MAKING OVER A MAN.

A "Formulator" Gives Away Some of the Secrets of His Art. From the New York Star.

"Formulation done here," read a sign over a store. Within sat a little stubby man, with small gray eyes, full red beard and an unctuous, flabby face. Scattered around him on the bench on which he sat and about the floor were pieces of silk, satin and serge, bundles of borse-hair and pack-ages of half open cotton. The little man was busily stitching a blue satin quilted article that looked like a cushion of a baby

"Yes I am what the tailors term a formulator," he replied to a questioning visitor, in a thin, squeaky voice. "The word is indicative of my trade or rather profession. My occupation is truly the latter, inasmuch as it is an art, the art of improving, embel lishing or modifying the masculine figure, as the case demands. Padding? Yes, some might term it that. Didn't you know that men pad, eh? Why, bless your soul, they have been doing it since the days of

The speaker separated a thread with a finger-nail close to the garment. Then he held the pad toward the light, scrutinizing it critically, sezzed his tape line and began measuring the garment, referring constant-ly to a small piece of paper with the measirements on it.

"The man I call patron is a creature of dissatisfaction. Nothing about his own personality or make-up contents him. He is essentially a being of observation. If he has a friend who is short and fat, while he himself is tall and thin, he forms the idea that he, too, would like to be stumpy and adipose. A tailor can do little for him, but Liberal but discriminating pad ding will make him corpulent, and if his make-up is expertly perfected it will give him the appearance of being considerably shorter than when in his normal state. His friends will remark how well be is looking, ask how he has grown so fleshy, and the artful deceiver will launch into such a dis sertation of gastronomy that the horse-hair appliances in his artificial chest will shrivel up into a double bowknot with surprise.
"These forms are not limited entirely to the trunk of the subject. The calves, hips and knees all come in for its benefit. You know that the knee of a man's trousers in less than a month after they are made become "baggy." This necessitates any amount of running to the tailor's and hav ing the garment pressed, if the wearer desires to be well dressed. Although constant bending of the knee is in part the cause of the eyesore to men, the construction of the member is the principal reason of such a state of things. Now, look here," and the little man st etched one of his fat legs straight out before him. "Feel my knee: you see the kneecap sits like a hillock over the points. Below it the limb swerves in. Now, how are you going to make a trouser leg sit smoothly here without catching? Can't say? Then I'll tell you; use forms below and above the cap, and the trousers will fit like a glove and won't "You see the form being stitched to the lining of the garment makes it stiff and prevents the cloth straining. You may have noticed that the cloth never stretches at the knee cap, but above and below it.

A little dressing about the too large calf and a little doctoring at this member itself is a valuable aid to the fit of the leg case-ials and worn in a variety of ways. Chest and spinal articles are made like sleeveless jackets of one continuous piece of material. There is a hole for the head and the garment is slipped on by extending the arms upward and perpendicularly and letting the article fall on. Over the muscles of the chest the garment is padded to any ex-tent desired. The small of the back is also touched up as necessity dictates. The body of the article is of silk or chamois. The chest pads in cold weather are always worn next to the skin. By this arrangethe effect is natural and consistent and it is almost impossible, even by feeling, to discover the artificiality of the padder's figure. Why, there is no limit to our possibilities. A good many of our business men wear padded undergarments, not par ticularly for the effect, but because the clothing fits more comfortably.

THE O DEST MAN ON EARTH.

A Negro Resident of Santa Rosa, Mexico, in His 135th Year A correspondent at Laredo, Tex., writes

as follows to the St. Lonis Globe Demo

James James, a negro and citizen of the United States, who resides at Santa Rosa, Mexico, is probably the oldest man on earth. He was born near Dorchester, S. C., in 1752, and while an infant was removed to Medway River Ga., in the same year that Benjamin Franklin brought down electric-ity from the thunder clouds. In 1762 there was quite an immigration into South Carolina, and his master, James James, from whom he takes his name, moved near Charleston, S. C., in company with a number of his neighbors. On June 4, 1776, when 24 years of age, a large British fleet, under Sir Peter Parker, arrived off Charleston. The citizens had erected a palmetto wood fort on Sullivan's Isted a palmetto wood fort on Sullivan's Island, with twenty-six guns, manned by 500 troops, under Col. Moultrie. and on June 28, the British made an attack by land and water, and were compelled to withdraw after a 10-hours' conflict. It was during this fight that Sergeant Jasper distinguished himself by replacing the flag, which had been shot away upon the bastion on a new staff. Jim's master, James James, manned one of her guns in this fight, and the subject of this sketch and four other slaves. subject of this sketch and four other slaves subject of this sketch and four other slaves were employed around the fort as general laborers. Jim followed his master through-out the war, and was with Gen. Moultrie at Port Royal, S. C., Feb. 3, 1779, when Moultrie defeated the combined British forces of Prevest and Campbell. His master was surrendered by Gen. Lincoln at Charleston, S. C., on Feb. 12, 1780, to the British forces, and that ended Jim's mili-

In that year his first master died, aged about 60 years. Jim then became the property of "Marse Henry" (Henry James), owning large es-tates and about thir y slaves, near Charles-ton. On account of having raised "Marse Henry" Jim was a special favorite with his master and was allowed to do as he chose. Hissecond master, Henry, died in 1815, about 55 years of age, and Jim, then 63 years of age, became the property of James James, Henry's second son. In 1833 the railroad Charleston to Hamburg was comple ted, then the longest railroad in the world, and Jim, with his master, took a trip over the road, and was shown special favors on account of his age, then 81. James James was 10 years of age at his father's death, and when he became of age inherited large estates, slaves, etc., among whom were "old Uncle Jim" and his family. James James lived in South Carclina until 1853, when he moved to Texas with his slaves. James desired that his slaves should te free at his death, and in 1858 moved into Mexico so that they could be free before his death, James returned to the United States, and died in Texas, and in 1865 after there were no longer slaves in the United States, Uncle Jim's children and grand children returned to the United States. Five years ago, at the age of 130, Jim could do light chores, but subsisted mostly by contributions from the citizens, but for the past two years, not being able to walk, he remains for the most part in his little jacal, his wants

An Improvement in Dentistry.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch. A well known Pittsburg dentist has late ly received a patent upon an electrical appliance that has certainly solved one of the many difficulties attending the proper handling of the human teeth. Heretofor a whole gold tooth has been made by the old-fashioned swedging process, at once clumsy and hardly effective. The gold comes are technically called galvano-plastic tooth crowns, and the process of making them is very simple. A soft metallic model of the tooth is made, this being done perfeetly by first taking an impression of the tooth. The metallic model is then placed in a dynamo-electric bath, and a deposit of The rheumatism in his legs prevents him from walking, but yet he has sufficient strength in his arms to drag himself a short distance—fifty yards or more.
