

It is not known what use the site will be put to.

For Churches Communion Wine.
Speer's unfemented grape juice for sacramental wine is sanctioned by the prominent divines and physicians of this country.

$500 REWARD

For the Return or Information About Richmond Byers.

The Palladium received the following card this morning:

Five Hundred Dollars Reward.
Seeleyville, Vigo Co., Ind.
July 7th, 1904

On Sunday afternoon, the 29th day of May, 1904, my five-year-old son, Richmond Byers, mysteriously disappeared from his home, since which time nothing has been heard from him. The child is described as follows: "He was five years old on July 5th, and is rather small of his age, has light hair, complexion fair, gray hazel eyes, the left eye being crossed, is very noticeable, and squints this eye. In the upper and outer edge of one ear there is a V-shaped nick which has been there since his birth. He wore a red and white waist with a sailor collar of the same material; a green and brown mixed cap with a peak, and was barefooted. The child is very talkative for his age and would rather be in the company of men than with children."

For the return of the child alive or for information which will lead to his recovery I will pay a reward of five hundred dollars, and no questions will be asked. The above likeness is a fairly good one of the child from which he can be readily identified. Address any information in relation to this matter to Daniel Fasig, Sheriff of Vigo county, at Terre Haute, Indiana, or to the undersigned.

The report of Ada L. Bernhardt, librarian, at the Morrison-Reeves library, is out and makes a very excellent showing. Forty years ago this month the library was established. In that time wonderful progress has been made. Few people realize the yearly growth of the library proper. There are now 30,627 books upon the shelves of the library, and during the year 1,795 volumes have been added. To this number 1,182 were purchased, 285 came from the government, 100 were added by binding and 279 were gifts. The following persons were liberal contributors: Mrs. M. E. Reeves, Mrs. C. C. Binkley, Mrs. Lewis DD. Stubbs, Wm. P. and Jesse S. Reeves, E. B. Needham, Harry Miller and Mrs. James F. Hilberd.

Mrs. Bernhardt reports a steady increase in the circulation. The past winter there have been four exhibitions at the library under auspices of the sketch club. Mrs. Bernhardt says the exhibits were skillfully arranged by Miss Esther Griffin White, to whom the library is indebted.

The statistical report makes a splendid showing, and the treasurer's report, made by Jesse S. Reeves, shows a net balance of $540.15.
